Citizen Unit To Supervise Foreign Bond Settlements

President Has Called Prominent Group for Service.

Federal Board Plan Sidetracked

Hope to Avoid Possible Diplomatic Trouble by New Method.

By Elliott Thurston.

President Roosevelt expects to meet tomorrow with a group of distinguished Americans, including Newton D. Baker, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and former Ambassador to Mexico J. Reuben Clark, who with a number of others will form a voluntary, nongovernmental committee to protect the interests of American investors in some $2,000,000,000 of defaulted foreign securities.

Instead of creating, under the Federal Trade Commission, the "Corporation of Foreign Security Holders," provided for by Title II of the securities act of 1933, the President intends to transfer to this nongovernmental group the duties and functions which would have been performed by the Federal corporation.

Set-up Avoids Complications.

After much study of the situation, the President's advisers concluded that to set up a Federal corporation would involve complications which are avoided by creating a non-Federal group of eminent Americans.

For one thing, it was felt that a Federal corporation would encounter serious diplomatic difficulties that could be surmounted by private negotiation.

Also it was thought that a Federal corporation would mislead the public into imagining that the Government was prepared to be a collection agency which could be held accountable for success or failure in extracting money from the defaulters.

Asks Volunteer Services.

Hence, the President has decided against exercising his privilege of issuing a proclamation, as provided in the securities act, creating the Corporation of Foreign Security Holders, as it is termed in the act.

He will, instead, ask the leading Americans whom he has summoned to the White House to vol-

Hugh Bancroft Ruled Suicide

Official Holds Fire Fumes Killed Publisher; Funeral Held.

Cohasset, Mass., Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Hugh Bancroft, president of Dow, Jones & Co. and publisher of several financial papers, was pronounced a suicide today by Medical Examiner George V. Higgins after his burial at Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Bancroft died Tuesday night at his Cohasset estate, Deer Hill. First announcement was that he was a heart attack victim.

Dr. Higgins said that Bancroft had entered a forge house on his estate, closed all windows and the door, and started a fire in the forge. He died as a result of the fumes.

Friends said Bancroft had suffered financial reverses in the past eight months and had been in poor health.

Funeral services were conducted today in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church here.

Bancroft was publisher of the Wall Street Journal, the Boston News Bureau and the Philadelphia Financial Journal. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War and was a famous oarsman at Harvard.

Frenchman Wins Carnegie Art Prize

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Housed in the spacious halls of the $20,000,000 Carnegie Museum, the thirty-first international exhibition of modern paintings of the Carnegie Institute opened tonight with 350 paintings from 11 nations.

A landscape, "St. Tropez," by the French artist, Andre Dunoyer de Segonzac, was awarded the $1,500 first prize. John Steuart Curry, of Dunavant Kans., was given second prize of $1,000 for his painting, "Tornada." Another Kansan, Henry Varnum Poor, 45, took third prize of $500 for "March Sun."

Former Rome Mayor Sails for Chicago Fair

Genoa, Italy, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Prince Ludovico Potenziani, former Governor of Rome, sailed today on the Conte di Savoia en route to Chicago, where he will preside at the closing of the Italian Pavilion of A Century of Progress November 12.

Ban on Big Salaries Sought by Roosevelt

Attorney General Cites Him Ways to Reduce Large Incomes.

With five Federal agencies gathering data on high salaries paid business executives and directors, President Roosevelt is desirous of some limit on what he believes excessive remunerations, it was disclosed yesterday.

Pushing his study of methods to curb huge payments to corporation officers, the President received from Attorney General Cummings an opinion pointing out ways by which it can be accomplished. It was understood that changes in corporation taxation to hit salaries are being considered at the White House.

The administration believes the public reaction to disclosures such as the retirement salary of $100,000 paid Albert H. Wiggen of Chase National Bank has not helped the recovery program. The administration is aware that investors reading of passed dividends and enormous salaries in the same firms are not exactly pleased.

A theory of some of the President's advisers is that much money now going into large salaries should be spread in lower wage brackets to increase purchasing power. The tax scheme would take salaries into account and might encourage readjustment, the administration believes. At present salaries may be deducted from corporation income for tax purposes.

The major drive for information about salaries is being pushed by the Federal Trade Commission under a Senate resolution. A questionnaire requiring detailed information from 2,000 corporations on salaries has been distributed.

Other agencies gathering data include the R. F. C., which is to report salaries of officials of banks requesting loans, and the Interstate Commerce Commission, which already has acted to cut railroad executives, and the Federal Reserve Board will report on salaries of bankers in the Reserve system.

Many officials feel that publication of topheavy salaries alone will be beneficial. They concede that the President must seek legislation if he intends to do any paring by law.

The President conferred at length with Attorney General Cummings yesterday on this matter and on his whole financial program. Cummings had little to say following the meeting.

Ritchie Ouster Urged; Lynch Probe Widens

State, District and County Units Seek Leaders in Mob Slaying.

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 19 (A.P.). The State, the county and the circuit court district today started investigations into last night's lynching of George Armwood, Negro charged with an attack on an 81-year-old white woman.

From his office in Annapolis, Gov. Ritchie ordered Attorney General William Preston Lane to take charge. He secured detectives from Baltimore to aid in the search and ordered the commander of the State police, 13 members of which were injured in the fight at the jail door, to give Lane its full cooperation.

Meanwhile a demand was made in Baltimore for the impeachment of Gov. Ritchie.

The demand came from the State committee of the Socialist party of Maryland in a special meeting. Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

Charges Requested.

The committee also asked removal of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset County, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

Ritchie also notified Robins and Judge Duer, whom he publicly blamed for the fact that the Negro was here rather than in Baltimore last night, that he expected them to do everything possible to bring the mob leaders into court.

"It is the duty of the local officials to administer justice in the county," the governor said.

"Does that mean the State is powerless?"

"I would hestitate to say that. But the administration of justice is the business of local authorities."

Silent on Criticism.

Robins was asked if he had an answer to the governor's charge that he and Judge Duer were responsible.

"I have nothing to say at this time," he answered.

Coroner Edgar Jones said he would call a jury for an inquest today.

"I expect it will be found that

Chase Cuban Loan Inquiry Plea Granted

Decision of Senate Group Follows Aldrich Tilt With Fletcher.

Denying any attempt to "suppress" Chase National Bank participation in Cuban public works financing, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase board, yesterday demanded and was granted an immediate Senate inquiry into details of the loans.

The Senate Banking Committee decided to take up the Chase loans to Cuba beginning Monday, following a sharp exchange yesterday between Chairman Fletcher and Aldrich.

Protesting published statements that his bank sought to block an inquiry, but conceding they had "questioned the wisdom" in view of conditions in Cuba, Aldrich asked the committee to look into the loans at once to offset alleged "harm" done by published statements.

"We will do as we please about it, Mr. Aldrich, without your dictation," Fletcher said, disclaiming any responsibility for articles published.

Inquiry Not Wanted.

Aldrich disclosed he went before an executive session of the committee Wednesday to ask the inquiry not be pressed. He said he personally investigated the loans and found nothing "wrong."

The Aldrich interruption came unexpectedly in the midst of testimony on four "trading accounts" in Chase National Bank stock, variously participated in by Chase Securities Corporation, its subsidiary, the Metpotan Corporation, and the Shermar Corporation, controlled by Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National Bank board.

Chase affiliates and their associates profited $2,057,695 on three of the trading accounts and lost a small amount on the fourth, testimony indicated. The accounts gave their managers right to trade "short" in the stock of their parent company.

The committee will place on the stand this morning heads of several large New York brokerage houses subpenaed to Washington when the New York Stock Exchange refused to distribute questionnaires prepared by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

Pecora will ask witnesses if they

Ickes Curbs Manufacture Of Gasoline; Nation Zoned

Threat to Padlock Oil Wells Voiced

(Associated Press.)

A new order directed at controlling gasoline as well as crude oil production was issued yesterday by Secretary Ickes. He declared he would stop excess oil production by closing down wells if necessary.

He moved to divide the Nation into refining districts and authorized the industry's planning and coordinating committee to recommend to every refiner the production found desirable.

The committee, composed of leading oil executives, also was directed to organize whatever regional groups may be necessary to enforce the recommendations. Violation was made an unfair practice, punishable by law.

Sharp Curbs Drafted.

The industry, for which an elaborate schedule of prices has been fixed to be effective December 1, now is operating under controlled crude production and unfair practice rules.

The order yesterday was another step in regulating the amount of crude oil that may be refined into gasoline during a given period to prevent the accumulation of excess gasoline inventories.

The first statistical report compiled under the oil code on oil stocks, made public yesterday by Ickes, showed total stocks of 347,699,000 barrels on October 14.

Total domestic crude on October 14 was 345,079,000 barrels.

Excess Supply Listed.

Petroleum refineries during the week ended October 14 refined a daily average of 2,445,000 barrels, and gasoline stocks during the week were increased by 920,000 barrels.

The report explained that the 920,000 barrels of gasoline placed in storage is the equivalent in crude oil of about 300,000 barrels daily, which represents approximately the excess throughout of crude oil at domestic refineries during the past week.

France Faces Budget Crisis

Paris, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The position of the French Cabinet admittedly was precarious tonight because of serious opposition in the Chamber of Deputies to Premier Daladier's budget balancing program.

The government was notified by the chamber finance committee it would be "impossible" to pass the measures in the week the premier specified.

This and expressed nervousness over the French crisis accentuated feeling among government friends that the situation was serious.

Worry on the bourse was reflected by the erratic course of the franc, and an upward movement of the American dollar was no longer called dollar strength, but franc weakness.

M. Daladier, when he appeared at the opening of Congress this week, told deputies the budget must be balanced completely or the country must find a new government.

He urged quick action on a bill designed to safeguard the franc and ward off inflation by raising a total of 8,000,000,000 francs (now about $440,000,000) by new revenue measures and economies.

Virgin Islands Ballot On Recall of Governor

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Opposition to Dr. Paul M. Pearson, of Illinois, as governor of the Virgin Islands reached its peak today with announcement of a popular referendum to decide whether President Roosevelt should be asked to recall him.

John Coleman Given Yale Treasury Post

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19 (A.P.). The appointment of John Coleman, jr., Yale 1913, of Lake Forest, Ill., as assistant treasurer of Yale University, was announced tonight by President James Rowland Angell.

Coleman has been engaged in economic research. He was chairman of the Yale News, undergraduate daily, in his senior year.

Governor Says Price Advance Injures Business.

Asks More Relief Funds for State

Two of the State's leading Democrats bolted President Roosevelt's relief program and joined the veteran Republican independent, Senator George W. Norris, in warnings of unrest among farmers.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan said the farmers' throat was being "cut from both ears" by abandonment of antitrust laws and declining farm prices. He urged currency inflation by redeeming Liberty Bonds and payment of the bonus. Former Gov. Keith Neville resigned as State NRA chairman because of lack of sympathy with its agricultural program. He said mounting price changes had produced virtually a "buyers' strike" among farmers.

Follow Norris' Appeal.

The statement came on the heels of Senator Norris' second appeal to President Roosevelt to inflate the currency by retiring $1,500,000,000 of Liberty Bonds with new currency instead of refunding them.

Another Democratic leader, Representative E. R. Burke, said the President would throw the force of his administration behind any move to help the farmer.

"The farmer is rapidly losing confidence because he sees the price of everything he buys going up, while the price of everything he sells is daily going in the other direction," Senator Norris said.

Norris Silent on Bonus.

Norris declined to comment on the extension of his suggestion for inflation to include the bonus payment.

Neville charged that the NRA was threatening merchants in farmer territory with bankruptcy because of inadequate farm-purchasing power. He said only an increase of buying power through a comprehensive public works program or higher farm prices could save thousands of small merchants. He declared "the Government has been very derelict in meeting its obligation to put men to work."

Gov. Bryan's statement follows in part:

"The unrest in the Nation is increasing. The prices of the farmers' products are decreasing, so his throat is being cut from both ears at once. In my judgment, the only remedy so far in sight, as everything else tried has failed, is to increase the farmers' income by increasing the amount of basic money in circulation with which to bid for his products.

Opposes Embargo.

"The suggestion of an embargo so clearly is unconstitutional, both under the State and Federal constitutions, I did not feel it advisable to enter upon such a course.

"It appears as though all of the antitrust laws have been either nullified or overridden, and the people are now being plundered through collusion of organized business groups on a scale never heretofore dreamed of.

"The great industry of agriculture is being made the victim. Foreclosures in the future are inevitable and taxes will be mounting higher and higher to pay the interest on the money that is being poured in at the top of our national commercial structure. This money and credit does not come down from the top.

"I strongly indorse Senator Norris' statement that new money should be put into circulation by paying off Liberty bonds in cash with new money rather than attempting to refund them with another issue of bonds.

Bryan Urges Bonus.

"I believe the best plan at this time would be to pay the soldiers' bonus in new Federal currency, based on our ample gold reserve, which is sufficient to carry the additional money without any impairment of the Nations' credit or claim of unstable currency."

F. C. Crocker, Lincoln, secretary of the Nebraska Farmers Holiday Association, said the association was in thorough agreement with Bryan on the currency question. He also said the holiday association still looks to the embargo favorably.

Taxes Bar Dining Car Liquor, Says Rail Chief

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—N. L. Patterson, Illinois Central dining service superintendent, today said taxes will prevent railroads serving wines or liquors in dining cars when prohibition is repealed.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, left, and Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota, who yesterday warned of an impending revolt against the NRA. Gov. Bryan charged that farming conditions had been made worse under the recovery program, while Gov. Olson saw in the farm strike an "inevitable rebellion."

NRA Moves To End "War" Among Miners

Rival Union in Illinois Recognized Under Peace Plan.

A formula designed to end the long mine union war in Illinois was advanced yesterday by the Recovery Administration in the face of new indications that President Roosevelt would be compelled to step again into the Pennsylvania steel-coal difficulties.

The Illinois peace move called, according to the Associated Press, for the miners to halt all disturbances. Mines would be operated under their present labor contracts. Each of the two rival unions would be permitted to attempt peacefully to increase its membership, with disputes to be referred to the National Labor Board.

Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the administration, stated the formula in a report to Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, on his findings during a first-hand examination of the Illinois situation several weeks ago. It was sent to Gov. Horner as a basis for negotiations between operators and leaders of both unions at a conference today in Springfield.

Says Remedies Available.

Richberg said that " in the event of violations of the requirements of the bituminous code or of resistance to its enforcement, there are Federal remedies available to enforce the Federal law and to prevent armed resistance to its enforcement."

He added, however, that it was the primary responsibility of the State to preserve law and order—a responsibility it has been unable to carry out with success even though it has repeaterly called out its National Guard.

"Because of the violence of the struggle with the many armed conflicts, with bloodshed, bombing and many acts of terrorism," he said, "it would be utterly impracticable

"Public Enemy" Act Invalid in Michigan

The court's decision said the statute, enacted by the 1931 Legislature, deprived defendants of inherent trial rights.

U. S. Liquor Ban Startles Foreigners

United Press dispatches from England and France said British distillers and French wine growers were shocked by the order barring foreign liquor imports from the the United States.

British distillers already have negotiated sales to American interests totaling around $9,000,000. Distilleries, according to a United Press London correspondent, have been running full blast in anticipation of American repeal. Reports from official French quarters said the foreign office was considering cabling a protest.

Three-fourths of Scotch distilleries were closed in 1932, with as high as 10 years' supplies on hand. It was feared the embargo would force closing of other distilleries and cause unemployment.

Use of Molasses Shunned.

Meantime, an agreement to use only American grains in the distillation of spirits was reached here last night by a committee representing the distilling industry.

Inasmuch as industrial alcohol as well as the beverage industry was represented on the committee which reached this agreement, the step is expected to outlaw the use of such materials as imported blackstrap molasses, the basis of most alcohol manufacture.

While this will make the manufacturing process more costly than

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19 (A.P.). Speaking of friendly rivalry—R. T. Foster, W. A. Turner and B. B. Griffin arrived today from Gadsden in T. E. Paschel's automobile.

All four came to ask Gov. B. M. Miller for the job as tax collector of Etowah County, left vacant by the resignation of J. A. Camp, of Gadsden. The appointment has not been made.

Montana's Wheat Men Ask Embargo

Confidence Dwindling, Says Norris, Who Urges Inflation.

(Associated Press.)

A national farm strike to begin at noon tomorrow was called last night by the National Farm Holiday Association after a meeting of its directors in St. Paul, Minn.

The purpose of the strike would be to increase farm prices by stopping the flow of farm produce to market and to compel the Government to formulate an NRA code for agriculture.

Discontent with the administration's recovery and agricultural program was voiced by leaders in three of the farm belt States—Nebraska, Illinois and North Dakota.

The national strike call also followed a demand from the Montana Farmers Union that an embargo be placed on wheat shipments from that State, similar to the one proclaimed by Gov. William Langer of North Dakota.

Gov. Charles Bryan of Nebraska charged the NRA had made conditions worse instead of better for farmers.

Hog Buying Termed Failure.

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, told the administration in Washington the farmer was losing confidence as prices were up and his income went lower. He asked that Liberty bonds be retired with new money instead of being refunded.

Keith Neville, Nebraska NRA administrator, resigned because he said he was out of sympathy with the recovery program.

Earl C. Smith, of Chicago, chairman of the national corn-hog program, said Secretary Wallace's plan to aid corn and hog growers failed to meet hte need of immediately raising hog prices.

Farmers Rap Administration.

St. Paul, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A secret meeting of directors of the National Farm Holiday Association drafted the proclamation designed for release Friday afternoon, which laid down the following ultimatum to the Nation:

"We will pay no taxes or interest until we have first cared for our families.

"We will pay no interest bearing debts until we receive the cost of production.

"We will buy only that which complete necessity demands.

"We will stay in the homes which we now occupy.

"We will not sell our products unless we receive the cost of production, but will exchange our products with labor and the unemployed for the things we need on the farm, on the basis of cost of production for both parties.

The directors decreed that the strike "will remain in operation until our farm products bring the cost of production and until we are refinanced under the terms of the Frazier bill."

"We still stand ready to support the Administration in any program that will recognize the farmer's fundamental right to ask for and receive the cost of production for that portion of farm products consumed in the United States," the proclamation set forth.

Crop Reduction Criticized.

"We ask for the reflation of the currency, that is, to increase the amount of money in circulation to our normal standard.

"At the last session of Congress we asked for cost of production on that portion of farm products consumed in the United States. This plea was rejected.

"When prices of other commodities and services were being fixed by codes we asked for a code for agriculture. Instead of being granted a code we were given a wheat reduction plan, a corn reduction plan and a cotton reduction plan. Food and necessities of human life are

Movie Cameraman Killed Filming Artillery Charge

William Casel, 27, of Brooklyn, was crushed to death by the hoofs of charging field artillery horses at Fort Myer, during the filming of "Rodney" by the RKO Co.

William J. Miller, another cameraman working on the scene, escaped. He was treated for scratches on the body at the Army post hospital.

Casel was lying on the ground with his camera to take a "close-up" of eight heavy caissons and gun carriage pulled by 96 horses. The scene was a charge. The camera had been moved closer to correct a fault in two previous rehearsals.

Following a lead horse, the carriage thundered toward Casel. At a point a few feet from the camera the lead horse stumbled, causing the entire charge to swerve out of line and into the cameraman. Two carriages passed over Casel's body.

Miller, taking a "long shot," had time to flee the chargers. He was knocked down by a wheel of one of the caissons as the charge passed him.

Walter Huston, star of the picture, did not take part in the scene, RKO officials said. His part was being played by Corp. Paul Lazur, of Fort Myer, selected a few days ago to substitute for Huston in the "dangerous shots."

An inquest was ordered by Acting Coronor A. Magruder MacDonald.

Return Flight to U. S. By Lindberghs Rumored

Southampton, Eng., Oct. 19 (U.P.). Rumors were current tonight that Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh intended to fly back to the United States, presumably via the Azores and the Southern route.

Four to Die for Killing by Gas After Auto, Rum, Poison Fail

New York, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—The case of Michael Malloy, the man who unwittingly refused to be murdered, approached conclusion today when a jury found four men guilty of killing the rum-soaked derelict to collect $1,788 in life insurance.

The last chapter of the tale is to be written in the electric chair at Sing Sing.

It started a year ago when Malloy, constantly in an alcoholic stupor, was frequenting a speakeasy operated by Anthony Marino.

Marino, his bartender, Joe Murphy, and Daniel Kreisberg, fruit dealer, decided to make some money on the homeless Malloy. They took insurance on him, then set out to kill him.

They filled him with large quantities of liquor, thinking Malloy would drink himself to death. But Malloy thrived on alcohol. Then they served him wood alcohol, and Malloy lapped it up.

The plotters went to Frank Pasqua, undertaker, with their problem. Pasqua suggested that Malloy be killed by an automobile. Harry Green, cab driver, was hired.

They got Malloy staggering drunk, took him to the street and Green ran over him. Just to make it certain, Green backed up and ran his cab over his man again.

A few weeks later Malloy walked into Marino's speakeasy and said: "Lemme have a couple of shots of that good alky."

The plotters, still undaunted, served Malloy sardines containing pieces of chopped tin. Malloy smacked his lips and asked for more. They pickled oysters in wood alcohol for Malloy. He stood his ground.

The game became desperate. The men put Malloy's identification in another derelict's pocket and had him run over. He recovered.

Kitty Hawk Scenes Among Those 'Remembered' by Diners.

History was brushed aside last night and as the musty pages turned their course to the year 1903, reminiscences picked up the trail of Orville Wright.

Gathered around at a dinner given by Former Senator Hiram Bingham in honor of the governors and advisory board of the National Aeronautic Association at the Metropolitan Club, the patriarchs of aviation gave tongue to their memories.

Now silver gray, Capt. William Tate, voluble spokesman for the then isolated community of Kitty Hawk, N. C., told his story.

Oft-Repeated Story.

"What will be, will be, even if it never was," the story runs. Orville Wright listens, sometimes nodding assent and chuckling over the oft-repeated yarn. Seated at Bingham's side, all of the speakers hinge their verbal pictures on some event connected with his feats.

"Jim asked me," Capt. Tate begins again, "who is that fellow?" Well, I answer him, "He's Orville Wright and he's going to fly."

The men gathered around have heard his story, or so they say, but every word is precious as they lean back and then whisper, "Well, sir, the old man is in good form tonight."

And Wright was not alone in that gathering of pioneers. Maj. Gen. Benjamin Fulouis, now chief of the Army Air Corps, was the Bennie Fulouis, of Kitty Hawk and Fort Myer. As first service flier of the world, he carved his name into aviation history while the Wright brothers looked on with a paternal eye.

Story of First Air Mail.

The picture shifted to France as Sydney Tiet described the aviation pioneers of that country. Himself one of their number, he described the enthusiasm of French sportsmen when they heard of the flight on the coast of North Carolina.

Delegates to the annual session of the association will begin their deliberations this morning and will continue in meeting until tomorrow, but the picture of America in first flight will at these sessions be replaced with the invention and progress of today.

Meet to Protect Investors

unteer their services, with governmental blessing and approval, to conserve the interests of investors whose foreign securities are in some stage of default.

Baker, Lowden, Adams, Clark and several others have already been consulted and are understood to be willing to assist. The Government is prepared to furnish them with its fullest aid and cooperation, whenever and wherever possible, and will contribute essential expenses for preliminary organization.

Another purpose of the White House is to supplant the scattered organizations of bondholders now existing, which are ineffective and in some cases unrepresentative. Moreover, the President's advisers have told him that the field has been invaded by certain promoters who are classed as racketeers, pretending to be bona-fide intermediaries.

Some Groups Excluded.

Banking groups which have had a hand in floating foreign issues upon the American market have been excluded from membership on the proposed new agency. The intention is to assemble an independent group which will single-mindedly represent the best interests of the investing public.

This plan has already been approved by Secretary of State Hull, by Secretary of Commerce Roper and Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, who gave their assent before letters were sent inviting prominent Americans to come here for consultation with the President.

When the diplomatic and other pitfalls in the procedure provided by the securities act were described to the President, he vetoed the idea of a governmental collection agency, though presumably it is still advocated by Senator Hiram Johnson, author of the bill.

The State Department view was that foreign governments would not take kindly to dunning approaches by an American Government agency, acting as such, and that, in particular, it would serve to prejudice relations with Latin America, where the most serious defaults took place. At an hour when the administration is soliciting good will across the Rio Grande it would be a great mistake, it was felt, to have an arm of the Government reaching out to collect debts due to American citizens.

Follow British Pattern.

The pattern to be followed is that of the British council of foreign bondholders, created 60 years ago, backed by, but not a part of the British government. Expenses will be defrayed by bondholders, save for the sums needed for initial organization, and generally the new group will function as an independent protective committee of national scope.

That the original Federal plan was misleading to the public has been attested by a flood of letters from unlucky investors, who seem to think that their Government either will collect for them or make good of its own account. In some cases the Trade Commission has been asked to collect on ancient defaulted issues long since past hope of redemption.

The proposed group will not be asked by the President to act directly as a bondholders' committee, but to supervise selection of representative committees in the case of various defaulting countries. The purpose is to create a supervising group of prominent Americans in whom the general public may have full confidence.

Principal Defaulters.

Department of Commerce figures at the end of 1931 recorded $7,834,218,000 of American holdings of foreign securities, exclusive of an almost equal amount of holdings of common stocks in foreign corporations and other "direct investments." Nor does the figure include short-term credits or war debts.

The principal defaults listed for 1931-1932, by countries, were:

Canada	$3,320,000
Australia	22,000,000
Bolivia	54,423,500
Brazil	199,209,000
Chile	257,909,500
Colombia	120,148,800

Nearly half of the American holdings in South American bonds have been in default, to an aggregate of $704,706,330, according to estimates at the end of 1931. Hence the proposed new agency's chief field will be in Latin America. Trade Commission rough estimates are that all told about $2,000,000,000 of American-owned foreign securities are involved in some degree of difficulty though by no means this much is in complete default.

Chase Bank Loans Will Be Questioned

As Pecora yesterday pried into trading activities of Chase affiliates, with Wiggin on the stand, he sought an admission that trading accounts and "pool" operations were one and the same.

Wiggin would not concede this.

Wiggin testified first to a trading account in Chase National Bank shares started in September, 1927, by the Metpotan Corporation jointly with McClure, Jones & Co., Potter & Co., and Blair & Co. He said the following spring the syndicate sold for $13,290,970 stock it had purchased at $13,240,356, netting a profit of $50,621.

Another syndicate was started with the same members on April 18, 1928. For this account, 59,522 shares were purchased at a cost of $50,180,175. He said the stock was sold the following year for $50,734,935, a profit of $554,760.

He told how a third trading account, managed by Dominick & Dominick, in which Metpotan Corporation and Wiggin's privately owned Shermar Corporation participated, realized $1,452,314 in profits, distributed among the participants.

A fourth syndicate, in which Metpotan and Shermar participated jointly, lost $35,362 if income tax methods of computations were used as a standard, the witness said. He said Metpotan actually received $25,780 of this back. The account was closed prematurely, without exercising an option on 30,000 shares of Shermar's holdings.

Pecora asked is it was "God-given" because some of the syndicate holdings "went up almost 400 points."

Wiggin defended Chase National Bank's organization of Chase Securities Corporation and Metpotan Corporation on the ground they "provided a buying power for Chase stock when it was necessary," serving to stabilize the market.

Inviting the committee to look into the Chase Bank's Cuban loans, Aldrich, brother-in-law to John D. Rockefeller, jr., declared that "not a dollar was paid to President Machado or to any other officer or employe of the Cuban government or to any one else directly or indirectly by way of loan, commission or gratuity."

"But any statement or implication that the Chase National Bank or any of its representatives has sought in any way to suppress any facts concerning this financing or any other activities in Cuba is false."

He said total loans to Cuba by his bank and associates totaled $80,000,000, including $20,000,000 5½ per cent certificates maturing serially to June, 1933; $40,000,000 of 5½ per cent gold bonds, due June 30, 1945, and a bank credit of $20,000,000.

"All serial certificates except $867,000 principal amount now held by the Chase National Bank and associates have been paid in full," he said. "Interest on all these obligations to June 30, 1933, has been paid promptly when due."

NRA Acts to End Mine Strike War

to attempt to operate a mine in the disturbed areas with miners belonging to both organizations without first reaching an agreement which would actually end hostilities."

History of Dispute.

The dispute, he said in the report which followed an investigation on the scene, developed a year ago when a number of miners left the United Mine Workers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, and formed a "Progressive" union. The purpose of the Progressives, he added, was to undermine the older organization, gather in its members to their own banner and to claim their jobs.

All of the actions which have led to bloodshed, he said, have been sponsored by the Progressives, with the result that operators, who are willing to continue working under union contracts, are handicapped in beating the pathway back to recovery.

"The day of my arrival in Springfield," re reported, "the local newspaper carried the story of the rioting at Harrisburg * * *.

"The conditions at Harrisburg mean either that the leaders of these miners have no control over their followers, or that they are promoting armed violence to accomplish their aims.

"It should be apparent that those who wish to avoid responsibility for continuing a reign of terror should accept willingly the proposal of an agreement for the permanent settlement of this controversy substantially along the lines now suggested."

"This controversy can not be decided by force; and the sooner an agreement is reached the sooner will thousands of coal miners in the State be returned to work at the hours and wages insured by law."

Johnson told newspapermen last night he had been given to understand that the Illinois proposal was satisfactory to the United Mine Workers. Otherwise, he said, he had heard no reaction.

"Captive Mine" Impasse.

The "captive mine" problem was laid back on the White House doorstep yesterday when President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, indicated he believed that only forceful administration action could settle the controversy between the steel companies which own the mines and the union.

Lewis said that conference between union officials and captive mine owners in the Pennsylvania fields had reached a definite impasse because the steel owners had not lived up to promises to bargain in good faith with union representatives.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Senate racket committee will move its hearings to Chicago next Monday for a two-day period of discussions and conferences with law-enforcement and public officials.

J. R. Nutt Quits As Treasurer Of Republicans

George F. Getz of Chicago Named to National Committee Post.

J. R. Nutt, Cleveland, for five years treasurer of the Republican national committee, has resigned, and will be succeeded by George F. Getz, Chicago coal magnate, it was announced yesterday by Everett Sanders, chairman of the committee.

Nutt, who was responsible for collecting funds for Herbert Hoover's two Presidential campaigns, told the committee he felt he had "served long enough" and the responsibilities "should be passed to another."

He expressed a desire to resign some time ago, but was persuaded to wait until a successor could be found. Sanders, in accepting the resignation, expressed his regret, but agreed that Nutt's "devoted services" gave him the right to ask that the "responsibilities be passed to another."

Aided Red Cross.

Getz, who assumes the party's financial affairs, is president of the Eureka Coal & Dock Co., president of the Globe Coal Co., chairman of the Board of United States Distributing Corporation, New York; vice president of the Federal Coal Co., member of the advisory committee of the Consumers Co., of Chicago, and a director of the Continental-Illinois Bank & Trust Co.

He was an associate director of the American Red Cross in 1917-18, in charge of general relief work.

He was born in Mechanicsburg, Pa., but he has lived in Chicago since he was 14.

Letter of Resignation.

Nutt's letter of resignation follows:

"For more than five years I have served as treasurer of the Republican National Committee. During that time I have been responsible for the collection and disbursement of campaign funds for two Presidential elections and one Congressional election.

"This long service, which I have regarded as a public one, while arduous at times, has brought me much personal satisfaction. My relations with four National chairmen have been most pleasant and congenial—none more so than with yourself.

"However, I have reached the definite conclusion that I have served in this capacity long enough, and that the time has arrived when the responsibilities of the national treasurership should be passed to another.

"I, therefore, respectfully tender my resignation as treasurer of the Republican National Committee, to take effect as early as I can be relieved."

Ulm Beats Record In Australia Flight

Reduces Time From Britain by 11 Hours.

Derby, West Australia, Oct. 19 (AP). Charles T. P. Ulm and three companions arrived here at 11:15 a. m. (Eastern standard time) today, establishing a new record for a flight from England.

The fliers beat the record of Wing Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith by 11 hours. The latter's time was 7 days 4 hours and 44 minutes for the flight by stages.

In a final burst of speed after it had seemed the chances were gone, the quartet completed the journey from England in 6 days 17 hours and 45 minutes.

Japan Assails Nazi Race Rule

Protests Discrimination in Being Classified by Color.

Tokyo, Oct. 19 (AP).—Japan has protested to Germany against Nazi racial discrimination as anti-Japanese, a foreign office spokesman revealed today.

He added the Japanese government and the people of Japan are "highly indignant at Germany's branding us inferior." The spokesman pointed out that even in the United States the Japanese are not subjected to the same treatment as Negroes.

Ambassador Matsuzo Nagai at Berlin reported to the foreign office he had visited the vice minister of German foreign affairs calling his attention to "the fact that speeches of Nazi leaders and legislation by the German government have specified discriminatory treatment of the Jews, Negroes and other colored races—banning mixtures thereof with the Germanic race."

Nagai declared the Japanese government would be gravely concerned if the German government and its people practice such racial prejudice against the Japanese.

D. C. Retail Clerks Urged to Organize

Local Plans Campaign to Gain Members.

Declaring retail clerks do not realize benefits they can secure under the NRA, J. D. Morrison, secretary of the District local of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, last night urged the organization spur its membership drive.

Rights of clerks to organize under section 7 of the general code as well as under the proposed code for retail stores were stressed by Morrison and Adolph Siegel, president of the local. Grocery clerks were urged to take advantage of the right to organize.

R. A. Dickson, president of the Central Labor Union of the District, spoke for the American Federation of Labor, of which the retail clerks group is an affiliated member. He stressed the necessity of labor fighting for all its rights and asked for cooperation with the President in the work of the NRA.

Phone Group Names Agent In NRA Cases

J. K. O'Shaughnessy Will Represent Long Lines Department.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8706 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 2363.

J. K. O'Shaughnessy, of Bethesda, Md., for 18 years an employe in the long lines department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., has been selected representative of the employes of that department before the NRA.

His appointment followed a conference of employes in that department which voted to seek representation before the NRA independently of the Employes Association, which is a "company union," they claim. The nomination is subject to ratification by the 185 branches of the Employers Association representing approximately 6,000 plant employes of the long lines department. If ratified, all other branches of the long lines department, including traffic, accounting and general office, will be invited to participate. The movement, it is said, probably will result in the creation of a new organization which will be self-sustaining and entirely independent of company management.

The conference directed the assembling of data relating to hours of employment, salaries, retirement privileges, unemployment insurance and dismissal wages and the preparation of the employes' case before the NRA.

Mills Pleads For Election Of LaGuardia

Assails Tammany Hall in Speech Demanding Machine Ouster.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Ogden L. Mills in an addres tonight pleaded for support of the fusion mayoralty candidacy of Fiorello H. La Guardia with an address in which he assailed Tammany Hall and asserted the city's government can not be changed without "cleaning out the machine."

The former Secretary of the Treasury and prominent Republican said that he had a "high respect" for Joseph V. McKee, the independent candidate, and that he would make "a good administrator under normal circumstances."

He referred to Democratic National Chairman James J. Farley and Democratic Bronx leader Edward J. Flynn as among those who appeared "in the political byways and highways" to "battle for the right" after it was shown by the primaries that the power of Tammany was "disintegrating."

La Guardia, who lashed his opponents for "bossism," was accused by McKee of "snapping the whip of patronage to serve his own political ambitions."

LaGuardia charged that McKee, as president of the board of aldermen, had restored to office Francis T. McEnemy, whom he had removed, because "McEnemy has the goods on Mr. McKee."

The exchange of personalities came into the campaign as the two candidates, seeking to overthrow Tammany Hall by defeating Mayor John P. O'Brien, began delving into each other's public records.

McKee, searching LaGuardia's record as president of the board of aldermen years ago, charged his opponent was guilty of the same type of reprisals as Mayor O'Brien, who recently discharged several of the independent candidate's Bronx County backers.

Attacking McKee's action in restoring McEnemy to his office, La Guardia said that Senator John J. McNaboe, whose support McKee said he would not accept, "knows all that Mr. McEnemy knows about Mr. McKee." LaGuardia did not elaborate on his charge.

Lead Increased By LaGuardia

Poll Shows He Has Big Vote Over McKee and O'Brien.

New York, Oct. 19.—Fiorello LaGuardia, fusion candidate, increased his lead over Joseph V. McKee (independent) in the third tabulation of the Literary Digest's New York City mayoralty poll, released tonight. Mayor John P. O'Brien (Democrat) showed a net loss. The standings:

Punish Mobs, Ritchie Urged

Governor Told He Can Help Civilization by Prosecution.

Atlanta, Oct. 19 (AP).—Dr. Will W. Alexander, director of the Interracial Commission, today telegraphed Gov. Ritchie of Maryland to "set challenging precedent to those States farther South where officials habitually fail to apprehend and convict members of lynching mobs."

"Maryland has an opportunity to render most valuable service to civilization by indicting and convicting members of the mob at Princess Anne," Dr. Alexander said. "Such action would set challenging precedent to those States farther South where officials habitually fail to apprehend and convict members of lynching mobs, even when confronted as at present with marked increase of mob violence."

The Commission on Interracial Cooperation consists of leading members of the white and Negro races and works for the mutual interests of both. It has taken a leading part in fighting lynching, not only in the South, but throughout the United States.

Judge Opens Cell to Mother of Five Children.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—For the sake of five children, Judge Harry M. Fisher today vacated a contempt order to send Mrs. Konstancya Szymczyk to jail.

The husband and father, Anton Szymczyk, however, must go to jail, Fisher ruled, until he has accounted for $700 rentals received from his apartment building which owed the county $12,000 in taxes.

The sentence was imposed yesterday.

"I have no sympathy for you, madam," Fisher told Mrs. Szymczyk, "and it is only for the sake of the children that I am vacating the order."

U. S. Requested To Prosecute Mob Lynchers

Harlem and Negro League Protest Violence to President.

Several demonstrations were held. One group of Negroes massed before the offices of the Liberator, newspaper published by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights.

An appeal to President Roosevelt, asking Federal intervention to stop lynching, was telegraphed by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"The association urges with all possible vigor," the telegram said, "that you, as leader of the Nation, personally instruct the Attorney General to proceed to the full extent with the law against lynchers."

The league asked the arrest of the mob leaders and demanded the removal of State's Attorney John B. Robbins and Judge Robert F. Duer.

Counterfeit Quarters Cause Arrest of Man

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 19 (AP).—A man who gave his name as Charles Brown, of Charleston, W. Va., is under arrest here on a charge of passing 25-cent counterfeit coins.

Police Capt. Mark Reynolds said he found several of the coins on Brown when he arrested him.

Critics of Lynching Arouse Anger of Princess Anne Folk

By a Staff Correspondent.

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 19.—Ordinarily this is a sleepy little town. It is wide-awake tonight—but grimlipped. One fact stands out. In the minds of Princess Anne folk the lynching of George Armwood, colored, last night definitely is a thing of the past—not something for which there may be a future reckoning.

If you listen to some of them, the lynching wasn't the work of Princess Ann folk at all. It was done by outsiders gathered from miles away. Others shrug their shoulders.

A few boldly justify it. But if you accept the general feeling, it was the spontaneous explosion of a slow resentment smoldering in the minds of the people of the Eastern Shore for two years.

Criticism Resented.

People of this region apparently rather feel that they had a nasty job to do and now that it is done they don't care to remember too much about it. No one could be found who said he felt a serious mistake had been made and outside criticism is resented.

"I am a native of the Eastern Shore and I'm proud of it," one man said when asked about his attitude.

"There has been too much talk and not enough justice around here," said one man.

"If you want to know who caused that lynching, look for a bunch of Communists; they were responsible," said another.

Reporters Warned.

All of those quoted are responsible citizens, but requested their names not be revealed. Both in Princess Anne and Salisbury, 14 miles from here, newspaper reporters were warned last night that they should leave town. The warning was passed quietly by citizens as they met reporters.

The reference to too much law and the bunch of Communists both concerned the case of Euel Lee, colored, arrested two years ago, charged with murdering four persons in adjoining Worcester County and who still has not paid the only penalty considered sufficient in this section.

"Blame him for what happened," one man said. "He cost Worcester County $17,000 and Lee hasn't been hanged yet."

Residents Righteous.

Princess Anne is the center of a modern farming community. Residents take a righteous attitude toward the Armswood lynching. They do not hesitate to say that under similar circumstances, the same thing would occur again. It occurred two years ago, when a colored man was taken from a hospital at Salisbury and lynched.

The population of Somerset County, of which Princess Anne is the county seat, is about two-fifths colored. Citizens here say the Negroes living in this community are good citizens. Outsiders are the ones who cause trouble, they say.

Princess Anne has a population of about 1,000, yet witnesses who saw the mob about the jail insist it numbered about 3,000.

"The automobiles came into town during the afternoon," one man said.

"Most of the license plates were those of Virginia and Delaware. The town was filled with strangers. In the evening the streets looked like a continuous funeral procession."

Each citizen questioned insisted he knew of no one living in Princess Anne who participated in the lynching.

There are reports that some one made systematic telephone calls to people from miles around, telling them to come here. Whether the calls originated in Princess Anne or elsewhere no one seems to know. There are also reports that a number of men drove about the country telling farmers to gather Wednesday night.

Welcome Inquiry.

As to an investigation, citizens say they welcome it. In fact they insist that there should be an investigation. At to the result of this investigation, they merely shrug.

"No man ever has been convicted of participating in a lynching in this district, and no man ever will be," one citizen said.

In the investigation into the Salisbury lynching two years ago, more than 100 persons appeared before the county grand jury. The jury reported it could not find evidence.

Until two years ago, 20 years had elapsed since the last previous lynching. Then a colored man shot a carnival proprietor and tried to escape by boat. More than a score of motorboats set out to capture him. The body was brought ashore.

Princess Anne Quiet.

During the late 1890s there were three lynchings in this neighborhood within a few months.

Tonight Princess Anne was quiet. Few people were on the streets.

It is impossible to say that the entire community is of the opinion that justice was done Wednesday night, but out of all who were interviewed not one would say that there was not some justification for the action.

"Sure, I should be a good citizen and say it was terrible, just terrible," said one man.

Negroes Send Lynch Protest To Roosevelt

Howard University Group Cites Armwood Death at Princess Anne.

An appeal to President Roosevelt to stop lynching was made yesterday by the student council of Howard University. The appeal was prompted by the lynching of George Armwood, colored, at Princess Anne, Md., Wednesday night.

The letter to the President signed by Harrison D. Hobson, council president, follows:

"Mr. President:

"The Student Council of Howard University, representing 2,000 students and the spirit of 10,000,000 Negroes, is clamoring for the birth of a New Negro. We take this opportunity to remind you of the inactivity and inefficiency of our National Government, in the handling of the lynching question—a question pertinent to all Negroes throughout the land.

Lax Attitude Deplored.

"The young Negro deplores the lax attitude that the Executive, the Judiciary, and the Legislative bodies of our Nation have assumed in the matter of controlling lynching. For 67 years, the lynching and inhuman treatment of a depressed people—who have given their all for the support of American ideals—has constantly appeared and reappeared without any effort on the part of our National Government to see that justice is meted out to the violators of our civil rights.

"At times there have been feeble attempts by some of our legislators to alleviate the lynching evil. The most prominent effort was the Dyer Anti-Lynch bill, but this and other efforts have failed because of the lack of the forceful support of these measures by the Executive head. Because of this unconcerned attitude by our National Government, the promulgaters of mob violence have become bolder and are slowly marching upon our National Capital, for the last episode of this horrible drama occurred in less than 100 miles of Washington.

"We are calling to your attention the lynching of George Armwood, a Negro suspected of assaulting a 70-year-old white woman, at Princess Anne, Md., October 18, 1933.

Lincoln's Belief Cited.

"The Great Emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, reminded us of the fact that all 'men are created equal' and pledged the American Government (county, State and National) to the support of this ideal. For threescore seven years, the Negro has been patiently awaiting the enforcement of this principle by those controlling the destiny of our Nation.

"The United States Government, while not openly expressing its approval of the method employed in the settling of these alleged attacks as Germany has in the case of the Jews, has apparently given its tacit sanction to the wrong-doing. For well over a half century, these minority problems have been left to the barbaric impulse of the mob, which fact is not at all worthy of the civilization which we profess. Since the inauguration of the New Deal, mobs have continued to ply their trade and to take the law in their hands. Only last night, they received direct sanction for their dastardly deeds from a local commander of the American Legion.

"Such incidents as these only serve to incite other lawless acts and to quicken the pulse of the mob spirit. We, therefore, call upon you, Mr. President, as a last resort of an oppressed people, to stem the tide of mob violence. We trust this matter will be given your immediate attention."

Telegraphs to Ritchie.

Charles H. Houston, member of the Board of Education and vice dean of the Howard University Law School, who was active in the Crawford extradition case in Massachusetts, yesterday sent the following telegram to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland:

"Unless Maryland is determined on relentless prosecution of mob and all State officials concerned in the Armwood lynching, Negroes would prefer to be spared the farce of the usual fake investigation, and to leave the shame of Maryland naked before the world."

Harrison Renews Inflation Demand

Holds Paper Money Would Not Harm U. S. Credit.

Laurel, Miss., Oct. 19 (AP).—A renewed demand for currency inflation was made today by Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Finance Committee, who said his citation of "the failure of the administration" to use all the inflationary weapons with which it was empowered was "not in a spirit of criticism."

Harrison told an industrial fair crowd that "there are some of us who believe that the credit of the Government would not be impaired if under the provisions of the legislation we passed, Treasury notes in the amount of not more than $3,000,000,000 should be issued by the Government."

Graf Leaves Brazil For Chicago Fair

American 10-Month Baby Among 17 Passengers.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 19 (AP).—A half hour after its arrival here today, the Graf Zeppelin departed for Chicago with 17 passengers, most of them bound for the Century of Progress Exposition.

Among the passengers was Richard Momsen, American lawyer, of Rio de Janeiro, his wife and three children—the youngest only 10 months old and the Zeppelin's youngest passenger.

Ad Ban Urged In Rockefeller Liquor Survey

Six-Point Program Laid Down to Govern Alcohol Sales.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—In the belief that advertising of liquor, other than light beer, should be "rigidly restricted or forbidden," where possible, the Rockefeller liquor survey tonight laid down a six-point program:

Newspaper and magazine advertising to contain only the name, address, date of incorporation of a manufacturer or dealer, a coat of arms or trade-mark, and a description in the simplest terms of the article or articles dealt in, such as "Kentucky Rye Whisky," or "Cointreau," or "Italian Vermouth."

"All additional advertising matter, including slogans, to be prohibited, except on approval of the State Licensing Board.

"All outdoor advertising, except on premises where sold or manufactured, to be prohibited. * * *

"All advertising matter attached to vehicles owned by manufacturers, distributors and dealers to be subject to the same restrictions as publication advertising.

"All advertising through use of calendars, pencils, golf balls, thermometers, free samples, cut-rate sales, &c., to be prohibited.

"Radio advertising to be subject to the general rules outlined for publications."

Moderate penalties, especially the first few years, were recommended.

Removal Asked For Gov. Ritchie

the man died by hanging," he said.

Judge Duer said that he could not say how the investigation would be carried out.

"I intend to confer with my associates and until I have had an opportunity to do that there is nothing much I can say," he said.

Armwood, brought here from Baltimore less than 17 hours earlier to face accusations, was wrenched from the protection of 25 State policemen. His body was left in a gasoline-soaked pyre on the main business corner.

The mob of more than a thousand men, women and youths, stopped temporarily by a tear gas attack from the State police, stormed the jail, battered down the heavy steel doors and after ripping most of the clothes from his body and fastening a rope around his neck, dragged the Negro into the street.

Eight defenders of the jail fell during the attack, cut by flying stones and bricks. Among them was Capt. McK. Johnson, State police head, knocked unconscious. Several members of the mob were seen being carried away but their number and injuries were not revealed.

Armwood was captured Monday near Pocomoke City. Police took him to Baltimore for safe keeping from mobs in Eastern Shore communities. Early yesterday, over protests of the State police, he was returned to Princess Anne in preparation for the convening of the grand jury next week.

Police said Armwood signed a confession.

Despite assurance of Judge Duer and Robins to the governor "that there would be no trouble," a mob began collecting early last night outside the jail. When it became threatening, additional State policemen and National Guardsmen from Pocomoke City and Crisfield were ordered to the scene.

Judge Duer, interrupting his dinner to drive to the scene, made a personal plea to the mob to let the Negro remain in jail—promising a speedy trial for the prisoner.

But his plea was answered from the group by cries of "How about Euel Lee?" and "We ain't gonna have no Euel Lee in Somerset County."

"Apparently few people understand the governor's authority in such matters," said Ritchie, when informed of the Socialists' resolution and the general criticism. "So I have asked the attorney general to set them straight."

"Gov. Ritchie had no authority in the matter," said Lane. "As a matter of fact, under the Maryland law neither did the judge nor the State's attorney. There is just one individual responsible for the custody of a prisoner, just one individual that can order his removal, and that's the sheriff.

"All Gov. Ritchie could do, in fact, all anybody except Sheriff Luther Dougherty could do, was to advise the sheriff. And when Sheriff Dougherty came to Baltimore to get that prisoner, he was acting within his rights and neither the governor nor anyone else could stop him. The Maryland law does not give the governor as much authority as some other States."

Amnesia Hint Spurs Officers Seeking Kapitz

Missing Professor May Have Been Injured in Car Crash.

Police last night were pushing the search for Dr. Seigfried Kapitz, 28-year-old Georgetown University professor, on the theory he may be a victim of amnesia as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident.

Dr. Kapitz, chief technician at the Georgetown School of Dentistry, left his home at 1460 Belmont street northwest, on Monday, to return to the university.

His wife, stricken with grief, told police she feared he may be suffering from an injury received in a collision last Saturday near Philadelphia. Though apparently uninjured, Dr. Kapitz may be suffering from shock, his wife said.

While Mrs. Kapitz and the professor's associates scouted a theory of suicide, they admitted he appeared depressed. Mrs. Kapitz ascribed this to worry over the accident.

A native of Flensburg, Germany, Dr. Kapitz obtained training in Berlin and for three years taught in a New York dental school. He has been at Georgetown a year and a half.

that entailed by the use of molasses, yesterday's action was in accord with the clamor of farmers for distillers to follow a "patriotic" course by insuring a market for American corn and rye.

Announcement of the result of a somewhat hectic two-day session of the distillers' committee was made by Owsley Brown, of Louisville, chairman.

The distillers were reported pleased with their understanding.

Blackstrap molasses is imported in large quantities.

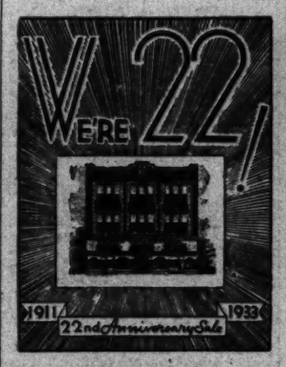
Rectified Whisky Probable.

There will be enough pure, usable whisky to supply demands immediately after repeal despite the embargo on liquor importations, Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, estimated yesterday.

"There won't be much bonded, straight whisky, he said, but the 4,000,000 gallons of aged stock now on hand can be expanded tenfold through rectification to give "pure, usable" liquor for thirsty consumers. He set a rough minimum of 20,000,000 gallons of rectified whisky available after December 5.

Trade advantages accruing from control of liquor importations were emphasized yesterday in connection with the embargo on foreign liquors, ordered by President Roosevelt. No final date was specified in the order, and it was concluded the embargo would be effective until after repeal at least.

Meanwhile, efforts to solve repeal problems were being made. Attorney General Cummings announced he will prepare a ruling on liquor advertisements. Other governmental agencies studied taxing angles preparatory to the drafting of White House recommendations to Congress.



General Johnson tells us that NOW is the time to BUY . . . He'd tell you so on general principles—even if we weren't celebrating our 22nd Anniversary—BECAUSE right now you can get more for your money from any reputable merchant than you can get later on.

But this sale doubly emphasizes the wisdom of buying now. For instance: $30 to $40 Hart Schaffner & Marx and Raleigh Suits, Topcoats and Tuxedos now $24.75 . . . $1.95 and $2.50 Shirts now $1.55 . . . Raleigh "5" Hats now $3.15 . . . Raleigh "8" Shoes now $5.35 . . . and so on . . . Extraordinary values throughout the store . . . NOW, indeed, is the time to BUY!

League Is Told Officially Reich Has Withdrawn

Hitler Reiterates Demand for Equality, Claiming He Wants Peace.

Berlin, Oct. 19 (AP).—The German government officially notified the general secretary of the League of Nations tonight of its withdrawal, carrying out a decision announced last Saturday even though reports had intimated she might remain.

Only a few hours before the communication was sent to Geneva the officially inspired Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz asserted "it will be easy to find a basis of an understanding for regulating the equality question" if other powers define their disarmament intentions.

Simultaneously Chancellor Adolf Hitler demanded his government be accorded equal rights, said Germany wanted only peace, and maintained the Reich has heavy domestic burdens.

But in the midst of this talk of amity, Finance Minister von Schwerin Krosigk issued a decree which, indicating that Germany is preparing against air attacks, provided that individuals or firms advancing German air defenses will be allowed tax reductions.

The demand for equality—which led Germany last Saturday to announce her withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations—was reiterated by the chancellor.

In an interview he declared that "as a statesman, I will never set my signature to a treaty which as a gentleman in private life I also would not sign, though I go to ruin thereby."

He indicated a wish for better relations with Poland and France and disavowed any warlike intentions.

Germany, the chancellor went on, is fighting Communism and privation, and feels herself capable of territorial expansion.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

ONE of the major reports made at the District Federation of Federal Employes Unions that met with approval was that on Hospitalization, submitted by Miss Belle A. Troutland, N. F. F. E. Local No. 105, Women's Union, Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

BAKER.

Excerpts of the report follow:

"In 1919 when the war work brought to Washington large numbers of employes, most of whom were women, the problem of taking care of this new group who were away from their homes and in the midst of strangers, was a serious one. At that time Miss Gertrude McNally (N. F. F. E. Secretary) suggested that we organize a Hospital Guild for members of Local No. 105. A committee made contracts with the hospitals in the District, but owing to the great increase in the population and crowded conditions in the hospitals, we were unable to secure a contract. We were advised that as soon as buildings had been enlarged, the hospitals would be glad to make an agreement. We watched the situation closely from 1919 to 1925 and in 1926 secured a contract with Providence Hospital, effective January 1, 1927. This marked the formation of the first Hospital Guild among Government employes.

"We now have hospital guilds in four local unions—No. 2, No. 105, No. 261 and No. 262. Dues in these guilds are $5 yearly. In order to join one must first be a member of a local N. F. F. E. union and have been in good standing for at least six months. The guilds have contracts with Providence Hospital, but Locals No. 2, No. 105 and No. 262 give an allowance per day to members who desire to choose some other hospital.

"Members may secure the services of a well known surgeon for operations at a fee of $50. The guilds also have contracts with the International Rescue Service, which supplies ambulance and other service for a small fee. Contracts also are had with two physicians, two dentists, a physiotherapist, an osteopath and an optometrist. Discounts are allowed for X-rays.

"We have had one meeting to discuss the sponsoring of a convalescent home, where members may, upon leaving the hospital, spend their time of convalescence for a small fee. Edgar Graham, of Local No. 262, thinks there are good possibilities in the proposition. We hope soon to have a plan to submit on the convalescent home project."

Officers of the four guilds are:

Local No. 2, O. B. Bowman, president; Mrs. M. Dorothy Dick, vice president; Albert M. Reising, secretary, and Henry G. Nolda, treasurer.

Local No. 105, Miss Mignon Miller, president; Miss Gertrude Marlow, vice president; Miss Belle A. Trouland, secretary; Miss Minnie D. Stevens, treasurer, and Miss Maude Miller, trustee.

Local No. 261, Mrs. Rebekah Pedigo, president; Miss Gertrude E. Coyle, vice president; Miss Loretta Corcoran, secretary-treasurer, and W. S. Kinney, guardian.

Local 262, W. H. Clark, president; Miss Mabel O. Mathias, vice president; Mrs. Ola G. King, secretary, and A. D. Sartwell, treasurer.

Condolences are extended to three Federal employes and their families in the death of Cortland D. Van Hoesen at his home here Wednesday. Among those who will attend the funeral this afternoon at 3818 Albemarle street northwest, are his father, Finley M., of Postmaster's Accounts, G. A. O.; his brother, Garret M., Internal Revenue, and his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Whitcomb, A. A. A.

E. F. Giddings, Miscellaneous Tax, Internal Revenue, is ill at home.

Mrs. Anna Casey, War, has returned from a vacation with friends in New York.

Mrs. Alice Fleischman, War, spent 10 days recently at the World's Fair.

Mrs. Evelyn Ford, chief of Records Division, National Guard Bureau, is spending her vacation in Chicago.

M. A. Emerson (*), chief of Division of Paper Custody, Treasury, is much improved after an illness and is back at his desk at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Miss Mary Quinn, Claims Control, Internal Revenue, recently attended the convention of the Virginia Chapter, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae in Richmond.

A. Bartz, Division of Investigation, Justice, has begun his first year at National Law School.

C. H. Johnston (*), I. C. C., is back after a visit to New York this week.

Vernon Simmons was chairman of arrangements and did a right noble job, considering the number of guests to be handled. Assisting him were Miss Florence McGuire, Miss Helen E. Lynch, S. U. Baxter, George Gaus, Van Sant, John Fox, Mr. McHale and William D. Flynn.

Among the dignitaries introduced to the 450 guests were Mr. and Mrs. Morganthau; Herbert E. Gaston, deputy governor; William R. Myers, deputy governor; Herman Oliphant, general counsel; William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant; George C. Haas, chief economist; W. Forbes Morgan, personnel director; F. W. Peck, cooperative credit commissioner; Henry M. Bain, deputy commissioner, cooperative credit banks; George M. Brennan, intermediate credit commissioner; C. W. Carson, deputy commissioner; Robert S. Goss, land bank commissioner; J. H. Guill, deputy land bank commissioner; George H. Thomas, comptroller; S. M. Garwood, production credit commissioner; C. R. Arnold, deputy commissioner and A. S. Hewitt, National director, Crop Production Loan Office.

"Informal" instructions on attire stumped a lot of the employes. Mr. Hewitt solved the problem by wearing a tuxedo with a blue shirt. Other costumes ranged from business outfits to full "soup and fish."

The overflow section of the crowd that ate in the main dining room boasted that they had duck. The chief section dined on chicken.

Funny about the C. P. L. boy who lit his pipe—and a shuck—after he ambled up to a distinguished gentleman in the throng and said good naturedly:

"My name is——Have one on me."

"Thank you," the d. g. replied.

"And, oh, 'n' what's your name?" inquired the youth.

"Morgenthau," the d. g. answered, pleasantly.

In the confusion of the crowd Mr. Simmons forgot to introduce Sidney Sherwood, regional manager of CPLO. We can forgive the master of ceremonies for that oversight because we forgot our hat and had to return.

We nominate Miss Julia Connor (*), secretary to Mr. Stewart, as one of the most charming women at the function.

Today's Epitaph.

Virginia Bank Aid Sentenced To Four Years

John S. Nunnally Pleads Guilty to Larceny in Richmond.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—John S. Nunnally, former assistant manager of the Southside Branch of the American Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond, today entered a plea of guilty to larceny charges and was sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

Nunnally was arrested in New York and indicted on charges involving an alleged shortage of slightly more than $12,000. The specific charge on which he was convicted today was larceny of $591 in currency.

Former officers and directors of the American Bank & Trust Co. of Richmond said yesterday they would welcome the grand jury investigation of the bank's affairs asked by Commonwealth's Attorney Dave E. Satterfield.

Judge John L. Ingram, before whom the motion was made, docketed it as a continuing motion at the request of counsel for the bank's receivers, who asked the matter be deferred pending negotiations for a R. F. C. loan to make a payment to depositors.

After 2 Divorces, They Try It Again

Third Marriage Unites Pair Fourth Time.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP).—For the third time, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Hall were married today.

Eighteen months after their first marriage, Mrs. Hall instituted proceedings, but the couple were reunited. In February, 1929, Mrs. Hall again brought suit and was granted a divorce. They married again in June, 1931.

This marriage lasted four months. Mrs. Hall again sued and won a divorce. Friends received word today they were remarried in New York.

Catastrophe Is Seen on Star, But It's Too Late to Help Now

Savants Watch Upheaval That Happened When Solomon Was Born.

Mount Wilson, Calif., Oct. 19 (AP). A catastrophe on a star that happened about the time King Solomon was born, some 3,000 years ago, is being watched with great interest by astronomers here.

The star, listed in astronomical catalogues as Nova Ophiuchi No. 3, is many times the size of the sun and some 18,000,000,000,000,000 miles from the earth. This is so far that what the telescopes reveal today is something that happened 30 centuries ago, for the light travels at the rate of 6,000,000,000 miles a year.

League Shift Over Treaties Germany's Aim

Russia May Be Induced to Become Member of Peace Group.

Geneva, Oct. 19 (AP).—Remodeling the League of Nations' system of action so it will be less of an instrument for fulfilling provisions of the Versailles Treaty was said in German circles today to be one of Germany's conditions to remaining a league member.

They declared also that the Hitler government would insist upon some means of obtaining treaty revisions more effective than stipulated in the league covenant.

International circles, meanwhile, saw in reports that the United States is studying the question of recognizing Soviet Russia a new basis for hopes that Russia may be induced to enter the league.

Russia and the league have of late been interested in each other, it has been clearly indicated, and Geneva considered significant a recent linking by Arthur Henderson of the United States and the Soviets.

The journal of the German League of Nations Union, which appeared this evening, contained the texts of all official proclamations and addresses made by Chancellor Hitler and Foreign Minister von Neurath, in connection with Germany's withdrawal from disarmament negotiations and her projected departure from the league.

It was pointed out, in connection with the speculations regarding Russia and the league, that the Soviets' eastern neighbor, Japan, has announced her resignation from the Community of Nations and that, in view of the German developments, the world might see a change in international politics with Moscow marching toward Geneva.

France, it is believed, may urge such a step.

Blind Man Held in Jail In Wytheville Shooting

Wytheville, Va., Oct. 19 (AP). George Burgett, 32, blind piano tuner, is in the Wythe County Jail charged with shooting and seriously wounding Ephraim Akers.

Officers said the shooting occurred at the home of Akers, where Burgett lived. The men are said to have quarreled.

U. S. Standards Declared Vital To NRA Codes

Scientists Fight Transfer of Bureau's Work to Private Group.

Transfer of certain Bureau of Standards functions to nongovernmental agencies was opposed yesterday at a conference of 300 scientists and experts in commercial standardization. Defenders of commercial standards demanded expansion of governmental research rather than its curtailment.

Anticipating constantly enlarging need for specific standards of grade and quality under the hundreds of NRA codes, speakers insisted only a Government agency could be expected to work out acceptable definitions.

Without such work, it was emphasized, enforcement of the NRA program would be handicapped, if not frustrated.

The conference was called by Secretary of Commerce Roper after widespread protest by industrial and scientific bodies against the project to transfer sections of the Bureau of Standard's program to the American Standards Association, an independent, nonprofit association.

Economy Measure.

This proposal, put forward by Secretary Roper on July 19, as an economy measure following curtailment in the Standards' 1934 budget, contemplated cooperation between the Federal and nongovernmental agencies.

"There can be no substitute for standards promulgated by or under Federal auspices," said Dr. F. M. Williams, chairman of the American Home Economics Association's committee of consumer standards.

This plea for the preservation of the Government work apparently epitomized the temper of the conference. As a result, the transfer policy may be reconsidered by the Commerce Department's budget committee when it plans the 1935 program next month.

Could Transfer Authority.

The July proposal suggested the gradual transfer to the American Standards Association of all the work of all the divisions of simplified practice, building and housing, specifications and trade standards, and the section of safety standards.

"What we have to determine," said Secretary Roper, "is which phases of the work can be adequately carried on by industry and to what extent the aid and participation of the Government in is indispensable."

Representatives of the American Standards Association, which has worked with the Government bureau, suggested that where the official seal of Federal approval is essential for trade purposes, the authority might be transferred to the nongovernmental association.

"Scottsboro Case" Retrial Nov. 27

Only Seven of Nine Named Are in Custody.

Decatur, Ala., Oct. 19 (AP).—A special term of Morgan County Circuit Court for retrial of seven Negroes accused of attack in the "Scottsboro case" was set for November 27 today by Judge W. M. Callahan.

The judge announced the date after a conference with Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, jr., directing the prosecution, and Judge James E. Horton, who presided over the trial of Heywood Patterson, one of the defendants, last April.

Only seven of nine Negroes indicted March 31, 1931, for an alleged attack on two white girls are now in the jurisdiction of the Morgan County Circuit Court. The other two, Eugene Williams and Roy Wright, are under the jurisdiction of the Morgan County Juvenile Court.

Smith Fund Loans Revealed in Court

Raskob and Others Never Asked to Pay Notes.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—John J. Raskob, former Democratic National Committee chairman, testified in Supreme Court today that the County Trust Co. loaned $1,500,000 to Al Smith's presidential campaign fund in October, 1928.

Timothy Mara, sports promoter, and Patrick F. Kenny, Yonkers plumbing contractor, contended that they signed the notes as a favor to the company and that they had been assured they never would be required to make good on them.

Raskob testified that he had indorsed the notes, but the bank never asked him to pay them.

Legion Auxiliary Units To Contest for Trophy

Department Commander Rice W. Means and Mrs. Means last night offered a trophy to the unit of the District Department of the American Legion Auxiliary having the largest gain in membership over last year.

The department met in the Board of Trade room of the Star Building.

Plans were discussed for the Legion's Armistice Day ball at the Mayflower Hotel. Mrs. Marie Dyer was named chairman of the committee in charge.

Slain Captain's Widow Asks Control of Child

Los Angeles, Oct. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, widow of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, who was slain abeard his schooner, the Carma, off Long Beach last winter, filed a petition in Probate Court today asking reappointment as guardian of her daughter, Valry, 8 years old.

The petition, if granted, would give the mother charge of the daughter's estate of $1,100, representing money received from sale of the schooner.

Troop 14 Goes to Tall Timbers.

Troop 14, Luther Place Memorial Church, experienced a successful overnight camping trip to Tall Timbers, Md., 75 miles south of Washington, last Saturday and Sunday. After supper a Scout "camp fire," under the direction of "Bob" Myers, of headquarters staff, was enjoyed.

Sunday morning, after devotional period, the boys enjoyed the "wide open spaces." The trip was under the supervision of Scoutmaster W. C. Cronenberg and Troop Committeemen Nordquist, Gardner and Eberly. Of 23 registered Scouts, 21 participated in this trip—also two candidates. Troop committee turned out 100 per cent.

Riverdale Troop Active.

Troop 221, conducted by the Riverdale Presbyterian Church, held a special Boy Scout church service Sunday morning with Scouts in a flag ceremony and serving as ushers. The Rev. W. Keith Custis' sermon was based upon the Boy Scout oath and the 12 parts of the Scout law. Scoutmasters Carter and Williams received many congratulations on their efforts in Scout work at Riverdale.

Sea Scout Training Ship Meets.

Twenty-six men in Washington are interested in the older boy program of Sea Scouting as sponsored by the Boy Scouts. These men met at the Sea Scout base Tuesday night when the first meeting of the Sea Scout leaders' training ship was held.

Operation Planned To Cure Hiccoughs

Woman, Suffering 18 Days, Is Unimproved.

While remedies and suggestions continue to deluge Providence Hospital authorities, the condition of Mrs. Gladys Meeks, 27, in her 18-week battle against an attack of hiccoughs, was reported "about the same" last night.

Unless her condition improves within the next few days, physicians will attempt an intricate operation on the phrenic nerve. Intervals between attacks have grown shorter. Hiccoughing periods occur about every four hours.

Sympathizers have mailed and telephoned numerous suggestions to aid her recovery.

"New Turkey" Is Discussed At Institute

Kemal's Leadership Held Cause of Nation's Improvement.

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—Walter Consuel Langsam, history instructor at Columbia University, told the William and Mary Institute of International Affairs tonight that one of the reasons for Mustapha Kemal's success in developing a modern civilization in Turkey was the fact that he customarily "took just one big step at a time."

"Reforms succeeded one another at moderate intervals," he said, "and in this way the opposition never became so formidable as to crystallize into open resistance.

Became a Dictator.

As President of Turkey, the speaker said, Mustapha Kemal determined to abolish outworn institutions and methods and to raise his country to the level of Western civilization. In bringing about this transformation he adopted an admittedly dictatorial policy.

"In Turkey, as in Italy and more recently in Germany," he said, "nationalism transcended the desire for liberty or democracy. The spirit of nationality among the Turks also was manifest in their eagerness to oust from the republic, especially from its Asiatic part, all peoples who were not 'Turks.'

"Second in importance only to the revised attitude toward religion was the altered status accorded Turkish women."

French Stand Defended.

The German situation was brought to the fore in last night's session of the institute with speakers explaining the international status of Germany, defending the French and asserting that Great Britain can "prevent a new war by taking a firm stand against the dangers of Hitlerism."

Robert Valeur, of Columbia University, likened France to the United States if Canada and Mexico were hostile, and added: "But France is expected to disarm while the United States increases its appropriation for the Navy."

He said that Germany had not used the proper diplomacy or tactfulness in approaching France and that every French concession had been followed by "a more exacting German demand presented in a most antagonizing tone."

Rites for Gen. Lyster In Arlington Tomorrow

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. Theodore C. Lyster, U. S. A., retired, who died in Los Angeles August 5, will be held in Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow, with Chaplain Ralph C. Diebert officiating.

Born July 10, 1875, at Fort Larned, Kans., he was appointed to West Point from Michigan. He served as surgeon general and medical examiner in a number of Army posts, and from 1917 to 1919 had offices in Washington in the office of the surgeon general as chief of the Air Service Division and attending surgeon. He was retired February 28, 1919, and one June 21, 1930, took the rank of brigadier general, which he held in the World War.

Navy League Informs Britain Parity Is Vital

Letter Flays Opposition to Building Program; Asks Cooperation.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy League of America, in a polite but frank letter made public last night, told the British Navy League that continued antagonism by Great Britain to America's naval building policy would block an "absolutely essential" cooperation between the two nations.

The letter was signed by N. M. Hubbard, jr., president of the American Navy League, and is to be delivered formally today in London.

"While the world is slowly emerging from the economic cataclysm resulting from the late war," the letter said, "many informed and experienced observers believe that it is swiftly moving toward a supreme conflict of arms involving the existence of governmental control and our present civilization."

U. S. "Supremacy Sunk."

Reviewing the Washington naval conference, the letter said the United States had "sunk" its supremacy in capital ships and "voluntarily restored control of the sea to the British navy." It accused Great Britain of opposing parity in sea strength by this country.

"While these sacrifices," it asserted, "were inspired by altruistic motives, they have seemingly brought no corresponding spirit of concession by other nations toward us."

Referring to the Anglo-American agreement on naval strength at the London conference, the letter said "our overwhelming desire to contribute to world peace overcame due consideration of national safety and induced our delegation to aquiesce in the British and Japanese demands."

Britain Held Indifferent.

"Our people are being forced reluctantly to a conclusion that while your statesmen continue to say that war between us is unthinkable," the letter continued, "they apparently key in mind always such a contingency, and that in the event of our engagement in a war in which the British remain neutral, Great Britain is indifferent to the outcome.

"Frankly, we believe present British design as regards American sea power is doomed to meet with failure. If persisted in, it will create a public sentiment in the United States which will oppose and prevent that cooperation in the stabilization of world affairs which we believe most of our organizations think to be not merely desirable but absolutely essential to the future prosperity of both nations and to their prestige and world influence."

Beatty Asks Increase.

London, Oct. 19 (AP).—Lord Beatty, former chief of the naval staff, made a plea tonight for a stronger British navy. He urged Great Britain to adopt a shipbuilding program for unemployment relief similar to that launched in the United States by President Roosevelt. He spoke at a British Naval League dinner. The admiral declared that the United States Navy now numbers 107,000 men, 60 per cent increase over 1914, while the British navy has been reduced to 90,300.

Fire Department Probe Threatened

Lawyer Charges Chief Influences Board.

A resolution demanding that all officer vacancies in the District Fire Department be filled only by firemen who have served at least five years in the department was adopted last night by the City Fire Fighters Association.

Some 250 men heard Paul E. Jamieson, attorney for the association, flay the rules and regulations of the fire department and criticize Fire Chief Watson. The attorney also charged the fire chief with influencing the decision of the trial board and recommended that the board be composed entirely of civilians.

Botanical Expedition Buys Power Schooner

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP).—Sale of the 480-ton power schooner Golden State to Dr. Baron Victor Wolfgang von Hagen and associates for use on a proposed botanical research expedition to South America was announced at the marine department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce today.

Roosevelt Asks Armistice Fete

Proclamation Asks Nation to Celebrate With Thanks for Peace.

President Roosevelt yesterday issued a proclamation calling on the country to observe fittingly Armistice Day November 11.

The proclamation:

"Whereas, The 11th of November, 1918, marked the cessation of the most destructive, sanguinary and far-reaching war in human history; and

"Whereas, It is fitting that the recurring anniversary of this day should be commemorated by exercises designed to perpetuate peace through good will and mutual understanding between nations; and

"Whereas, By concurrent resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives, in 1926, the President was requested to issue a proclamation for the observance of Armistice Day;

"Now, Therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of the said resolution, do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all Government buildings on Saturday, November 11, 1933, and do invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches, or in other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies expressive of our gratitude for peace and our desire for the continuance of friendly relations with all other peoples."

City Planners Meet To Discuss Projects

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission will confer at 10 o'clock this morning on public works projects contemplated for the Capital and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Baltimore Man Is Named Chief Of City Parks

C. Marshall Finnan Comes Here in Shift of 4 Interior Officials.

C. Marshall Finnan, of Baltimore, yesterday was appointed superintendent of Capital Parks.

Mr. Finnan, according to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, is being promoted in rank and will come to Washington from Mesa Verde National Park, Colo. He had served as superintendent of that park for two years, with six years of prior service in the parks system.

The new superintendent's training includes civil engineering, road and trail work, Southwestern archaeology, and botany.

Finnan succeeds Frank T. Garside, who has been acting superintendent of parks. Mr. Garside will remain in service as Finnan's assistant. Garside has been connected with public parks in the District since 1916.

Other promotions include transfer of Superintendent Ernest P. Leavitt, from Hawaii National Park, to Mesa Verde, where he will fill Finnan's post. Leavitt is to be succeeded in the Hawaii post by Ernest G. Wingate, of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Wingate has served as topographic engineer in the Geological Survey since 1921. Previously he served with the Quartermaster Corps, Veterans' Bureau, and Internal Revenue Bureau.

U. S. Prosecutors Refuse to Resign

Cummings Denies Move to Oust Hoover Appointees.

A number of United States attorneys appointed by President Hoover have refused to resign at the request of the administration, Attorney General Cummings said yesterday.

He did not mention names. He said that in several instances the Department considered them unsatisfactory. He added that no "ruthless policy" of weeding out Republicans was being followed, and that many able men appointed by the former administration were being permitted to fill out their terms.

As instances of the latter policy, he pointed to United States Attorneys George Medalie, New York, and Dwight Green, Chicago, praising both highly.

Strengthening Our Banking System.

The New York clearing house banks have voted to support the Administration's plan to strengthen the capital structure of the country's banking system by selling notes or preferred stock to the R. F. C. It is estimated that the new issues may add as much as $200,000,000 to the resources of the clearing house banks.

This action is constructive and generally beneficial under present conditions. Aside from this, it ought to remove any vagrant doubts that may exist, either at home or abroad, as to the strength of New York clearing house banks.

The main purpose of inducing the New York banks to obtain funds from the R. F. C. is to set an example to the weaker banks which need new capital in order to put their affairs on a more satisfactory basis. This follows the precedent established in the past when clearing house certificates were issued primarily for the benefit of some banks, and institutions which did not require assistance also took them to make it fashionable.

Many banks have hesitated to seek Federal aid either through loans or the sale of preferred stock to the R. F. C. Participation in the present plan by strong banks which do not need additional capital undoubtedly will tend to eliminate this hesitation and greatly facilitate the buttressing of capital structures where it is required.

Since the provisional deposit guaranty plan becomes effective January 1, the Administration considers it essential that operating banks with impaired capital shall be assisted to qualify for membership in the deposit insurance corporation. The exclusion of such banks in any large numbers would be a severe shock to public confidence which might lead to a new epidemic of bank closings. The alternative—admission to membership in the deposit insurance corporation of weak banks at the expense of sound institutions—would be equally unacceptable and dangerous.

The need for a unified banking system is strikingly revealed by the action of the Administration in urging strong banks that do not desire more capital to take it for the sake of weak units that require assistance. Such methods of strengthening the capital structure of the banking system as a whole may be warranted under existing abnormal conditions, but they should be regarded as emergency measures designed to tide the country over a critical period.

The United States has suffered for years from disastrous competition between State and National banking groups—a competition "based upon laxity," as was pointed out to the Congress at least ten years ago, at a time when the majority of Americans felt little concerned about the future of their banking system. Again in March, 1932, the Federal Reserve Board, in a report on the Glass bill addressed to the chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, said:

> It should be recognized that effective supervision of banking in this country has been seriously hampered by the competition between member and nonmember banks, and that the establishment of a unified system of banking under National supervision is essential to fundamental banking reform.

Subsequently, the general counsel of the Federal Reserve Board prepared an opinion upholding the constitutionality of legislation to unify the commercial banking system. In that opinion he, too, stated that the effective operation of the National banking system and the Federal Reserve system had been seriously impaired by a "competition in laxity" as regards both regulation and supervision, which has been encouraged under our heterogeneous system of National and State banks.

The general banking collapse of last March was the direct outcome of the situation which developed under our dual system of banking.

Group Hospitalization.

The group hospitalization plan which is scheduled to begin operating in Washington about December 1 promises to be an interesting experiment. Nine hospitals have accepted the plan and it is reported to have the support of the medical profession and leading employers. Support of the public also is essential to its success.

The plan is essentially one of insurance against hospital expenses. It will be operated by a non-profit making corporation. Employes of both the Government and private concerns will be invited to contribute a definite sum each month for a limited amount of hospital service during the year, if such service is needed. In this way the cost of hospital care would be distributed among a large number of people, and the burden upon individuals requiring extensive hospitalization would be diminished.

A number of safeguards are included in the proposition that will be offered to wage and salary earners. Hospital service would be rendered for not more than 21 days in any one year under the contract, although additional service could be obtained, if needed, at a discount. Service would be provided only upon authorization and request of the patient's physician. Extra charges would be made for private rooms. Patients with contagious diseases, nervous disorders, etc., could not claim service for those ailments. In cases of great disaster or emergency, when the hospitals are unable to provide the service contemplated by the plan, they may refund the subscriber's money and thus discharge their obligations.

This plan is designed to aid families with modest income to obtain proper hospital care by setting aside a definite allowance for that item. Of course, it is impossible to determine in advance just how any undertaking of this kind will work out in actual practice. But from the viewpoint of making hospital service more readily available to those of moderate means it appears to be a step in the right direction.

Foreign Liquor Held Up.

The new rule forbidding issuance of permits to import foreign wines and spirits puts another damper upon speculators who hoped to reap a harvest after prohibition repeal by flooding the country with foreign liquors. The news will be received with dismay in France, Scotland, Cuba and other countries supplying the liquors most esteemed by Americans. Large stocks have been manufactured in those countries in anticipation of the opening of the American market. The liquor was to be exported to this country and placed in bond awaiting the magic word "repeal." Now the supply must be kept at home until after repeal. From that time no import permits will be necessary.

It is explained that there will be an abundance of domestic whisky after repeal. This will be the blended or rectified liquor which was on the market before prohibition days. An increased internal revenue tax upon liquor is to be fixed, presumably, at the next session of Congress. All imported liquors except beer are subject to the internal revenue tax in addition to the customs duty. The act providing for 3.2 beer exempted imported beer from the internal revenue tax. The duty, however, is so heavy that foreign beer is practically excluded. It is taxed at the customs at $31 per barrel. When the beer bill was enacted a large supply of foreign beer—not over 3.2 in strength, of course—was imported, and most of it remains in storage. At 60 cents per bottle it is unsalable.

The duty on imported spirits is $5 per gallon. The internal revenue tax is $1.10 per gallon. The total, $6.10, is a heavy handicap, but if the internal revenue tax on spirits should be increased to $6.40, as is anticipated in some quarters, foreign whisky will hardly figure as a dangerous competitor of the domestic product. Still wines pay a duty of $1.25 per gallon, which is said to be sufficient to protect domestic wine producers. Champagne pays $6 per gallon duty. It falls in the class of luxuries which are imported regardless of cost.

Farm Parity.

Gov. Langer's proclamation forbidding the shipment of wheat from North Dakota is indicative of widespread disappointment in the farm belt over current prices of agricultural commodities. It is not intended primarily as a remedy for the farmer's difficulties. Gov. Langer says "it is hardly possible that the embargo alone can raise the world grain markets." He has taken this extreme measure, he says, to call attention to the plight of the Northwest farmer.

Washington is quite familiar with the situation that has brought about this and other less emphatic protests. Officials of the National Recovery Administration and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration have been studying the current adverse trend of agricultural prices. Efforts doubtless are being made to coordinate the programs of the NRA and the AAA so that the actual purchasing power of the farmer may be increased. But it is not a simple problem.

Farm prices made substantial gains last spring and during the early summer while other commodity prices moved upward more slowly. Farmers were jubilant. At last, it appeared the movement was in the direction of so-called parity between agriculture and industry. Between February and July the index of farm commodity prices advanced nearly 50 per cent, while the prices of all other commodities gained less than 10 per cent. But optimism on the farm subsided when the prices of leading farm commodities broke and a new trend set in.

During the last two and a half months the prices of commodities that the farmer must buy have continued to rise, while the prices of his own produce have undergone a slight shrinkage. In some cases the decline in farm prices has been rather severe. Wheat is selling at about 54 cents per bushel less than the season's highest price. Cotton has sold as low as 8.58 cents a pound this week compared with 11.8 cents on July 18, in spite of the Government's offer to lend 10 cents per pound on this staple. The index of all farm commodity prices has fallen nearly 5 per cent since July.

Notwithstanding this situation, the increase in farm prices since the low point was reached in February is still greater than the increase for all commodities. But present farm prices amount to only 57 per cent of the 1926 level, while the prices of all commodities, including agricultural crops, stand at about 71 per cent of the 1926 level.

The downward trend of farm prices in the last few weeks doubtless is an important factor in some of the new programs that are being launched. When the price of wheat broke early this week the Government began buying wheat for emergency relief. Large purchases of butter, cattle and other products probably are in the offing. Secretary Wallace has announced an extensive program for curtailment of corn and hog production with the view of raising prices. These activities appear to be an answer of the administration to complaints of the farmer that current price trends are adverse to agricultural "parity."

The Soviet-Japanese Dispute.

Events of the last ten days in the Far East must be interpreted in the light of the fact that relations between Soviet Russia and Japan have been strained for months. Japan has been suspicious of the Soviet's intentions, and the Soviet has feared Japanese encroachment upon Russian interests in Manchuria and Siberia.

The Soviet stood quietly by while Japan drove the Chinese authorities out of Manchuria and set up a so-called independent state. When difficulties arose on the Soviet-Manchurian border, the Moscow government seemed to adopt a conciliatory attitude. Nevertheless, it was evident that the Soviet was alarmed at the progress of the Japanese in Manchuria.

The opening of negotiations between the Soviet and Manchukuo for sale of Russia's interests in the Chinese Eastern Railroad occasioned some surprise at the time. It was soon apparent, however, that both sides were playing the game of diplomacy. If Japan is determined to obtain full control of this road, as many observers believe, her logical first move was to initiate negotiations through the puppet government of Manchukuo, making an offer so low that it would be certainly rejected.

The Soviet now fears that Japan is plotting disturbances in Manchukuo as an excuse for taking over the railroad. Widespread publication of the alleged secret Japanese diplomatic reports suggests that the Soviet is endeavoring to arouse the Russian people on the issue and to take a stand against any further expansion of Japanese domination in the Far East.

Japan seems inclined to magnify the incident and to use it as an excuse for further action against Russian officials of the Chinese Eastern. A number of Soviet officials have been arrested and the Japanese directors have submitted a list of Manchukuoans to take their place. The office of the Soviet financial agent has been raided. Japan may welcome a breach of relations in order to impress the Soviet with the desirability of making better terms for sale of the railroad.

Dangerous conditions may develop when two great nations begin cultivating hostile public opinion against each other. But Japan doubtless expects to attain its objective without open conflict, and the Soviet does not appear to be prepared to fight in eastern Siberia.

Thought Control.

Stricter surveillance and educational reform are the policy recommended by the government committee concerned with thought control. Such a policy, practical as it is, will not be penetrative enough unless accompanied with efforts for political purification. The shortest cut to thought control lies in the reorganization of political structures and in the tightening of political discipline.

—From the Tokyo Chugai.

Just what is meant by our Tokyo contemporary in suggesting that the tightening of political discipline is a short cut to "thought control" is a mystery which might be explored with profit by Chairman Farley. Apparently in Japan thought control is intimately linked with politics.

Small Farm Homes.

From the Los Angeles Times.

The first experiment of the administration in combining the "small farm home" idea with that of decentralizing industry—called the "subsistence homestead" program—is to be made in West Virginia, where an 1,100-acre tract has been acquired in a mountain valley. A factory to make supplies for the Postoffice Department will be built, surrounded with homes with vegetable gardens and fruit trees, and some 200 out-of-work miners will be given the first chance to see if they can thereby help to make themselves a living through the plan.

The men will be given part-time employment in the factory and devote part of the rest of their time to raising their own table supplies. Each home will have two to four acres of land—probably more than can be efficiently handled by inexperienced gardeners in the beginning.

It is emphasized in Washington that this is only an experiment or a demonstration, and that the Government does not expect to go into the business of itself setting up such communities as a permanent part of Federal relief. If the experiment works well, private initiative will be encouraged to copy it, or modifications of it, elsewhere. Secretary Ickes has $25,000,000 to experiment with in this way, but it is said areas anxious to be experimented with have been brought to his attention in sufficient numbers to require about $3,000,000,000 for development.

Since California offers almost ideal conditions for the development of industry in connection with small-farm homes, with workers devoting part time to each—and has already seen thousands of such homes successfully established—a demonstration community here would seem to be indicated and it would not be surprising if the advisory committee selected a southern California site for one of its experiments.

This is the sort of "back-to-the-land" movement that offers the best promise of success. Commercial farming is somewhat overdone, but subsistence farming is another matter. Under the shortened industrial hours of the NRA set-up, workers have a good deal of spare time on their hands which can well be employed in healthful out-of-door occupation which would at the same time produce part of their living. Not every one is adapted to such a life, but thousands of workmen would welcome the opportunity.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Poe, Poker and Bridge.

Edgar Allan Poe had an extraordinary combination of qualities; he had a romantic imagination that gave him a permanent place in creative poetry and in prose fiction, and he had the cold, reasoning power of a great mathematician. His mind had the genius of beauty and the genius of inference. He delighted in solving puzzles, in decoding cipher messages; after Dickens had published a few chapters of one of his novels, Poe amazed him by sending him the complete plot exactly as Dickens had planned it.

Poe, were he living today, could make a fortune in being an authority on bridge, like Culbertson. And as a poker-player, Poe could easily have been a world champion. This is what Poe wrote of whist in his story, "The Murders in the Rue Morgue."

"He examines the countenance of his partner, comparing it carefully with that of each of his opponents. He considers the mode of sorting the cards in each hand; often counting trump by trump, and honor by honor, through the glances bestowed by the holders of each. He notes every variation of face as the play progresses, gathering a fund of thought from the differences in the expression of certainty, of surprise, of triumph, or of chagrin. From the manner of gathering up a trick he judges whether the person taking it can make another in the suit. He recognizes what is played through feint, by the air with which it is thrown upon the table. A casual or inadvertent word; the accidental dropping or turning of a card, with the accompanying anxiety or carelessness in regard to its concealment; the counting of the tricks; with the order of their arrangement; embarrassment, hesitation, eagerness or trepidation—all afford, to his apparently intuitive perception, indications of the true state of affairs. The first two or three rounds having been played, he is in full possession of the contents of each hand, and thenceforward puts down his cards with an absolute precision of purpose as if the rest of the party had turned upward the faces of their own."

If You Must Support Poor Kin, It Costs No More to Give Them Jobs

By Robert Quillen

There isn't enough work for all of us.

During and immediately after the war, this country enormously increased its capacity for machine production.

Using machines to replace men seemed the ideal solution of capital's chief problem. Machines do not strike or demand higher wages.

But the solving of one problem created another. The number of unemployed men increased year after year.

Even at the height of the boom there were millions of unemployed—counting those who got their living by means of crime, sharp practice and begging.

That being true, it should be clear that a return to normal conditions will not provide work for all who are idle now.

What is to be done for them?

If five million men cannot find work in a busy, prosperous land, they must and will do one of two things. They will get a living dishonestly or they will demand and get some kind of dole.

Do you relish the idea of paying taxes all your life to support several million men in idleness?

If not, you have but one alternative.

You must provide jobs for them.

But how, you ask, can jobs be provided for so many men when machines are doing the work?

There is only one sensible answer. It is silly to do unnecessary work merely to give men something to do. It is wasteful and foolish to spend public money on useless projects in order to avoid a dole that would cost less.

The only sensible solution is to divide the work and give every man a share.

If half of us can do the work in eight hours, then all of us must be permitted to do the work in four hours.

A few years ago, any demand for shorter hours was supposed to be inspired by laziness. The desire for a six-hour day was merely a desire for a soft snap.

But now it is a matter of cutting the pie to match the number of guests. Hours must be reduced to give every worker a part-time job.

That arrangement may increase operating costs. But a dollar paid as wages is no more than a dollar paid as taxes to support men in idleness.

"Send Them to Guam."
Lewiston Journal.

We are told that the Kellys and others are to be incarcerated in a new prison, on an island, much as France does with its Devils Island, whence escapes are rare. It is evident that soon the United States must have such a penal colony. Send them to Guam, which is far enough away to relieve dwellers in cities near these prisons of our States from constant fear of prison breaks. Patrol these islands with gunboats. Then, prison sentences would mean something and we should see criminals more afraid of penal exile than of death.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

BARGERON.

AL SMITH'S timidity in the present New York mayoralty race brings up the very serious question of whether our leaders are going on the five-day week, whether they intend just to be part-time leaders, taking their days off like the rest. It would mark a radical departure from the past.

Leaders, as we have been used to them, were supposed to be available 24 hours a day and every day in the year, like the family physician. Leadership was a very definite, established thing, not something flexible that permitted the leader to elect the instances in which he would lead. It is one field in which we have never encouraged specialization. We have our specialized leaders, in the broad use of the term, of course, such as leaders in the medical profession, in the law, but THE leaders we accepted as sages in all matters pertaining to life and things.

• • • •

NOT only that, but the mayoralty race is right up Al's alley. Politics is the particular vehicle on which he rose to leadership.

Certainly nothing more important has come before the New York voters since the war. And they are showing through their heavy registration a recognition of this.

Nowhere, though, does one hear Al's voice; nowhere does there come from him a word of wisdom, of leadership in this very crucial situation.

• • • •

AL has not counseled the thousands who heretofore have looked to him for advice on whether they should vote for McKee, O'Brien or LaGuardia. Indeed, it is not known how Al himself intends to vote.

We all appreciate that Al is in a hot spot, that probably nothing would suit him better than to oppose McKee and break up the well-laid plans of the administration here. Very probably Al is just itching to do that.

Yet this would throw him behind a very unpopular candidate, the Tammany presentation, Mayor O'Brien. So what Al apparently has elected to do is to stay out of it altogether.

• • • •

BUT when he does this doesn't he sacrifice his estate as a leader? Has he the right to say as each situation presents itself: "No, I won't lead this time," and then expect to return to the leader's place on the next matter which is more inviting to his leadership flair?

It raises a serious question, I think.

You have in New York City, as well as in other parts of the country, literally millions who in the past several years have come to look to Al for guidance on almost everything that comes up. There were Democrats in the last campaign who did not know whether they should support Mr. Roosevelt until Al, in effect, told them to do so.

• • • •

TO put it one way, these people have got into a rut in the matter of looking to Al for counsel. Without him they would not know where to turn.

They had no warning, you know, that Al was to liquidate his leadership business. They had no opportunity to take up with another firm. They can't just pick up the want-ads and call another number. It is enough trouble getting a suitable maid in this way. You can appreciate how unsatisfactory would be this process in regard to leaders.

I suppose now there are countless of Al's followers in New York who had not pondered present difficulties at all. They had gone about their business in the belief they had a leader who would counsel them what to do. The thorough man, or you might say, the man of affairs, the one who has his affairs organized, has his leader just as he does his doctor and his lawyer and more recently, his economist, and he expects each one to take care of all matters coming in the particular field. They simply are supposed to make reports to him—not worry him with details.

As I say, the reasons for Al's shunning his leadership in this instance are easily understandable. He is in what we might call a pretty fix.

But do these reasons constitute a valid excuse? After all, courage is supposed to be an element of leadership.

Just Folks.

The Sin of Righteousness.

"I cried it from the housetops, Lord!
I told my brother's sin!
And when he tapped upon my door
I would not let him in.
I gave myself to righteousness. I labored for the law,
And hurled by shafts of bitterness
'gainst every wrong I saw.
"I stood alone in anger, Lord! And, oh, the years were long!
My eyes were blind to beauty and my ears were deaf to song.
I carried hatred in my heart for evil, high or low,
Till every man who blundered once looked on me as a foe.
"I did my bitter duty, Lord! I fought with all my might—
I never spared a man whom I could bludgeon down in spite.
So much I hated wickedness, so much I loved the good,
The gracious Lord made answer:
"From the silence of the grave
Comes not a word from anyone you pitied or forgave.
How then shall I forgive you now who lived on earth so long
And had no love for any man who blundered into wrong!"

Realty Loans Prove Sound In Depression

Insurance Companies Find Mortgages on Homes Yield Revenue.

This is the second of a series on revival of building construction, with particular reference to Washington.

By George O. Vass
(President of the District Bankers Association).

This depression has proved again the soundness of properly made first mortgages on Washington real estate. They are not convertible into cash as readily as stocks or bonds, but the record shows that over a long period the best-grade first mortgage real estate obligations in the District have consistently paid interest and principal maturities when due.

They are preferred by investors who wish a concentrated lien on tangible and visible property, and therefore commend themselves to those seeking long-term investments with fair yield and safety of principal. This is an important fact in approaching recovery, for it is a revival of demand for mortgages on real estate that will help start the home-building industry.

New Homes Needed.

The city needs new homes. Now is an opportune time to build. The main obstacle in the way of accomplishing this is a dearth of funds. There can be no revival of our home-building industry until such funds are forthcoming. This dearth is due to the fact that the investing public has become chary of realty investment.

This attitude I believe to be generally unwarranted.

The timidity of the investing public regarding first mortgages is partly due to the exaggerated publicity given to frozen mortgages in their relation to bank failures. While much has been said about this situation, the truth is that this residue of real estate investments in banking institutions otherwise liquid often results from the fact that stocks and bonds are among the first assets sold.

The real estate mortgages placed and held as a longer term investment do not enjoy an active market and therefore can not be liquidated except at a sacrifice.

Cloud on Mortgages.

The publicity given to this situation has perhaps put an unwarranted cloud on such mortgages. It should be observed that where mortgages held by banks represented an investment in unsound real estate, these were generally industrial and commercial mortgages. In no part of the United States did the mortgages on individual home or two-family house in the larger cities occasion any particular difficulty for the banks.

Defaults in interest and principal payments occurred in numerous instances, but only to a relatively small fraction of the total value of home mortgages. However, the mortgage difficulties of our closed banks have reflected undue discredit on the large volume of first mortgage investments that have stood up during the depression.

William H. Kingsley, vice presidenet of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., said that his company had $5,000,000 invested in Los Angeles mortgages and up to July, 1933, had to take over under foreclosure only $41,000, or less than 1 per cent of the investment.

Does Not Mean Loss.

It must be remembered that a foreclosure does not necessarily mean an ultimate loss. A local loan correspondent for a leading life insurance company says his company has never lost on the ultimate sale of foreclosed property. The company has covered not only all principal involved, but also interest, payment of back taxes and all costs relating to the sale of foreclosed property.

Records of the three largest life insurance companies for 1932 show that their mortgage investments earned a higher rate of return than did their bond investments.

The Metropolitan has about a billion and a half dollars invested in mortgages and about the same in bonds. The return on the mortgages last year was 4.8 per cent. The return on the bonds was 4.7 per cent.

Mortgages Earn More.

The Prudential has about a billion invested in mortgages and a like amount in bonds. Yet their mortgage investments earned half a per cent higher interest than their bond investments.

The New York Life has $750,000,000 invested in bonds; about $500,000,000 in mortgages. Their mortgage investments, also, earned half a per cent better return than their bonds.

I believe that the first mortgage investment has been one of the safest investments since the depression started. In Washington the first mortgage has proved an unusually safe risk. Large life insurance companies regard Washington as the best in the Nation for security of investment.

The records of five of the seven largest life insurance companies in the country operating in the District show why this is so. Information was obtained from three of these companies regarding all mortgage investments in the District. Two representing large investors in the home-mortgage field furnished data on their local record.

Record for general mortgage investment by three large life insurance companies operating in the District:

Average per cent of defaulted interest 60 days compared to gross or contract interest, 4 per cent.

Average amount of real estate acquired through foreclosure compared to unpaid principal of loans in force, 2 per cent. Average mortgage investment, $13,600,000.

Record for home mortgage investment by two large life insurance companies operating in the District:

Average per cent of defaulted interest 60 days compared to gross or contract interest, 1¾ per cent.

Average amount of real estate acquired through foreclosure compared to unpaid principal of loans in force, 2 per cent. Average home mortgage investment, $8,750,000.

The figures used apply as of September 1 for four of the companies. One of the companies reported its general mortgage investment record.

Two Years for Redemption.

The question of loans on property where back taxes are in arrears calls for extended comment. Three companies stated that they have a few loans on which taxes are in arrears, that they have permitted tax sales on their property, but since the District allows two years for redemption they have never failed to redeem within the statutory limits and before the issuance of a tax deed. One company said it has no loans in the District on which taxes are more than a year in arrears, and that it never permits a tax sale on its property. The other company reported that it likewise never permits the issuance of a tax certificate on any of its property.

Two of the companies state that they have never lost on the sale of any piece of foreclosed property in the District, and that the sales price always has reimbursed the company for the principal of the loan, loss in interest and any other expenses incurred in handling the property up to the date of disposal. Two companies report that they have each sold one piece of foreclosed property in the District, and that each piece was disposed of at a profit. The last company reported that it has sold property at a loss in the District, but that the loss has been neglible.

One company reported that for the first ten years of its operation in the District beginning in 1921 it did not have a case of defaulted interest or principal foreclosure.

Strength Is Shown.

Some idea of the strength of properly made first mortgage on District property may be seen by comparing the mortgage records of insurance companies in general operating outside of the District with the record made by insurance company loans in this city as heretofore cited. The statistical bureau of the Home Loan Bank Board collected the following information on foreclosure from a great many insurance companies over the Nation for January 1, 1933.

Foreclosure record of a large number of insurance companies operating over the Nation as compiled by the Home Loan Bank Board:

Amount of real estate acquired through foreclosure January 1, 1933, compared to the unpaid principal of mortgages outstanding: All mortgages, 7.8 per cent; home mortgages, 5.1 per cent.

The above shows that for the United States as a whole the foreclosure record of a large number of insurance companies on home and general mortgages is considerably higher than in the District.

With respect to delinquent interest conservative information indicates that the record made in the District by the five insurance companies previously referred to is considerably better than the record made by the same companies or of insurance companies in general operating outside of the District.

From the data presented I do not think it immoderate to say that a first mortgage, competently placed, is a desirable investment anywhere and that a sound first mortgage on good Washington real etsate is exceptionally desirable.

U. S. Guards Public Against Hog Price Hike

(Associated Press.)

A determination to protect American consumers from pyramiding of the hog processing tax to increase the price of pork was attributed in authorative quarters yesterday to Secretary Wallace.

Officials assisting the Secretary of Agriculture in working out the half-billion dollar program for aiding swine and corn producers said he had arranged for comprehensive cost studies of the effect of the tax on the consumer.

Wallace announced that the initial processing tax of 50 cents per 100 pounds live weight effective November 5 will be boosted to $1 on December 1, to $1.50 on January 1, and to $2 on February 1.

It will remain at $2 until November 5, 1935, under present plans, but it can be increased or decreased depending upon the trend of market prices, the effect upon consumption or for other reasons under the farm act.

The farm act authorized a rate equal to the difference between current average farm prices for swine and prewar "parity" prices, sufficient to give the hog growers the same purchasing power for the animals he sells as farmers realized from swine from 1909 to 1914.

Mrs. Hert Balks At Tax Payment

G. O. P. Kentucky Leader Fights Claim of Treasury.

Attempts by the Treasury to collect an alleged income tax deficiency of $18,381 from Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Republican National Committee woman from Kentucky, were revealed last night when it was learned Mrs. Hert has solicited aid of the Board of Tax Appeals to have the collection effort held illegal.

The Treasury charges that in computing her income tax for 1931, Mrs. Hert deducted $98,333 "business expenses" from a $659,556 income.

These deductions included a $70,489 loss operating her estate near Louisville, and $27,844 for expenses incurred as chairman of the board of the American Creosoting Co.

Because the gross operating cost of the farm was $70,489, as against a gross income of $17,929, and because for the eight preceding years Mrs. Hert had deducted other large farm losses, Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering contends she has not been operating the estate for profit.

Helvering charges evidence is insufficient to sustain Mrs. Hert's claims that her expenditures promoted interests of the company.

Mrs. Hert contends that she operates her farm for profit and that her company expenditures were legitimate.

She says her income was far less than $659,556 for 1931.

Mrs. Hert played an important role in the campaign which elected Herbert Hoover president.

Argentine and Paraguay canned beef was used for rations in certain Western Civilian Conservation Corps camps, it was revealed here yesterday.

Answering the protest procurement officers explained the purchase was necessary because of exhaustion of the supply in the United States.

When Eastern contingents were sent to the Northwestern States of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Washington, Gen. Dennis Nolan, commanding general of the Second Corps Area, was instructed to send sufficient supplies with them to last while their camps were being built. Supplies to last 15 days were bought for the camps, according to Army officers.

Orders were placed for all the canned beef available from American packers. It was believed there might be a shortage, and additional orders were placed for canned beef from South America.

The officers denied any violation of the new purchasing law, which requires all purchases to be made in this country where possible. One official said no Argentine beef was bought until the American supply was exhausted.

Information received by the War Department indicated that a considerable supply remains on hand in one of the Western camps. Orders were issued that this supply be set aside.

At the time the canned beef was purchased, the Army paid from 10 to 12 cents a can for the Argentine and Paraguayan product. Canned beef packed in the United States cost the Army from 13.5 to 19 cents per can.

Druggists to Hear Official of NRA

Will Protest Against Influx of Out-of-Town Workers.

Rights of pharmacists to bargain collectively with their employers will be discussed by Joel Berrall, of the NRA Labor Advisory Board tonight before a meeting of the District Pharmacist Society.

The society is also preparing another petition to the District Board of Pharmacy, asking that a reciprocity moratorium of a year be declared to stop the influx of out-of-town pharmacists who flood the local labor market. The appointment of two full-time registered pharmacists as inspectors of drug stores will also be requested.

A survey of local drug stores made by the society shows so far that the average pharmacist works between 56 and 65 hours a week. Other drug associations have informed the NRA that the average of hours worked is about 80 per week. The meeting tonight, at the Y. M. C. A., is being held at 11:30 p. m., so pharmacists can attend after their work is done.

Arts Secretary Will Speak.

"Washington, the National Capital" is the subject of an address to be given Monday night by H. P. Caemmerer, executive secretary of the Fine Arts Commission, before the Woman's Club of Arlington County at a meeting in Community Hall on Columbia pike.

Byrd to Sail On Saturday

Expedition Awaits Special Airplane Loading Device.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—The steamship Jacob Ruppert, flagship of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition, finished loading supplies at the naval base here today and moved to the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co.'s plant for installation of a boom to load and unload airplanes. When that work is completed she will be ready to begin her voyage to the bottom of the earth.

Admiral Byrd, suffering since Sunday with a throat ailment, was able to leave his room today for the first time since Sunday. He will sail with the Jacob Ruppert late tomorrow or Saturday. Her time of sailing was indefinite, and would depend on the time required at the shipyard.

U. S. Relief Fraud Case Nears End

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—The case of Robert J. Byers and George S. Krieger, accused of defrauding the Government in connection with the sale of surplus army goods, neared a Federal court jury tonight as both defendants completed their testimony.

Defense counsel said at the end of the day's session that only a few character witnesses remained to be called, indicating the case might reach the jury tomorrow.

Both defendants denied they sold at excess profit army goods intended for distribution among the poor.

Two British Cruisers Expected in Washington

The Navy Department announced yesterday that two British cruisers, H. M. S. Norfolk, flagship of Vice Admiral, the Hon. R. A. R. Plunkett-Ernle-Erle-Drax, CB, DSO, commander in chief of the American and West Indies station, and H. M. S. Danae will visit Baltimore and Washington, respectively, from November 6 to November 13. The Danae will be moored alongside the dock at the Washington Navy Yard.

Tentative arrangements have been made for the entertainment of the officers and men of the British cruisers during their stay in Washington and Baltimore.

Vice Admiral Drax, who was born August 28, 1880, is the second son of Baron Dusany. He went to sea in H. M. S. Brittania in 1896 and has a notable career in the navy which included service afloat with the Grand Fleet and was present on board the H. M. S. Lion, at the Heligoland action, Dogger Bank and Jutland. He was awarded the Russian Order of St. Stanislas, second class, in 1916, and the Distinguished Service Order in 1918 while comanding H. M. S. Blanche. From 1919 to 1922, he was Director of the Royal Staff College, Greenwich, was president of the Naval Allied Control Commission in Berlin in 1923 and 1924, and served as Naval Aide-de-Camp to the King during 1927 and 1928. He was appointed Rear Admiral of the First Battle Squadron in 1929 and after duty as Director of the Manning Department, Admiralty, he was commissioned Vice Admiral in September 1932.

Commander W. R. Munroe, U. S. N., of the Office of Naval Intelligence, will act as liaison officer and special representative of the Navy Department.

After an exchange of official calls with State and municipal officials in Baltimore on November 6, Vice Admiral Drax will leave for Washington, where his flag will be flown temporarily in H. M. S. Danae.

Rear Admiral Henry V. Butler, U. S. N., commandant of the Washington Navy Yard, and Capt. Hayne Ellis, U. S. N., Director of Naval Intelligence, will call on Vice Admiral Drax, after which Admiral Drax will make an official call on the Secretary of the Navy and at the Department of State and War Department.

The Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay, will entertain at dinner on Monday evening, November 6, in honor of Admiral Drax, and on Thursday, November 9, the Ambassador and Lady Lindsay will entertain at a dance in the Embassy for the officers.

On November 8, Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Claude A. Swanson, will give a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel for Vice Admiral Drax, the commanding officers of the Norfolk and Danae, and others.

On Thursday, November 9, the officers of the Norfolk and Danae will visit the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where they will be guests of Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, U. S. N., the Superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Admiral William H. Standley, U. S. N., Chief of Naval Operations, will give a reception in honor of Vice Admiral Drax on Friday, November 10, at the Naval Observatory.

The warrant officers of H. M. S. Danae will be the guests of the United States warrant officers at the Washington Navy Yard on Monday, November 6.

A dance for the ship's company of the Danae will be given on Monday, November 6.

Filmy Kerchief Imparts Grace To Deb's Hands

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The modern miss, with her interest in sports, careers, and all that sort of thing, is often at a loss when she steps out in her best bib and tucker. Her arms hang stiffly and her hands get in her way.

To those who suffer from this ailment, we bear good tidings. Evening kerchiefs are back. Don't ask us where they've been the last few seasons. We were so thrilled to see them again that we didn't ask. But we do know they are useful to impart a sense of fluid grace and assurance to awkward, inflexible hands.

Ostrich outlines the points of these diaphanous chiffon triangles. Soft poudre blue is especially pretty, but they may be had in a wide color range.

Versatile is this new kerchief. If you weary of using it for its intended purpose, throw it over your shoulders for a scarf. It will emphasize the allure of your gown as well as give you the new high neckline.

The price is $3.95.

Even a bride of two weeks, who hasn't had time to settle down to such prosaic things as cook books, can bake her very own fruit cake for this Thanksgiving. Business girls who rush in and out of their apartments every whipstitch, with never a moment to give to a genuine domestic undertaking, such as baking a cake, can take 10 minutes from their Saturday shopping and produce a fruit cake baked with their own hands.

"What do you mean, 10 minutes?" you ask. "It takes longer than that to shell the nuts, to say nothing of preparing the fruit."

Well, here is good news. You no longer need to crack a single nut, nor prepare one bit of fruit. Just buy a pound tin, filled with a delicious mixture that requires only the addition of liquid. As contents of the tin are pasteurized, they will keep in good condition indefinitely. The price in 35 cents.

A clever variation of the humidor is a cigarette humidome. The black wood base has a sparkling chromium top, decorated with a wooden knob in a design reminiscent of a Chinese pagoda.

To bring out the better nature on the humidome, fill the lid with water, then pour it out. That's all.

You will find it in a downtown department store.

Pansy is the color of an entrancing new evening gown. We practically ran out of "oh's" and "ah's" when this particular model was trotted out in a Connecticut avenue shop for our approval.

There's rhythm in the long, flowing lines which are interestingly broken by a wide girdle that crosses in back at the waistline and fastens in front with a rhinestone and pansy enamel ornament. The back is cut extremely low but there is a matching scarf which, when properly manipulated, covers the shoulders and upper arms.

Thirty-nine seventy-five is the price.

We've always heard that the French are a thrifty people. Here's another instance to prove it. A Frenchman makes a spicy new perfume. But does he waste time trying to think up a name for it? He does not. He reaches across the Atlantic and takes the name of one of last season's most popular shows, translates it into French, and there you have "De toi je chante." If you've had as many as six lessons in French you should be able to figure it out. It's on sale in an F street store at $1.75 the quarter ounce.

Here's more chromium. No matter how we try we can't get away from this beautiful gleaming metal. This time it makes an amusing bud vase with four small cylinders placed at various heights on a cylindrical stem. Each cylinder is large enough to hold two buds. Dark red roses are especially attractive, although bright flowers in any hue make a striking bit of decoration when nodding their fragrant heads above sleek, sophisticated chromium.

The price of the vase is $1.

Home-made candy finds a welcome in almost any home. And home-made candy such as this should have an extra special glad hand. It's made in a Fourteenth street store, but it's made with good, substantial, old-fashioned recipes and first quality ingredients. There are several varieties to choose from, nut bars, fudge, caramels, coconut kisses, pecan crunch and any number of others.

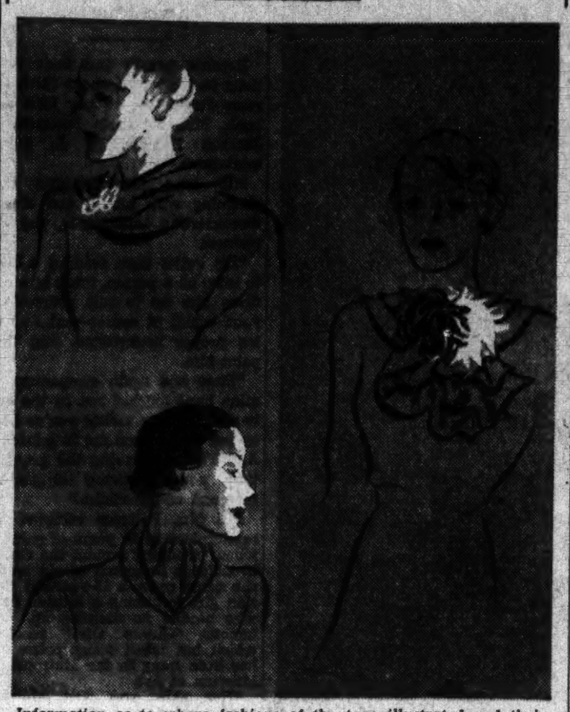
Higher Necklines Used Frame Face Becomingly

Directed by Amos Parrish



Information as to where fashions of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Your dress neckline does for your face what a frame does to a picture. Get the wrong lines . . . the wrong margin . . . it's spoiled. Get the right ones . . . now see how the picture looks! Get the right necklines . . . now see how your face looks! That's why we're so keen about the new higher ones. They do a grand framing job.

A good many of your screen favorites think so too. Katherine Hepburn . . . Greta Garbo . . . think how often they choose dramatic, throat-swathing costumes for the thr-r-r-illing scenes in their pictures. And witness Joan Crawford in the romantic black velvet of "Dancing Lady." Right up under her tilted chin, encircling her neck with gardenias.

Flower Accents.

The sketch up there at the right shows another way to use flowers at your neckline. Those soft, feminine posies make a good place to dab perfume, too. And they remind you of having a buttercup held under your little-girl chin to see if you liked butter.

Of course all higher necklines aren't so demure. That's why they can flatter such different types of faces and necks so becomingly. Some women like high-tying jabots or wide-spreading bows better.

Some can stand the severe sophistication of the mandarin collar. That's the perfectly straight, upstanding type you see on many Chinese costumes.

Tailored Muffler.

Drape Much Used.

But probably the neckline that does more of the high framing than any other is the drape, soft and close. Looking through the shops these days, you see so many of these that you might almost think Fashion had developed a delicate throat. Until you remember that delicate health went out long ago, with those old-time high collars that were riveted up the sides of women's necks with strips of whalebone.

These new swathings are for flattery alone. Sometimes they're draped from yokes. Sometimes they're cut all in one with the bodices. Or they're plastron bibs that you can take off.

And we especially like the adjustable kinds. Like one we saw that was draped around the throat and buttoned high on the left side. When unbuttoned, it fell down into a soft revere. A quick-change stunt such as women have learned to look for and like.

Canned Meats Make Hurried Meals Tasty

Ready-to-Serve Viands Now Wholesome to Use With Left-Overs.

By Ruth Chambers.

The housewife who prides herself upon her cooking and who likes to have her meals marked by that distinctly home-cooked flavor is apt to overlook the convenience and the variety presented by the excellent quality of prepared meats now offered in glass or tins.

She may consider that their use smacks too much of "cooking with a can opener," not realizing that these foods need not be served just as they come from the can, but that they may be used in a variety of ways, sometimes to supplement left-overs of home-cooked meats or vegetables, to use in preparing a hurry-up meal or to have a reserve in case guests arrive unexpectedly or prolong their stay till meal-time.

Creamed Ham Dish.

Here is a way in which a can of deviled ham may form the basis of a delicious hot dish of creamed ham and cauliflower. Cook a head of cauliflower whole. (If you prefer, use new cabbage, cutting the head in quarters and cooking it in boiling salted water until tender.) In the meantime, melt 3 tablespoons of butter, smooth into it 3 tablespoons of flour. Add gradually 1½ cups milk; season with a bit of pepper, a dash of paprika and 1 teaspoon minced parsley. When the cream sauce is smooth, add a can of deviled ham and stir until smooth and very hot. Pour over the cauliflower or cabbage and serve at once.

This sauce may be served over vegetables, such as asparagus, or it may be served with creamed eggs.

Ham, Cottage Cheese Croquettes.

Here is a cold dish made with prepared or left-over ham. To 1 cup chopped cooked ham add 2 cups cottage cheese which has been beaten until smooth. Shape into croquettes and roll in finely chopped nut meats. Serve on a salad plate with lettuce or curly endive.

Frankfurters are one kind of prepared meats which everyone seems to like. They may be combined with scrambled eggs for a tempting breakfast dish. Heat the frankfurters thoroughly in boiling water and then skin. Keep them hot while you scramble the required number of eggs and place in a mound on a hot platter. Lay the frankfurters around the base of the mound. Sprinkle the eggs liberally with paprika to give color. Garnish the platter with sprigs of parsley or a bit of watercress.

Serving Important.

Sometimes the way of serving cold meat makes a great deal of difference in its appeal. The cold meat platter may be used as appetizing in appearance as it is easy to prepare. Here are some suggestions for tasty combinations of food:

In using corned beef—the canned variety is very good for this purpose—arrange the slices between rows of sliced beets which have been dipped in finely minced parsley. At each end of the platter put a cupped lettuce leaf, filled with tartar sauce.

Cubes of mint jelly add flavor and color to the platter of cold lamb. Slices of pineapple may be used as a garnish for the cold meat platter.

Ethelyn Pratt Weds At Christ Church

Impressive Ceremony Unites Her With F. L. Thompson Before Many Friends.

A wedding of wide interest was that of Miss Ethelyn Clagett Pratt, daughter of Mrs. William T. Pratt, and Mr. Francis Leith Thompson, of Rockville, which took place Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Christ Episcopal Church. The bride was gowned in white satin, made on simple lines, and a tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The ceremony was performed by Canon Arthur B. Rudd. The church was impressively decorated in palms, ferns and white lilies.

Mrs. Allison H. Chapin, of New York and Rockville, was matron of honor, and the maid of honor was Miss Laura G. Bradley. Mrs. Chapin wore a gown of pink lace with a blue velvet toque, and carried pink roses and delphiniums, while Miss Bradley wore a gown of blue lace with a pink velvet toque, and carried pink roses.

Mr. Arthur P. Thompson was his brother's best man. The ushers were Mr. Sidney Thompson, Mr. Karl Kincheloe, Mr. Paul Brunett and Mr. Allison Chapin.

Mrs. Pratt, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black lace. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left soon after the wedding for an unannounced destination, Mrs. Thompson wearing dark blue traveling outfit. Mrs. Pratt entertained the members of the wedding party informally, on Tuesday evening, immediately after the rehearsal.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Lester Butler, and her son, Lester Butler, jr., of Durham, N. C., and Mr. and Mrs. C. Hopewell Warner, of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will make their home in Rockville.

The Family Marketer

Fish, Oysters and Turtles Furnish New Ideas For Menus.

"Yes'm, that man over there," the fisherman pointed with a weather-beaten hand, "is my cousin, and that one there and there and there. We're all cousins."

The Marketer looked around a little dizzily.

"Do you mean to say you all are related?"

"Yes'm, we had the same grandfather." The man perched himself on one of the piles on the waterfront. "There are five of us down here."

"And do you all have different boats, and sell your fish independently?" asked the Marketer.

"Oh, sure. Nothing like competing against your family. We cut each other's throats in the daytime and go to the movies at night and get the same laugh."

Trout, fresh from the Chesapeake, sells at the waterfront at 10 cents a pound. Croakers are three pounds for 25 cents and large Norfolk spots are the same price. All of these are uncleaned.

Crab meat off the boats is priced at 25 cents a pound, in the stalls at 40 to 60 cents. Oysters are 40 to 50 cents a quart, clams 15 cents a dozen.

In one of the stalls, the Marketer sighted a small turtle. The fisherman imparted the information that the turtle, versatile creature, has about 27 different kinds of meat under his shell. Turtles are just beginning to come in. A three-pound one sells for about 40 cents.

At the farmers' market near the waterfront you can get the cabbage for today's salad, 3 pounds for 10 cents. Carrots, in bulk are the same price, California carrots, 2 bunches for 15 cents. Lettuce is 5 cents a head.

Land cress, which is like water cress, except that the leaves are larger and that it doesn't grow in the water, is a newcomer on the stalls. It sells for 4 pounds for a quarter now, but later on will be cheaper. It can be cooked like spinach, or used raw in a green salad.

The price of corn meal in the chain stores has dropped to 25 cents for 10 pounds. Rice in bulk is 5 cents a pound.

Baked Trout.

Wash trout carefully, salt, and roll in corn meal. Place in greased baking pan, and lay a strip of bacon across the top of the trout. Bake in moderate oven (325 to 350 degrees F.) for 10 to 15 minutes.

Spanish Rice.

Cook 1½ c. tomatoes with 1 small onion and ½ teaspoon salt for ten minutes. Add 3 c. cooked rice, and cook slowly for 10 to 15 minutes. Just before serving, add ½ chopped green pepper and ½ c. American cheese cut in small pieces or grated.

Dinner for Four at 69 Cents.

Mrs. McCrory, chairman of historic spots, told of attending ceremonies at Rippon Lodge when a marker was placed on the Old Kings Highway. She read a letter from Warrington Dawson, of the American Embassy in Paris, giving information of the Frency army at Yorktown.

Albert B. Kerr to Wed Miss Rosalie Stevens

Judge and Mrs. George Seaton Stevens, of Salem, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Rosalie, to Albert Boardman Kerr, of New York.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Maj. George Seaton Stevens, former Commonwealth's attorney and judge and clerk of the court of Nelson County. Through her mother she is a direct descendant of Thomas Randolph and Col. Thomas Marshall of Revolutionary fame.

Mr. Kerr is the son of Mrs. James Kerr, of Washington, and of the late James Kerr, one-time representative from Pennsylvania, and influential in Democratic affairs. He is a descendant of Alexander Kerr, who came to America from Scotland and settled in Lancaster County, Pa., in the seventeenth century.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Staton Earnest Friend of Girl Scouts Juniors.

Any question pertaining to Girl Scouting finds a ready and sympathetic listener in the person of Mrs. Adolphus Staton, who devotes all her spare time to Community Chest organization. Mrs. Staton believes that her work with this organization is of sufficient importance to demand her entire attention and she gives it, freely and willingly.

"Every woman should have an interest in some welfare work," Mrs. Staton says. "Personally, I am devoting all my time to the Girl Scouts, and more specifically, to the younger group known as the 'Brownies.' These are the Scout students of from 7 to 12 yers of age. The Brownies, because of their youth, are, I think, more receptive to the work of the Scouts and this gives them an opportunity to start life in the right direction.

"The Girl Scouts are a vital factor in the life of America, furnishing, as the organization does, a means of wholesome, recreational life to its young girls. Scouting makes of the girl of today a better woman for the future. Its work at present is highly important as character-building agencies are necessary to meet changing conditions which have caused so much trouble and broken up so many homes. Families whose daughters formerly attended private schools and camps and now forced to send them to public schools and membership in the Girl Scouts offers them the kind of recreation and companionship to which they have been accustomed. I think, on the whole, that Scouting is sufficiently important to occupy one's entire spare time, and I know of no better work for which a woman could volunteer."

Miss Hays to Speak.

Monroe Chapter Holds First Fall Meeting

The first meeting of the President Monroe Chapter, D. A. R., for this season was held at the home of the regent, Mrs. John Knox Arnold, on Twenty-eighth street. Her mother, Mrs. N. D. Scott, also was a hostess. Mrs. Arnold presided.

The guest speaker for the evening was Arturo Y. Casanova, who told of the ride of Caesar Rodney, of Pennsylvania, whose vote turned the tide for the Declaration of Independence.

W. E. Baker Speaks Today.

W. Elwood Baker, general secretary, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will address the Maryland State Teachers Association convention in Baltimore this afternoon at 3:30 at City College. His subject will be "The Support of Education in the Present Crisis." Mrs. William T. Bannerman will speak on "The Legislative Program of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers."

No End of Books

War-Time Hysteria of Nation's Clergy Described at Length by Dr. Ray H. Abrams; Abbe Dimnet Arrives to Teach Us How to Think and Live.

"If you turn hell upside down you will find 'Made in Germany' stamped on the bottom," screamed Billy Sunday in 1918, and most of the other preachers of the day were equally submerged in wartime hysteria. Dr. Ray H. Abrams, of the Department of Sociology of Pennsylvania University, quotes their flaming sermons in "Preachers Present Arms," recently published by the Round Table Press.

It is plain, says Dr. Abrams, that "the clergy as a class, much to the chagrin of some penitents, took the verdicts of the administration and proclaimed them as the judgments of Almighty God."

Abbe Ernest Dimnet, teacher extraordinary to the American people on "the art of thinking" and "the art of living," has just arrived in New York for his lecture tour of three months. This is already an annual event.

Ernest K. Lindley, correspondent here of the New York Herald Tribune, has written a book on these parlous times—"The Roosevelt Revolution"—which the Viking Press will publish on November 13. Although this phrase may seem a little familiar by now, Mr. Lindley laid claim to it by announcing his title as long ago as September 3.

An absolutely unspoiled village of the Middle Ages was found by Sydney Clark at Stein am Rhein, on the upper reaches of the Rhine in Switzerland. He is the author of those books to delight a Scotchman's heart—"Germany on $50" and "France on $50." Another, "Italy on $50," has just been published by McBride. In the spring comes "Switzerland on $50."

Marrying for Money.

A novel, "LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK," by Alec Waugh; Farrar & Rinehart, $2.

No thesis is more pleasant to debate, either in fiction or learned article, than the one predicated by Mr. Waugh in this smooth and rapid-reading tale of Faith Mallery, modern Cinderella; Ralph Gaveston, her good prince husband, and Gerald Ownsley, X-factor in the triangle. The thesis for debate is this: What doth it profit a woman to realize her dreams and lose her first love? Can you have your cake and eat it, too?

The story is of Faith—middle-class English family, no background, no outlook. With middle-class Gerry Ownsley she has dreamed her dreams and had a taste of love, but not of life. Honorable, kind, rich in a perfectly normal but unbelievably Cinderella-and-the-Fairy-Prince manner, Ralph offers her marriage and the fulfillment of her nebulous dreams. Marriage follows, still all dream-like, and only the shadow of first-love Gerry remains. Then, in a little more than a twelvemonth, Gerry becomes rich and Ralph is reduced to the edge of ruin. But he proves false, and Faith's shadow moves out of her life.

There are three periods in Faith's life which Waugh records with some fidelity to character. There is the time, as an automatically responding stenographer, when she detaches real from ideal self and indulges in day dreams at her clicking typewriter. Then there is her awakened self after marriage. She finds the same hollowness and dullness of outlook in life then which she had imagined would disappear when money came.

The third period, when she has returned to semicomfort but has learned something of the vicissitudes of life, is the happiest. The birth of a child contributes to this.

Mr. Waugh has contributed no new solution to the problem of what a woman should do who marries ostensibly for money, then discovers the poor man would really have made her happier. Because here the poor man becomes rich and then turns for the worse of all. He has, however, produced a readable novel—which in these days is something. DON BLOCH.

The Encyclopediac.
Philo Vance.

"THE DRAGON MURDER CASE," a Philo Vance story by S. S. Van Dine; a mystery; Charles Scribner's Sons, $2.

Writing in the first person and playing a modern Watson to the Sherlock Holmes characterization of Philo Vance, Mr. Van Dine takes the reader to the edge of the "Dragon Pool," into which a man has dived and failed to come to the surface.

It is difficult to see why murder should be suspected, but when the pool is drained, under Vance's direction, no body can be found.

The scene is laid at an estate on the outskirts of New York City in a region aboundjng in Indian lore. Legends tell of a dragon that lives in the natural pool and these tales are supported by the evidence of a half-crazed woman who claims to have seen the dragon flying away with the body.

The circumstances give Mr. Van Dine an opportunity to discourse, through the medium of Philo Vance, on the place of the dragon in the history and religions of the world. A technical discussion of rare aquarium fish is also introduced to divert the reader's attention from more pertinent facts relating to the crime.

Van Dine has cleverly arranged his characters, who are residents and guests at the estate, so that each has ample motive to commit murder. One of the principal suspects, however, disappears and his mutilated body is found at the same spot as that of the first victim.

Philo Vance is brought into the case at 11:45 p. m., on Monday, August 11. At 5 p. m. the following Monday, August 13, Vance has pierced the veil of mystery which has surrounded every occurrence, the murderer meets a just, though accidental death, and every detail of the crime has been reconstructed for the edification of the reader.

The story unfolds with many side-trips into the realm of mysticism and science. These have their value as information, for all they somewhat retard the action commonly associated with detective fiction.

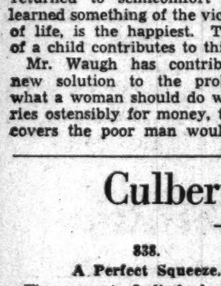
A Perfect Squeeze.

The recent Indivdual Masters' Championship Tournament had as entrants 36 players, all of whom, at one time or another, had won a championship event recognized as of national importance by the American Bridge League, which sponsored the event. Some of the hands played were extremely interesting, one in particular developing for the Declarer a very pretty squeeze which, strange as it may seem, few of the experts realized in actual play. As a matter of fact, Mr. Walter Malowan and Mr. E. A. Wetzler were the only players to make a Small Slam, which some did not even bid. The only available method of making the contract was by means of the squeeze.

In this tournament each of the 36 contestants played four boards with every other contestant as a partner and, of course, eight boards with every other contestant as an adversary. It is a rather unique form of Bridge, which is essentially a partnership game.

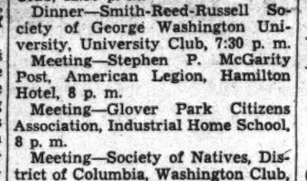
The hand was:
South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
5♡	Pass	6♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

West's opening lead was the spade Queen, which Declarer won with the Ace. He now took three rounds of hearts and two rounds of clubs, winning the last club in the Dummy in order to take the finesse in diamonds. When the diamond finesse held, another heart was led in order to force West to make another discard. West had previously discarded two spades on the heart leads. At this point he discarded the Ten of clubs. Now a diamond was returned and won with the Ace, whereupon Mr. Malowan laid down the heart Queen. The situation around the table at this time was:

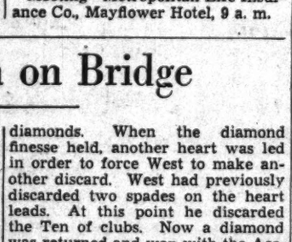


West found the pressure too great. To discard a spade would permit the discard of a diamond in the Dummy and the winning of two of the last 3 tricks with the spades. If he chose instead a diamond, then Mr. Malowan would discard a small spade in Dummy and win the two last tricks by at once leading a diamond, which West would be forced to win. East, of course, was entirely out of the picture.

Tomorrow's Hand.

What is the best plan of play for South to make four hearts with the hand below?

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

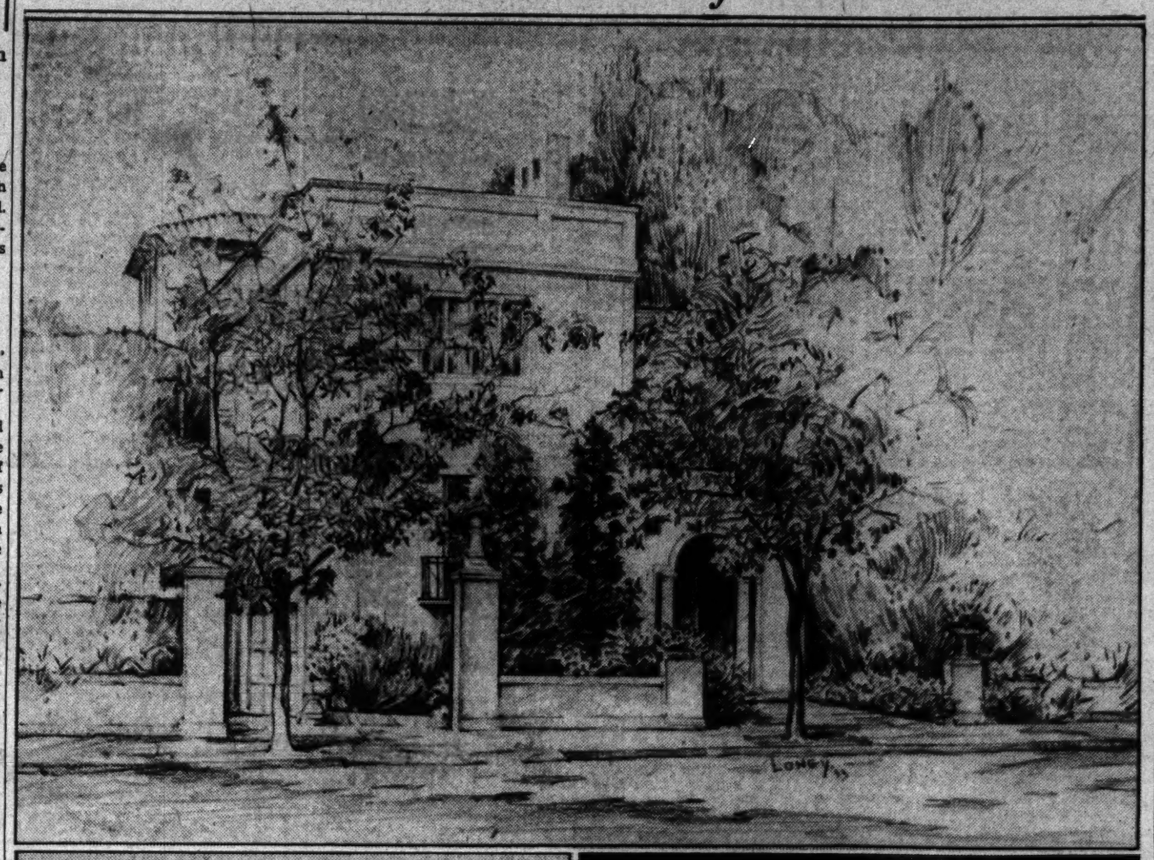
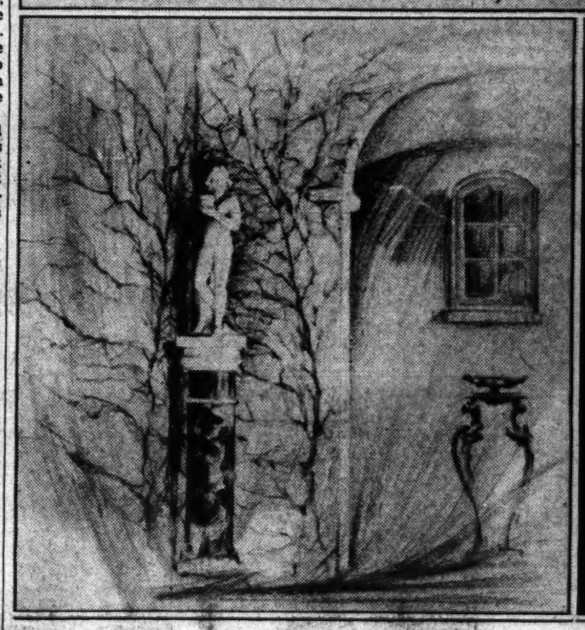
Pink Palazzo Home of Cunibertis





Harris & Ewing

The exotic pink palazzo of the Cuniberti family, 3224 R street, shown in the picture above, has an interesting history which includes four stages of remodeling since its present owners acquired it several years ago. It is now a typical Italian palazzo. Below, at left, is a view of the enchanting entrance loggia, which contains two slim statues and a fountain. Below, at right, is a photograph of Mrs. Cuniberti, now in Italy with Mr. Cuniberti and their sons.

Italian Villa Adds Vivid Splash to Quiet Georgetown

Columned Loggia, Marble Fountains and Terraces Form the Inviting Approach to This Princely Estate.

Regardless of a person's cosmopolitan qualities, no matter how much a citizen of the world he is—when he makes his home in a new land, this new nest is likely to be made in the style of his native country.

So it is that if the exotic pink palazzo of the Cuniberti family at 3224 R street seems like an orchid in the bed of old-fashioned perennials that is Georgetown, it is still just the natural house for an Italian gentleman.

The average person, on passing the Cuniberti house, will say, "what a lovely Spanish house." Mr. and Mrs. Average Person are hardly to be blamed, for Italian houses are very rare and a tropical looking pink house is just naturally classified as Spanish.

The grace and suavity of the Italian style is exemplified in this home. A columned entrance loggia extends invitingly through several levels to the street. One passes here a fountain and two slim statues, one in marble, another in bronze. Vines form a delicate patterning on the wall. The atmosphere is that of some retired Medicean palace.

Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti and their young sons have returned to Italy for a year or two. They are living near Bologna in the ancient home that has been in the possession of the family for three centuries. Not that the Cuniberti family is so entirely Italian. Theirs was a happy international romance, Mrs. Cuniberti being an American girl, and a Western one in the bargain.

Not Much to Begin.

But what one would never guess about this pastel palace is that its inner core is a nondescript brick and frame structure of casual and characterless style. Also that it has passed through four stages of remodeling under the Cuniberti ownership.

When Mr. and Mrs. Cuniberti acquired the house it was a small and fairly uninteresting place. It was not an old house, neither was it young. It was just a colorless, middle-aged place. They remodeled it rather simply, without materially changing its size. It received its coloring of ashes-of-roses pink and an unpretentious Italian style.

The first real growth of the place came in 1926, when Horace W. Peaslee, architect, designed a small but graceful entrance loggia with a tinkling little fountain. Over this loggia there was added another bedroom.

Then Comes Expansion.

One year later, in 1927, the Cunibertis experienced an urge to do important things to their home. One master bedroom was doubled in size by combining it with another bedroom. But most interesting was the growth of the house upward to provide a special domain for the Cuniberti laddies. A tower suite of rooms was added above the roof to provide play, study and sleeping quarters for the boys. If ever there was an ideal home range for boys, where they might delight their hearts and invite their souls, this tower group of rooms is it. Windows face to the four winds and there is a splendid view of the Potomac and the blue Virginia hills, with residential and industrial Georgetown lying in the middle distance.

Three more years and in 1930 the Cunibertis again became smitten with the desire to expand. This time they doubled and redoubled their play and the home took on its present beautiful aspect. From a little house it grew to a literal palazzo.

The music room was enlarged from 15 by 20 feet to 34 by 20 feet. The dining room was similarly enlarged. Reproductions of large Italian stone mantels were placed in both rooms. Another bedroom was added, a charming room that tempts one to gush superlatives over its little corner fireplace with raised hearth and hooded mantel. The garage space was increased from two to four-car capacity.

Loggia Entrance Featured.

But the most striking change was the development of the loggia entrance to the street level in a succession of gently descending levels. An outer courtyard also was developed with a boundary wall, heavy screen planting and double entrances marked by gateposts of the same material and color as the house.

The Italian motif is, naturally, carefully preserved in interior treatments and furnishings. Carved furniture, too large for any small house, fits easily and graciously into the spacious rooms. The mullioned ceiling of the music room is serene and abbeylike. And the visitor can not forget the tenuous glitter of the dining room chandelier—an Italian creation of crystal lilies.

As you go up the broad and winding staircase, you pass an ascending line of prints of scenes in that beloved Italy. The upper rooms, too, hold the foreign aura.

University Club Begins Musicales

Songs and Sketches Delight Audience at First of Series.

George O'Connor, with a host of local talent, last night officially opened the winter series of musical events at the University Club before an enthusiastic audience that was generous in its applause. With the usual varied assortment of talent and presentation, Thomas W. Brahany, acting as master of the program, unfolded to the capacity audience a program of songs and sketches. Those taking part in the program included Fred East, barytone; Helen Howison, soprano; William J. McNally, raconteur; Mary O'Donoghue, mezzo-soprano; William Raymond, tenor; Edwin C. Steffe, barytone; Charles Trowbridge Tittmann, basso; Edward J. Walsh, reader, with Matt Horne, Evelyn Thomaides and George Wilson at the piano.

Numerous dinner parties preceded the program, among the hosts being Dr. and Mrs. Horatio M. Dorman, with Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Geiner and Dr. and Mrs. Don S. Knowlton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Parish, with Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Pagan and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Burkinshaw; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bonnelycke, with Dr. and Mrs. J. H. McHale; Commander F. W. Southworth, with Mrs. L. A. Delano and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. W. Cochrane; Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway, with Mrs. Flora Stanton Kalk, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Russell D. Burchard. Mr. George O'Connor had in his party Mrs. O'Connor, Miss Helen O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. William J. McNally, Mrs. Frank J. Horigin and her son, Mr. Frank Horigan, and Mrs. R. O. Sanderson.

Others who had large parties were Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Meloy, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Kinnan, Judge and Mrs. Joseph W. Cox, Mr. Martin Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Adams, Mr. Francis Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Sewall Key, Mr. R. H. A. Carter, Dr. and Mrs. Marvin A. Custis, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford K. Berryman, Mr. James William Sommerville, Dr. Charles C. Clark, Mr. J. Moyle Gray, Col. and Mrs. Joseph I. McMullen, Mr. Walter E. Kelly, Mr. Newell W. Ellison, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Knox Gartner, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hall and Mr. Appleton P. Clark, jr.

At the conclusion of the program the artists were guests of honor at a buffet supper at which Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway acted as host on behalf of the board of governors.

Bickerton W. Cardwell To Wed Marian Peel

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 19.—Dr. and Mrs. Ferdinand P. Calhoun, of Atlanta, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Marian Peel, to Bickerton Winston Cardwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patterson Cardwell, of Hanover County.

Miss Calhoun is the granddaughter of Mrs. Abner Welborn Calhoun and the late Dr. Calhoun and also of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson Peel, of Atlanta.

Miniature Painter Reads Thrilling Stories in Faces

Elizabeth Paterson's Most Famous Model Was a Scrubwoman.

Because people and their reactions to the world about them are more fascinating to her than any book, Mrs. Elizabeth Paterson, of Jackson Heights, N. J., paints miniatures.

Her long turquoise-blue eyes gleaming with humor and almost disconcerting intelligence, she explained:

"It's better than reading a book to seize on a person, think him out, dress him up to suit yourself—in your mind, of course—put him in his proper background, and then paint him.

"Time and again companions of mine have touched me on the arm to say, 'Do you realize you've been eyeing that person for 20 minutes?' And I'd been having the grandest time, never realizing the embarrassment of my victim."

But Mrs. Paterson achieved her masterpiece in 25 years of painting when "snooping around the Ghetto in Chicago in search of old brass," she came upon a 15-year-old Russian girl scrubbing a kitchen floor, who needed no dressing up. Her famous "Ghetto Girl" resulted, which has taken many prizes and has been hung in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

"Her skin was just glowing! That gorgeous crescent of pink that came and went! I suppose she's married now and has a dozen babies and is simply nobody. I thought I'd die if I didn't paint her."

So, while the rag-man father scrubbed his hands at the kitchen sink, Mrs. Paterson persuaded the girl to come to the Art Institute to pose. Incidentally, too, she found the brass.

"She was precious! She came with that old fur hat teetering up on top of her head. But all of us raved so over her that she got to thinking she was a model. She came back later in a string of coral beads, with her hair turned up."

Children, even naughty children, are Mrs. Paterson's true love in miniature work, although she has done some notable grown-ups. Recently she has been doing a great deal of what she calls "memorial work:" painting from photographs and from mothers' memories the faces of children who have died.

"I get so tremendously interested in such children," she confessed, her bright face shadowed by sympathy. "The mothers are so pathetic as they pour out descriptions and recollections of their lost babies. I seem to have a gift for seeing children through their mothers' eyes."

Mrs. Paterson is in Washington this week at the Mayflower, arranging final details for some commissions she is planning to do in the Capital, after which she goes to Baltimore to paint an 18-month-old baby.

"I've always thought I'd like to go to England," said the tall, deep-bosomed, silver-haired woman. "Every time I see a picture of that little Princess Elizabeth I think how interesting she would be to paint!"

Take Dad's Advice.

Chicago (U.P.).—If you are going to be married and want to have the greatest chance for happiness, take the advice of your father to heart; but laugh if your mother starts to give advice. This formula for conjugal happiness was announced by the scientific research committee of the University of Chciago, which has been carrying on an investigation under the leadership of E. W. Burgess, professor of sociology.

Mephisto Speaks.

By Katherine W. Smith.

You have spoken with the crafty
Wisdom that Mephisto used,
You have woven lyric patterns
With your lips. One woman mused
About it all and half believed you—
Half regretted, half denied,
While her heart was quick to trust you,
Reason told her that you lied.

So bend your head and whisper lightly
Words of cunning repartee.
When you speak to me tomorrow
You'll forget that I am she.

Corsets Return To Mold Figure In Smooth Lines

Unlike Their Whale-Boned Ancestors, They Are Merest Trifles.

Corsets have made a comeback. This time it looks as though they may be with us to stay. In the decade or more since their consignment to fashion's limbo, they seem to have passed through such transformation, such evolution, as to be scarcely related to their whale-boned ancestor.

Today's corsets are feathery things, cleverly cut. They are a far cry from the heavy, steel-burdened harness that grandmother wore. In their cut is their secret. They fit so beautifully, mold the figure so perfectly. They lift the bust, flatten the abdomen, control the hips, and give grace to the waist, without once resorting to punitive measures.

Steel is being used again, here and there, it is true. But, where it is needed, steel is doing its good work in horizontal rather than perpendicular ways. No longer do corsets constrict the vital organs, shorten the breath, and impede free action as their heartily disliked predecessors did.

Net, batiste, taffeta, satin, elastic—a wealth of luxurious materials—go into the making of today's "foundation garments," and with all their festive daintiness, they are every one washable.

They come in many styles. There are the all-in-one garments, complete with brassiere and petticoat. There are tiny girdles that give just enough support to the slender figure to control "wabbles." There are stouter types which give the lie to extra pounds and lend a smooth, continuous, flowing feminine line.

When the corset is simply a corset, there are special brassieres to go with it, which masterfully mold the upper body, and bring busts into harmony with waist and hips. These are specially designed for the woman whose busts and hips are out of proportion.

Slips, panties and petticoats are stepping out, too, to keep abreast of the style pace set by the modern corset. They are all being more subtly cut, so that outer garments will fit smoothly over them. For it's just as bad form to have clothing and undergarment wrinkles, as it is to have body bulges!

Ship Interests Paid Subsidies To River Group

Senators Trace Yearly Sums to Mississippi Valley Unit.

Evidence that the Mississippi Valley Association had received contributions from ship owners and ship builders for propaganda work in favor of a Government subsidized merchant marine was given yesterday before Senate committee investigating ocean mail contracts.

Lachlan MacLeay, St. Louis, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association, told the Senators that, while his organization's primary purpose was the development of inland waterways, it also interested itself in an adequate American merchant marine to provide American producers with national carriers to foreign markets.

He testified that since 1928 ship owners and builders had contributed $1,408 a year to the association for propaganda and publicity for subsidized merchant marine interests that went out as Mississippi Valley Association material, with no indication that it was being paid for by the American Steamship Owners Association. During the past year, he said, the ship owners had contributed $3,135 to his organization and the ship builders $300.

Publicity Label Urged.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, asked MacLeay if he did not know that there had been "fraud in letting many of these ocean mail contracts" to lines with which MacLeay and his association had cooperated.

MacLeay asserted that he did not know this, that the Mississippi Valley Association had accepted the advice of people whom he considered authorities on the necessity and fairness of subsidies in the form of ocean mail contracts.

During his questioning, Chairman Black suggested that the committee would recommend legislation to force all organizations to state the source of any propaganda and publicity that they distributed.

MacLeay earlier in the day admitted that his organization had received letters from the Cudahy Packing Co. and the International Harvester Co. protesting against conference agreements between American subsidized lines and foreign lines to raise freight rates.

Shipper's Penalty Seen.

Senator Black introduced one of the letters in which the shipper stated that they were penalized by a 50 per cent rate increase if they did not patronize the conference lines.

MacLeay said he knew nothing of such agreements, although his organization was investigating the protests.

"Did your organization ever make an investigation to reduce rates for the good of the Midwest farmers who you say help support the Mississippi Valley Association?"

"No. We took the word of Senators Fletcher and Davis and others that subsidies would reduce the rates," replied the witness. "If properly administered we believe that the policy of awarding ocean mail contracts would reduce the rates for shippers."

Obtained Mail Contract.

MacLeay told the committee that he had come to Washington to work for an ocean mail contract for the Mississippi Shipping Co., and that after the company obtained the contract he bought ten shares of stock at $116 a share, which had never paid him a dividend and which were now worth very much less than he paid.

Yesterday's hearing concluded the evidence on propaganda and publicity. Today the committee will recall Henry Heberman, president of the Export Steamship Co., and will also question H. I. Cone, Shipping Board chairman. A previous witness told the committee that Cone authorized her to speak before women's clubs as a Shipping Board representative when it was known that she was being paid by the American Steamship Owners Association.

Church Union Voted By Universalist Group

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP).—The General Universalist Convention today ratified the plan for association with the Unitarian Church in the Free Church of America. Two minor amendments were adopted. The Unitarian Church ratified the plan at a general convention last May.

The vote today was announced as unanimous, although previous to the vote the convention has been divided into two camps.

Death Orders Signed For 6 Kentucky Killers

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 19 (AP).—Death warrants for six men convicted of murder were signed today by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. He directed that three be executed in the electric chair at Western State Penitentiary, Eddyville, October 27, and three November 3.

AirAppeal Planned For Death Clews

Police Want Information in Francis Long Case.

Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke today will broadcast a radio appeal in the hope of getting some clew to the mysterious death of Francis Long, 13-year-old Washington Post carrier boy.

Inspector Burke will ask anyone who knows anything of the disappearance to report it. His broadcast will be over WOL at 9:55 a. m.

Police believe the boy was accompanied by some other boy to the vicinity of Washington Channel. They believe Francis fell into the water and was drowned, but his companion is afraid to tell of the incident.

Police Hold Two; Find Bootleg Equipment

Elaborate equipment, apparently designed to convert alcohol into finer liquors, and a variety of labels and bottles, were uncovered by the police liquor squad last night at 1723 G street northwest, following the arrest of two men.

Thomas J. Sullivan and Robert F. Green, of the G street address, were arrested after police found whisky in their possession.

36 Cemeteries Get $557,161 Works Funds

Battlefields and Military Parks Are Allotted $4,392,500.

An allotment of $557,161 to the War Department for construction and improvements at 36 national cemeteries was made yesterday by the Public Works Administration, which directed that the largest single expenditure, $232,299, be made for the Arlington Cemetery.

The Arlington fund will be expended for improvement of roads, repair of buildings, including the Memorial Amphitheater; clearing swamp areas and construction of a combination warehouse and garage.

For repairs to the Alexandria National Cemetery lodge, $850 was allotted. The Culpeper cemetery will receive $300 for repairs to walks; Staunton cemetery will get $1,500 for a garage.

Expenditure of $30,000 will be used for an extension to the cemetery at Hampton, Va.

Will Care for Battlefields.

The PWA also allotted $4,392,500 to the Office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, for improvements at national military parks and battlefield sites.

Of this sum, $1,500 is to drain the Battleground National Cemetery in the District of Columbia. At Antietam battlefield, $25,000 will be spent on roads and repairs to monuments, and $2,500 on tree surgery. Fort McHenry, Md., will receive $14,000.

A total of $1,421,300 of the allotment will be spent in Virginia battle grounds, $1,021,100 going to Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania battlefields. Petersburg National Military Park will receive $383,000 for roads and $10,000 for repairs to buildings.

$47,944 More for Langley Field.

The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics received $47,944 of yesterday's allocations for repairs to the laboratory at Langley Field, damaged by storms in August. Langley Field repairs already are being carried out on a $200,000 earlier allotment.

It is estimated the project will provide about 250 man-months of employment.

An additional allotment was made of $5,000 for laundry equipment and alterations to the Trades Building of the National Training School for Boys in Washington.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 to 9:15 a. m., from 3:30 to 4 p. m. and from 8 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 12 noon to 1:10 p. m., from 5 to 6:20 p. m. and from 10 to 10:50 p. m.

People generally will be inclined to spend money more freely than usually. Those who depend largely on gratuities for a living will prosper on this date. Something that has been withheld from you for a time will be released to you. It will come as pretty much of a shock and you will not be inclined to thank the person or persons who have been trying to shield or protect you.

The child born on this October 20 will in all probability be an artful little one; it will have a good sound reason for doing anything that it does. A kindness done by this little one will quite likely be done with an ulterior motive. This child will learn quickly and in some ways its mind will be lightning quick. It will prove itself to be a rapid calculator.

If October 20 is the date of your birth, you are more than likely a very jolly person who gets along well with most people and who is able to kid many a grouch into a good humor. You are the type who will never fail to do the least little thing that will promote your advancement. You make a point of knowing the right people and of being seen at the right places; you study to know the right thing to do and say, and you never fail to come through at the right time. You are a socially gracious person and you know all the drawing and ballroom manners. You put on a great deal and it is very difficult for you to be sincere.

Born on October 20, you are much more inclined to try to get by in business by pulling strings and working the angles than by getting in and putting your shoulder to the wheel. You are the type who finds it difficult to cooperate and who never gives another a hand at his work for fear of getting a part of that one's work as a definite assignment. If you can, you will marry the boss' son, or daughter, as the case may be. You will be most careful in choosing a mate. You may love your fiance a good deal, but the chances are that if he or she has money or social position your love would prove stronger. You will devote a great deal of time and money to the education of your children so that you can bask in their glory.

Successful people born on October 20:

Emma Calve, opera singer.
Francis H. Richards, inventor.
Hugh Bolton Jones, artist.
Alexander T. McGill, jurist.
Marshall Jewell, statesman.
John E. Trowbridge, composer.

Hawaii Government Vote Meeting Called

Honolulu, Oct. 19 (AP).—The question whether Hawaii is for or against its present territorial form of government will be put before an early mass meeting planned by the Honolulu Taxpayers Association, with a membership of 2,000. A committee of three has been appointed to set the date for the meeting.

Three Sisters Receive Nathan Strauss Estate

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Nathan Strauss, an organizer and first vice president of the Free Synagogue of New York City, and former president of the chamber of commerce of Portland, Oreg., who died last Saturday, divided his estate equally among three sisters, Bella, Clara and Ella Strauss, all of New York, in his will probated today.

Ship-Fitter Killed In 'Jinxed' Turret

Richard Kent Is Crushed by Gun Mechanism.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—Richard Kent, of Portsmouth, Norfolk Navy Yard ship-fitter, was crushed to death in a gun turret on the battleship Mississippi by gun-elevating mechanism today.

The mechanism crushed his skull and chest.

Auto Victim Gets $1,500.

Richmond, Oct. 19 (AP).—Ida Hannah Gary who asked $2,500 damages for injuries she said she received when struck by an automobile operated by Peter R. White, of Norfolk, was awarded $1,500 by a jury in law and equity court yesterday.

'Devil Slayer' Sent To Prison 8 Years

Linden, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Sherman Clayton was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment today upon conviction of a murder charge in connection with the "devil slaying" of his 3-year-old invalid daughter, Bernice, last winter.

The child was choked to death while Paul Oakley, self-styled "divine healer," was conducting weird religious rites over her.

N. Y. to Give Police Lessons in English

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Police Commissioner James S. Bolan announced today inclusion of a course in correct English at Police College so policemen "may be better able to get up at affairs and to discourse creditably on matters of police activity."

Attendance will be voluntary—but officers can attend only if off duty.

Capt. Sharp Given Cruiser Command

Capt. Alexander Sharp, jr., native of Washington, who has been stationed as president of the Naval Reserve Inspection Board, Navy Department, will be transferred to command the U. S. S. Concord, light cruiser, at San Pedro, Calif., the Navy Department announced yesterday.

The son of the late Capt. Alexander Sharp, U. S. N., Capt. Sharp's Washington address is 1545 Thirty-fifth street northwest. He will be relieved by Capt. Carl T. Osburn, now on duty with the Naval Reserve Board.

Capt. Sharp was in command of the U. S. S. Downes in the World War and was awarded a special letter of commendation by the Navy Department. An expert rifleman, he has represented the United States and the Navy in four international rifle matches.

Alleged Killer Held After 3-Year Hunt

Elizabeth, N. J. Oct. 19 (AP). Nicholas Delmore, a fugitive for more than three years who is under indictment for the slaying of John G. Finiello, a Federal prohibition agent, was arrested today by Union County detectives at his home in New Providence.

Delmore, a former roadhouse keeper at Berkeley Heights, was taken by surprise and arrested without difficulty.

N. J. Woman Killed In Auto Accident

Bennettsville, S. C., Oct. 19 (AP). Mrs. Ruth Westervelt, of Oradell, N. J., was killed and two other persons were injured near here when their automobile was struck by a lumber truck driven by Will Howard, of Cheraw, who was jailed pending an inquest.

$30,000 Allotted Mt. Vernon Road

Works Fund Will Be Used for Watering System.

Through allotment of $30,000 by the Public Works Administration, work is under way on a water supply system for the 250,000 shrubs and 20,000 trees transplanted along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway.

Announcement of this and two other public works projects was made yesterday by Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of National Capital Parks. Water and sewer facilities will be replaced in several older parks, with $54,500 allotted, and $15,000 is available for under draining side slopes adjacent to the Mount Vernon boulevard.

Work began last week on another P. W. A. project, the removal of dead trees and surgical treatment of those that can be saved. Ninety men have been employed Sanction No. 3971.

L. B. Bishop, Official Representative

R. E. Lynch, Chairman of the Board

EARLY last Summer the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association officially supervised a 5,000 mile Economy Run at Washington, D. C. The car used was a brand new stock Ford V-8 Sedan--sealed in eleven places to insure against any possible adjustment or tampering.

AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil were used exclusively. This Ford V-8 Sedan, even though driven continuously in and out of traffic, averaged 22.5 miles to the gallon of AMOCO-GAS.

Just recently a similar test was officially conducted by the A. A. A. Contest Board with a Ford V-8 White Freighter Truck, sealed in thirteen places to prevent possible adjustment. Again AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil were used exclusively.

Even though loaded with 3855 pounds of heavy sand bags, and even in the face of torrential rains, heavy winds, uncertain roads and traffic, this Ford V-8 truck, fueled with AMOCO-GAS and lubricated with AMOCO Motor Oil, turned in the following remarkable performance.

The truck traveled a total distance of 5402.6 miles over the highways of Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia, averaging 28.4 miles per hour speed. It delivered 16.2 miles to the gallon of AMOCO-GAS. A total of 1.939 quarts of AMOCO Motor Oil for 5402.6 miles. These are official A. A. A. Contest Board figures (see certificate).

Lower Costs Per Mile

These two tests support one thing a host of satisfied AMOCO users have long known. That whether with light car or heavy truck--with four cylinders--six cylinders--or eight cylinders--AMOCO-GAS and Motor Oil mean low costs per mile.

AMOCO-GAS gives more miles to the gallon--greater riding and driving ease--every premium performance at a reduced premium price. (AMOCO-GAS premium reduced 2¢ per gallon July 7th).

Make it AMOCO all the way and ride out the facts for yourself!

U. S. Control Of Business Seen as Goal

By Mark Ethridge
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Justice Brandeis' dissenting opinion in the Oklahoma ice case, concurred in by Justice Stone, is emerging as a fixed policy of the American Government.

Oklahoma authorities sought to enforce their right under a State law to require a citizen who wanted to go into the ice business to obtain a certificate of public necessity, the purpose of the law being to control production tending to disrupt employment and stability.

The Supreme Court majority overruled Oklahoma authorities, but in his minority opinion, Justice Brandeis held, in effect, that the day of "unbridled competition" was over and that men did not have the right to put money indiscriminately into productive enterprises already overdeveloped.

The National Industrial act, passed as an emergency measure, had for its essence control of industry to regulate production and increase wages.

No Abrogation.

It is moving out of the temporary stage of codification of business into the permanent stage of administration and enforcement and nobody in Washington expects its functions to be abrogated or weakened by Congress.

Whatever speculation there is as to its future centers in whether it will remain an independent agency or whether its administrative functions will be taken over by the Federal Trade Commission, the Department of Justice and the Department of Commerce.

Events of the past two or three days have stressed the Government's determination to maintain control of money. The cotton textile industry voluntarily yielded to the Recovery Administration the power to determine whether proposed replacements of machinery were in the public interest.

Under the agreement, the manufacturers are to register their machinery and "prior to the installation of additional productive machinery by persons engaged or engaging in the cotton textile industry, except for the replacement of a similar number of units of productive equipment, or to bring the operation of existing productive machinery into balance, such persons shall secure certificates from the administrator that such installation will be consistent with effectuating the policy of the National Recovery Act during the period of the emergency."

Doubt Rule to Be Relaxed.

In some circles it is taken for granted that the principle of "public necessity" established in the agreement and the control established under the codes may be altered or modified but not relaxed.

At the same time the textile agreement was being made, Secretary Roper was announcing that an enforcement and compliance agency for the NRA was being established.

A little earlier President Roosevelt had prescribed a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment as punishment for violators of the NRA codes. The action was taken as his answer to rumors that he had become less enthusiastic about what the NRA was doing.

Administration officials feel that, after the emergency has passed, industries will desire the continuation of those provisions of the codes intended to guarantee fair competion and stability rather than a reversion to what Hugh S. Johnson described as disruption caused by the "ten per centers—the cut throaters."

Money Policy Advanced.

The administration has advanced its policy of money and production control in a number of ways recently. Before he set the price of oil, Secretary Ickes fixed production. In announcing processing taxes and loans for the benefit of the farmer, the Agricultural Administration stressed production control. Farmers who do not help to reduce the surpluses will not benefit. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has refused to make replacement purpose loans unless equivalent productive machinery has been taken out of use, if capacity of an industry is already more than needed.

Recent evidences have been that there will be no relaxation of the control of securities trading established in the last Congress and that, if alteration is made, the act will be more stringent. The act was designed to bring securities sales under public scrutiny and to hold those who make representations accountable. Continuance of the stock market investigation was decided upon so that all weaknesses of the present system of securities sales might be revealed as to be dealt with in legislation.

Wesley Heights Club To Hold Stag Night

Wesley Heights Community Club is sponsoring a "stag night" tomorrow evening at 8:30. Carl W. Mitman is chairman of the arrangements committee. The party will be given at the clubhouse.

The annual golf tournament, open to residents of Wesley Heights and Spring Valley, will be held this year at Congressional Country Club, October 25. Playing will begin at 12:30. After the tournament there will be a dinner, followed by awarding of prizes.

Former Electric Firm Official Kills Self

St. Louis, Oct. 19 (AP).—King L. Parker, 40, former vice president of the Emerson Electric Co. and socially prominent, killed himself today, officers said.

Parker had been in ill health for several years. His former wife, Mrs. Marie Josephine D'Assern Parker, a former member of the Polish nobility, and their two children, live in New York.

Radio Waves and Ripples

A resolution proposed by Commissioner Lafount would permit broadcasters to apply for increases up to 50 per cent of authorized night power without charging the added watts against their regional power quotas.

If adopted, the Lafount proposal will open the way for WOL, weakest of Capital stations, to increase the range of the new Ed Wynn broadcasts without going to the trouble of asking the commission to raise the power quota for the District.

Thus far WOL minds have shown no inclination to go to the mat with the commission for more power, being content for the present in hoping public acclaim for the A. B. S. programs will build up a case for them.

Someone should speak seriously to the broadcasters about lack of convinciveness in radio drama. Most of the playmakers seem to be working under the impression television is a standard household commodity, making their works as universally visible as they are inescapably audible.

With sound the only medium of dramatic expression available until television people get around to conventionalizing their product, radio play-writing requires a technique quite different, we should suppose, from the business of making movie and stage pieces.

This department has particularly in mind the last Warden Lawes broadcast, assumed to have been a serious attempt at serial dramatization of his "20,000 Years in Sing Sing." It turned out to be a dissertation of penology with confusing sequences of not too diverting dialogue.

With former Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, Novelist Fannie Hurst (left) considers the NRA at 10:45 tonight on WJSV. Heard now and then in a N. B. C. broadcast is Ludwig Hofman, new Metropolitan Opera Company basso.

WMAL Breakfast Clubman Arthur Godfrey means to go out into the country one of these days to listen to a cow being milked.

He decided that yesterday after a few of the people in Maryland and Virginia wrote in to complain about the rhythm of cow-milking noises he's been broadcasting mornings. One letter writer offered to give Godfrey lactoing lessons.

Godfrey would feel a lot worse about it all if the milking noises weren't simply sound records.

Wilbur LaRoe, jr., chairman of the civic committee of the Washington Federation of Churches, starts the Community Chest drive here with a WMAL broadcast tomorrow night at 7:15. Maj. D. J. Donovan, District auditor; Representative Chester Bolton, Ohio, and Dr. George Wilson, District welfare director, will be other Chest speakers.

WMAL's Dixie Harmonies, a colored song team that's been performing on Capital airwaves for more than three years, will start at 9:45 Sunday night for 15 minutes of radioing without breaks for announcements of any sort.

Networks, after all, will be carrying the President Roosevelt degree presentation at Washington College tomorrow. But the President, if he speaks, will just say a word or two and quit. The White House was pretty firm about that.

WJSV yesterday agreed to take Columbia's General Motors broadcast renewal, scheduled to begin daily except Sunday for 52 weeks December 18, which is almost too far ahead to be thinking about.

German Ambassador Hans Luther will help WJSV observe the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, the ambassador's ancestor, November 10, by making a speech at 10:45 p. m.

International broadcasts are two today—George Lansbury on British politics, N. B. C., 4:15 p. m., and Lord Robert Cecil on disarmament and the League of Nations, WRC, 4:10 p. m. . . . Cecil was a member of the Arms Conference preparatory committee and an observer at Geneva when Germany withdrew . . . an N. B. C. microphone goes into New York Rotary's meeting Thursday to pick up Commerce Secretary Roper at 3 p. m. . . . Sir Arthur Henderson is another international broadcaster Monday, answering questions on Britain's social insurance plans . . . "Steeplechase," occupying an hour on WRC's broadcast schedule this afternoon, is mostly an N. B. C. idea for trying out new talent . . . N. B. C. puts Ohio-Michigan, Columbia-Princeton and Army-Illinois on the grid waves tomorrow afternoon, while Columbia's Husing concentrates on the Ann Arbor clash . . . Webster VanVorhis will play Hitler for "March of Time" tonight, WJSV, 8:30 o'clock . . . a Huey Long portrayal also is due . . . Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce; Herbert L. Pettey, Radio Commission secretary, and Harry Butcher, one of the C. B. S. bosses here, will help Mayor E. F. Ticer of Alexandria, on the WJSV anniversary broadcasting tonight, 10:30 . . . another "Dinner Table Discussion of the NRA" has been turned over to Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Agriculture Secretary, and Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell, C. B. S., Monday. . . . Columbia brings back the Eddie Duchin Band November 1.

Lay Church Corner Stone.

The corner stone of the new First Methodist Episcopal Church South of Hyattsville will be laid tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. The ceremonies will be in charge of Mount Herman Masonic Lodge. The Rev. C. H. Cannon, first pastor of the church, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Bishop Freeman at Communion.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will administer Communion at services Sunday at 11 a. m. in St. John's Episcopal Church at Beltsville.

Wheat-Laden Freight Trains Defy Embargo

Bismarck, N. Dak., Oct. 19 (AP). Wheat-laden freight cars trundled out of North Dakota tonight in defiance of Gov. William Langer's embargo, aimed to producing higher prices.

The governor ordered mobilization of the National Guard to prevent shipment of wheat out of the State, but without word which would send them into action until he studied the legal phases of his edict.

Railroads disregarded the proclamation barring out-State shipments and carried on business as usual. Their executives said the next move was up to Langer.

Langer, just as positive the embargo should be effective, told Adj. Gen. Earl Sarles to prepare guardsmen for action.

Olson Refuses Embargo.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota declined to join Langer in ordering an embargo, and urged Federal action for control of production and price fixing.

He said agriculture was in a sorry plight, but that he did not believe an embargo was the solution. Measures will be considered at a Western governors' conference at Des Moines soon, he added.

Presidents of four railways serving the State gave Langer formal notice it was their opinion Federal regulations required acceptance and transportation of any wheat offered them.

The message sent from St. Paul was signed by W. P. Kenny, of the Great Northern; Charles Donnelly, of the Northern Pacific; C. T. Jaffray, of the Soon Line. and H. A. Scandrett, of the Milwaukee.

They said they "realized the necessity of higher grain prices and if the people of North Dakota obey your command, common carriers will be in no way involved in this matter."

Embargo to Continue.

Railway executives said they would continue handling wheat until North Dakota interfered, in which case court action was expected to follow, by the carriers or a shipper. They said there was some curtailment due to the embargo and their notice that consignments were subject to delay.

Langer said, after hearing that his ban was not being adhered to, that he had no intention of revocating and that it would continue indefinitely unless courts voided it.

Trio Convicted Under Mann Act

Judge Reserves Sentence on 2 Women and Man.

After a trial lasting five days, two women and a man were convicted yesterday of conspiring to violate the white slave act. Justice Joseph Cox, District Supreme Court, before whom they were tried, reserved sentence.

The trio are Earl Pannell, Ada Mae Bryant, and Sadie Reed. They were convicted of operating a place in Southwest Washington with women brought here from Winchester, Va. A 14-year-old sister of one of the defendants was among witnesses presented by James Kirkland, assistant United States attorney.

Clagett Marks 30 Years' Phone Work

Official Started as Clerk With Firm in 1903.

Thirty years of service with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. was celebrated yesterday by Charles T. Clagett, assistant general manager.

Mr. Clagett is widely known by both subscribers and employes. He was born in Upper Marlboro, Md., and started with the company as a clerk in 1903.

Mr. Clagett is a member of the executive committee, Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital; the advisory committee of Riggs National Bank, and several civic and fraternal organizations.

Garner, Farley Greeted As "Future Presidents"

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson welcomed Postmaster General Farley and Vice President Garner at a banquet here tonight with the assertion both were "probably future Presidents."

"We have John Garner and Jim Farley, of whom we are proud," she said. "Probably future Presidents of the United States. Take your choice; Franklin Roosevelt and I will be too busy the next eight years to decide for you."

Officials Guests At Lodge Banquet

Royal Order of Scotland Closes Year's Work.

being destroyed in the midst of starvation and human need.

"We condemn such destruction as being criminal and ask all organizations interested in honor and decency to help in preventing such destruction. Apparently our Government has changed from 'millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute' to 'millions for the destruction for food, but not one cent for the protection of American homes'."

"We have asked to be refinanced, but the machinery of finance is still in the hands of bankers and other racketeers who only see profiteering of the people whom they are to help. We asked for sympathetic and understanding cooperation and we were answered by the appointment of C. T. Jaffray, president of the Soo Line and president of the First Bank Stock Corporation, a chain institution, an arch enemy of agriculture, to liquidate closed banks of the Northwest.

"We asked for a national moratorium to prevent foreclosures and dispossesions, while the administration was sparring for time to bring us needed relief, but no such moratorium has been proclaimed. Thousands and tens of thousands of our home owners would now be out on the public highways of the Nation with their families helpless, unless the Holiday people had massed together to save these homes. It is now apparent that if these homes are to be saved that we shall have to do it ourselves—and that we intend to do."

A national farm strike was voted last April at a meeting of the National Holiday Association at Des Moines. Actual plans were left to the executive committee, but the strike later was called off.

Reno Leads Conference.

Strike talk was revived last month at a Holiday Association meeting here in conjunction with the annual State meeting, on the grounds that the A. A. A. will not guarantee cost of production.

The conference here was attended by Milo Reno, Des Moines, national president of the association, and about 20 other directors representing five North Central States, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin and Iowa. A statement said the strike would be effective in the 24 States in which the Holiday Association has members. has members.

There are more than 2,000,000 farmers who are members of the national association, Walter Groth, Clinton, Minn., secretary of the Minnesota association, said.

Billings, Mont., Oct. 19 (AP).—Indorsement of the National Farmers Holiday Association action in calling a strike of farmers throughout the country was given here tonight by John A. Simpson, of Oklahoma City, president of the National Farmers Union.

Only a few hours before Mr. Simpson saw the Montana branch of the union vote a resolution urging Gov. F. H. Cooney to place an embargo on exportation of wheat from the State.

Asked whether he would countenance bloodshed, he said:

"A strike is a revolution. It is not a pink tea. There has never been a strike or a revolution in which some one did not get hurt. My definition of a strike is a courageous minority making a cowardly majority be good."

Badger Farmers May Strike.

Superior, Wis., Oct. 19 (AP).—A. N. Young, president of the Wisconsin unit of the Farmers Union, said tonight that he believed his organization would participate in the National farm strike called in St. Paul.

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 19 (AP).—Walter M. Singler, of Shiocton, Wis., president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool which conducted milk strikes in February and May of this year, tonight said he believed the pool will join in the farm strike called by the National Farm Holiday Association.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 19 (AP).—C. A. Dyer, legislative agent for the Ohio Farm Bureau and the Ohio Grange, said tonight "farm strikers have no following in Ohio."

"The Ohio farmers are dissatisfied but they are not radical, and they won't follow that windy group in the West," Dyer said.

Indians Will Not Join.

Indianapolis, Oct. 19 (AP).—William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation, said tonight his organization would "take no part whatsoever" in the strike activities of the National Farm Holiday Association.

"We do not believe anything can be accomplished by such methods," Settle said.

Placerville, Calif., Oct. 19 (AP).—The California State Grange, meeting here in its annual convention, will ballot tomorrow on participation in the National farm strike.

Nebraskans Keep Aloof.

Yutan, Nebr., Oct. 19 (AP).—Harry Parmenter, president of the Nebraska unit of the National Farmers Holiday Association, tonight said he had not yet decided whether to call farmers of this State to join a strike scheduled for next Saturday.

"Events of the next two days," Parmenter said, "will determine whether we enter the strike."

In Lincoln, F. C. Crocker, secretary of the State association, indicated Nebraska holiday leaders will meet tomorrow to discuss the strike.

Olson Sees Farm Revolt.

Detroit, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota tonight described the national farm strike called today in St. Paul as the "inevitable rebellion" of farmers against lagging adjustment of farm prices.

Boost in Tax On Wheat Seen To Aid Prices

Farm Adjustment Heads Consider Support of Market.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

Definite prospects appeared yesterday for a substantial boost in the processing tax on wheat, levied at the rate of 30 cents a bushel since July 9, with sentiment for the increase gaining much headway among Farm Adjustment Administration officials.

It was reliably reported that a continuation of the recent weakness in wheat prices while consumers' costs climb upward would be certain to result in a higher levy within six weeks.

The increase may come sooner, but Administration officials first want to know if the current price slump is of a temporary nature. Some of them were impressed by yesterday's strength, with Chicago price 12 cents above Tuesday's close.

Government purchases of wheat for relief purposes were credited with having an important part in the rise, but on this phase of the program officials were silent. Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Credit Administration, refused to disclose the extent of wheat purchases during the day and indicated only infrequently will figures be made public.

When the processing tax was announced last June, it was ordered levied at the full rate permitted under the farm act—the difference between the current average farm price, then reckoned at 85 cents a bushel, and "parity" price.

Service to Be Held By Dr. Cartwright

Solemn Novena Honors St. Jude Thaddeus.

Dr. John Keating Cartwright, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, Eighth and N streets northwest, will officiate today at a solemn novena in honor of St. Jude Thaddeus, patron of hopeless cases.

Special services will be held at 12:15 p. m. and 7:45 p. m.

Dr. Cartwright will be assisted by the Rev. Leo Sponar, of Cleveland, Ohio.

A solemn requiem anniversary mass will take place tomorrow at 10 a. m. for James G. Rowe, noted figure in the turf world, who died two years ago.

Coroner Jury Absolves Driver in Fatal Accident

A Prince Georges County coroner's jury last night held Mrs. Mary Peet came to her death accidentally Wednesday night when she was struck by a truck driven by William Vogel, of 301 Allison street northwest.

Mrs. Peet, who was employed here, was killed as she walked from behind a bus on the southern Maryland pike in front of her home.

Stocks Slump Again Under Thin Support

Losses Average 3.6 Points as Sales Mount to 2,895,895 Shares.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Security markets lurched downward again today, reserving their most substantial action for the last half hour when trading was active and support thin.

A net decline of 3.6 points in the Standard Statistics-Associated Press stock composite pulled that average to 68.4, the lowest since May 9.

Stock market followers again seemed subject to a case of discouragement and nerves aggravated, no doubt, by a goodly crop of rumors, chiefly with respect to foreign affairs.

Some Decline Recovered.

Dribbles of liquidation appeared in the morning, but selling was fairly well taken and the market succeeded in recovering much of its decline, only to run against heavier offerings. The closing tone was weak, the general range of losses being 1 to 5 points. Volume increased to 2,895,895 shares.

Such leaders as U. S. Steel common, Allied Chemical, New York Central, Union Pacific, Du Pont and Santa Fe were under pressure virtually all day and were among the larger losers. Steel broke 36 for a net loss of 2½, Union Pacific went well under 100 and was down 5¾, while Central closed at 26¾, off 3 points.

American Telephone lost 1¾ net, Pennsylvania, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Harvester, Case and Union Carbide 2 and 3, and several liquor stocks 4 to around 6. American Can was fairly steady.

Foreign Exchange Erratic.

Foreign exchanges were rather erratic, with the dollar off and French francs recovering, through market hours, part of Wednesday's loss. Denials that France would leave gold were heard here, but the situation was still one to command attention.

The most tangible piece of news came after closing time, when the New York Federal Reserve Bank reduced its rediscount rate from 2½ per cent, where it had been since May 25, to 2 per cent. Although one reason for a rediscount was probably to bring the rate closer to open market levels for money, a more logical explanation appeared to be the bank's desire to encourage lending by banks.

With member bank excess reserves up substantially to around $800,000,000 and with credit still moving slowly, the central bank authorities obviously desired to hold out this further inducement to make loans. Credit expansion has been one of the Government's major offensive weapons; apparently it is still to be regarded with high favor.

Latvia Opens 3d Sugar Mill; Plans Another

The government program designed to eventually make Latvia independent of foreign supplies of sugar has resulted in the recent opening of a sugar mill at Libau, according to advices from Consul A. E. Carleton, Riga, made public by the Commerce Department. This makes three sugar mills now operating in that country.

It is understood that the three operating mills will not be able to produce sufficient sugar annually to supply the country's requirements, and that a fourth will be erected in another district, the actual site for which has not been determined.

According to figures issued by the Latvian administration of the sugar monopoly, the two sugar mills which have been operating produced approximately 25,000 metric tons of sugar during the year ended August 31, 1933. It is estimated that total production of the three mills in the year ending August 31, 1934, will be in excess of 30,000 metric tons. Consumption of sugar in Latvia is slightly over 40,000 metric tons annually.

Wall Street Briefs.

The Tricontinental Corporation, an investment trust, has acquired a substantial interest in the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance Co., it was announced today by Earl Baille, chairman of the former. It was reported recently that Tricontinental had obtained the stock holdings of E. C. Jameson, president of the Globe & Rutgers, along with those of other large shareholders.

C. E. Dawson, president of General Motors Fleet Sales Corporation, which handles the sale of General Motors cars and trucks to large national fleet users, reported today that September sales in units were 41 per cent ahead of those for the same month last year and the largest monthly unit transactions in more than three years.

Official Views on Business

If Cabinet Goes on the Air It Must Present the Whole Picture.

By Ralph West Robey.

For the administration to put its entire Cabinet on the air in order to inform the American public of the "current business improvement" would be an interesting development under any condition. At present, however, it is doubly so. This is because practically every business report that comes out shows not that business is climbing to new heights, but rather that the slump which started well over two months ago is continuing. This decline, too, is taking place at the time of year when the normal trend is substantially upward.

For the week ending October 14, for example, electric power output showed an increase of only 7.4 per cent over that for the same period last year as contrasted with an improvement of 9.3 per cent for the week ending October 7, and 10.2 per cent for September 30. This is the worst relative showing made in electric power output in some months. Only a short time ago it was running some 12 to 15 per cent above the corresponding period in 1932. The current badness is credited in no small measure to labor troubles.

Steel Production Now Below 40 Per Cent.

Steel production, too, again has suffered a drop after showing stability or a little improvement, in the preceding two or three weeks. It now is down below 40 per cent of capacity, as contrasted with almost 60 per cent a short time ago. The expectation, according to the trade journals in this field, is that there will be still further recession.

Freight car loadings, also recently have been failing to maintain their earlier good record. In fact, the present expectation is that the report to be issued this week-end for the period ended last Saturday will show only a very small improvement over the comparable week for 1932 and may actually fall below that figure. If it does it will be the first time that this has happened since last spring. At one time 1933 was running close to 30 per cent above 1932.

The other standard indicators of business have been almost as bad. Bank clearings and debits to individual accounts are substantially below their peaks and department store trade, as measured by the index of the Federal Reserve Board, has fallen from 77 in August to 70 in September. On every side, in other words, there is evidence that as yet business has failed to start its normal upward fall swing.

Employment and Pay Rolls Continue to Show Betterment.

It must be recognized, nevertheless, that there unquestionably are favorable elements in the situation. Employment figures, according to governmental estimates, still are showing an improvement and pay rolls are advancing. In the organized security and commodity markets the trend has been downward, but the Bureau of Labor Statistics index for wholesale prices continues to show an increase.

It will be a valuable service, therefore, if the Administration will integrate all of these factors and tell us in simple language exactly what business is doing. Perhaps, as intimated in the reports concerning the plans for these radio talks, it has much information that is not generally available to the public. If so, it is to be hoped that it will present it in its proper background and let us know how much has been accomplished to date.

In making such a presentation of the business record and outlook, however, there is one thing which the Administration spokesmen must bear in mind. This is, that half truths will not do. If they undertake the task at all, they must be prepared to do a thorough job and let us have the whole picture, not a mass of selected favorable items.

Bonds Decline As Secondary Loans Sink

Losses Average Half Point on Larger Sale of $9,766,000.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Bonds presented a nervous program today and secondary groups, after dipping and rallying intermittently, followed stocks in a final slide.

The sales volume was not much ahead of yesterday, the total reaching $9,766,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans lost another half-point.

While most lower-priced issues declined sharply, United States Government securities were generally steady to firm and a few of the higher grade corporation maturities managed to hold moderate gains.

Federal Bonds Up.

The majority of Federal bonds were up one-thirty-second to four thirty-seconds of a point, and issues of American Telephone, American Metal, Cleveland Union Terminal, Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville, Lorillard, Norfolk & Western, and Union Pacific advanced fractionally to around a point.

News affecting bonds was not particularly bearish, but the weakness of stocks, combined with the confused European outlook and domestic industrial recovery problems, tended to call out liquidation in the more sensitive divisions.

Rails found the heaviest going and losers of 1 to 3 or more in this section included some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Denver & Rio Grande, Illinois Central, K. C. Southern, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Southern.

Utilities and Industrials.

Among utility and industrial victims, off 1 to around 2, were issues of American & Foreign Power, Armour & Co., Chile Copper, Goodrich, International Paper, International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, Laclede Gas, Mead Corp., National Steel, Shell Union and Warner Bros.

Reports of a possible overthrow of the French cabinet brought further unsettlement of the republic's bonds with the 7s and 7½s losing 2¾ and 4¼ points, respectively.

Dutch East Indies loans were down 1 to 2, Swiss 5½s declined 2¼ and issues of Argentine and Ireland gave up a point or more. The Germans rallied 1 to 2 points.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

What the Stock Market Did.

	Thur.	Wed.
Advances	49	83
Declines	662	550
Unchanged	99	121
Total issues	810	754

Stocks—Active trading and thin support sent stocks down 3.6 points. Rumors regarding foreign affairs were blamed. Sales increased in volume to 2,895,895 shares.

Bonds—Secondary loans led bonds to lower ground. Losses averaged five-tenths of a point. Sales increased slightly to $9,766,000.

Curb—Prices were forced down in late selling. A rally in the early afternoon caused the list to firm, but increased sales volume resulted in losses. Trading shot up to 406,000 shares.

Wheat—Brisk new upturns were largely wiped out by speculative selling. The early rise carried prices to the highest point reached lately. December wheat sold at 79; May, at 80⅝.

Cotton—Price changes were narrow under limited demand. The general market was unchanged to 5 points lower. December sold at 9.16, October, at 9.00.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed steady, 13 to 20 points lower. December sold at 6.99, January, at 7.10.

Sugar—Raw sugar declined 5 points under increased offerings of duty frees, to the basis of 3.20; refined remained unchanged at 4.60.

Gold—Bar gold sold in the United States at $29.18 per ounce, $1.15 under Wednesday's quotation. It sold in London at 129 shillings and 11 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar lost on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.53½ to the English pound; 5.57 cents to the French franc, and 34.00 cents to the German mark.

Daily Reserve Credit Rises $45,000,000

(Associated Press.)

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended October 18, as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks, yesterday was $2,497,000,000, an increase of $45,000,000, compared with the preceding week and of $262,000,000, compared with the corresponding week in 1932.

On October 18, total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,513,000,000, an increase of $36,000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with $88,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $24,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, nonmember deposits, &c., offset, in part, by a decrease of $23,000,000 in money in circulation and an increase of $55,000,000 in Treasury currency, adjusted.

Bills discounted declined $3,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Banks of San Francisco and $6,000,000 at all Federal Reserve Banks. Holdings of bills bought in open market and of United States bonds and Treasury notes show practically no change for the week, while holdings of Treasury certificates and bills increased $31,000,000.

Curb's Prices Are Sent Lower After Rally

Heavy Selling Puts Total Turnover for Day Up to 406,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Curb prices gave way under a late selling wave today, closing 1 to 5 points lower. A feeble rally in the early afternoon, following a forenoon sag, gave the list a better appearance for a time, but volume tended to increase on the late decline. Transfers amounted to approximately 406,000 shares, compared with 219,000 for the previous day.

Mining shares and alcohols were heavy, while smaller losses were recorded by oils. A number of specialties lost heavily, including an 8-point drop by Dow Chemical.

Shares off 4 to around 5 points included Aluminum Co. of America, Bunker Hill & Sullivan, General Tire & Rubber, Hiram Walker, New Jersey Zinc, Parker Rust Proof and Pan-American Airways.

Newmont, Gulf Oil and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams lost 2 or more each.

Building Group Here Reports Steady Gains

Columbia Is Added to List of Associations With Rise in Assets.

Columbia Building Association is another local institution joining the roll of those showing business gains during the first half of 1933.

Word was received here yesterday from headquarters of the United States Building and Loan League, 104 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, that the national organization had added this Washington association to its list of those revealing increases in assets during the first six months of 1933.

The first list of seven local associations was reported last Sunday. This included the American Building Association, Washington Permanent Building Association, Equitable Cooperative Building Association, Perpetual Building Association, National Permanent Building Association, Oriental Building Association No. 6 and Metropolis Building Association.

Company 26 Years Old.

Columbia Building Association, located at 716 Eleventh street northwest, is now 26 years old. It has made an excellent record in the community during the last quarter of the century, having paid regular interest to depositors and steadily building its assets.

In 1932, it remodeled its home under an extensive plan which changed the entire front of the structure and provided for enlarged banking space for the public throughout the entire first floor. The entrance was changed from one side to the center of the building.

The old front was removed and replaced by a new one featuring black and white marble and aluminum ornamentation. The second floor was remodeled and personnel which had been using the space on the first floor rear was moved to the enlarged space on the second floor.

New Counters Installed.

New low counters were installed providing five bronze wickets along the south side of the banking room and the enlarged lobby was extended back to the stairs leading to a balcony. The board room was located in the balcony.

A feature of the decorations was an innovation in mural arrangement. Above the mahogany paneling, 6 feet high, on artist's canvas was painted pictures of 12 actual houses in Washington and vicinity signifying the association's business of financing homes.

They represent homes of three types, Old English, Spanish and Early American Colonial, varying in size from a $4,000 bungalow to a $1,000,000 mansion. They are finished in perspective, with shrubbery, walks and grounds and lend an unusual atmosphere to the interior.

Officers Reelected.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the company last week, all officers and directors of the association were elected. They are J. B. Harrell, president; H. B. Denham, vice president; C. A. White, treasurer; C. E. Kefauver, secretary. The board of directors is composed of the foregoing officers and F. J. Auth, J. William Weber, A. O. Denham, C. Gay Harrell and C. Krogmann.

The association is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the District of Columbia Building Association Council.

Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank, who has been appointed committee chairman for the Fifth Federal Reserve District under the new Federal Deposit Liquidation Board, began his work yesterday with a series of conferences on problems related to his new duties.

The board, which is a division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, will deal with the problem of closed banks. Mr. Fleming, it is announced, will appoint a committee to assist in appraising assets of the closed institutions in the local Federal Reserve district.

Prices of Copper Steady After Drop

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—The price of copper steadied today after its recent descent from the 9-cent level. Sales were reported at 7⅝ cents a pound, or ⅛ cent above the market quoted early yesterday.

Most custom smelters, it was reported, have withdrawn offerings at 7½ cents and are quoting 7⅝ cents.

Declines continued in some other nonferrous metals, notably lead, which was marked down .1 cent to 4 cents a pound by the American Smelting & Refining Co. Today's reduction in lead prices was the fourth this week.

Brazil to Push Exports for Building Navy

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 19 (AP).—The ministry of marine announced today that Brazil hopes to increase its exports of manganese, cocoa, cotton, rubber, nuts and oil, trading them for the construction of 28 naval vessels.

The 28 vessels will include two 8,000-ton cruisers, six submarines, nine destroyers, six minesweepers, three tankers and two smaller ships. Two docks also will be constructed.

The embassies at Washington, London, Paris, Rome, Tokyo, Stockholm and Oslo have invited bids to be submitted before December 15 on the basis of long-term payments.

Coffee has been excluded from the proposition because it is Brazil's principal export and trades might complicate the marketing.

Under the plan, it was added, Brazil proposes to rent its navy yard to the successful bidder for the construction of as many units as possible here.

Federal Bond Issue's Success Is Hailed as Faith in Dollars

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—If Government credit is any criterion of currency soundness, the success of the United States Treasury's $500,000,000 issue of 10-12 year bonds might well indicate that the dollar is fundamentally stronger than the French franc, some Wall street experts say.

With the books open but a few days, this issue was oversubscribed four times, while the French treasury's last loan, floated last summer, was not oversubscribed until the books had been kept open for weeks.

The state of government credit, financial experts explain, is of vital importance as a factor in judging the intrinsic soundness of a currency, for it is the loss of government credit which usually prompts the printing of unsecured paper money. No longer able to borrow, a treasury which must have funds, has no alternative than to start its printing presses.

The fact that the United States Treasury, which is no longer redeeming its currency in gold, finds borrowing relatively easier than the French treasury, is pointed to as indicating that factors other than immediate gold redeemability must be considered in judging the safety of a currency.

The chief reason that some American capitalists have transferred funds to France, it is explained, is the fear that our Government might follow the suggestion of some inflationists and deliberately print greenbacks in an effort to lift prices. The French are firmly opposed to inflation, but are laboring with a large government deficit, as well as a serious adverse trade balance, so that inflationary steps might eventually be forced.

Bank Rate Cut to 2 Per Cent.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank today reduced its rediscount rate to 2 per cent from 2½. It had been at the latter figure since May 25.

U. S. Tobacco Imports Gain In Malay Area

Although total tobacco imports into British Malaya in the first half of 1933 declined 15 per cent in value as compared with the corresponding period of last year, imports of American tobacco rose by 7 per cent, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Trade Commissioner C. H. Boehringer, Singapore.

This development, it is pointed out, was due to the fact that the volume of imports of American leaf tobacco dropped only slightly—from 830,881 pounds to 816,697 pounds—while receipts of all other American tobacco products increased.

Total imports of tobacco products into British Malaya in the first six months of the current year amounted to 5,484,932 pounds, of which 834,114 pounds were direct receipts from the United States. The corresponding figures for the first half of 1932 were 6,684,198 and 846,883 pounds, respectively.

Belington Water System Gets Board's Approval

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 19 (Spl.).—Word has been received from Washington by the State Public Works Advisory Board that the Federal Public Works Administration has officially approved the construction of a water system at Belington, Barbour County, along with a loan and grant therefor of $45,000.

The project is the first to be authorized for West Virginia. It includes the construction of a filtration plant, a chlorinating plant, extensions to mains, fire hydrants and other equipment.

Move Is Made to Halt Cutting of Coal Prices

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 19 (Spl.).—With the object of putting a stop to the cutting of retail coal prices in this section, the Harrison County Retail Coal Dealers Association has named a committee to petition the NRA code authorities for Northern West Virginia for power to take the Blue Eagle away from offenders.

Wheat Upturn Is Reduced in Selling Drive

Federal-Sponsored Buying Still Aids Prices; All Grains Down.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—Brisk, new upturns in prices took the wheat market aloft today to the highest point reached of late, 12 cents above Tuesday's low. The advance met with heavy speculative selling, however, and gains were largely wiped out.

Fresh but spasmodic Government-sponsored buying of wheat had much to do with the rise of values, and so likewise did Minneapolis reports that probably 1,000,000 barrels of flour had been sold from mills this week.

On the other hand, bears in wheat put emphasis chiefly on weakness of securities and on unsettlement of foreign exchange, factors which at times let wheat values down 3 cents a bushel.

Wheat Closes Irregular.

Wheat closed irregular, ranging from 1⅛ cents decline to 1⅜ advance, compared with yesterday's finish; corn, 1¾ to 2½ cents down; oats, unchanged to 1 cent lower, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20 cents.

Houses with Eastern connections were prominent as sellers of wheat most of the day, especially on bulges in prices. A striking feature of wheat operations was persistent narrowing of the price difference between December and May contracts.

Whereas at the close on Tuesday, December wheat was 4 cents under May, the difference today was reduced to about 2 cents at the extreme.

Drag on Values.

A drag on values of all grain was estimated that in the past two weeks 637,000 bushels of Danubian rye has cleared for the United States. This grain will come into competition at the seaboard with that raised by farmers in the Dakotas, where drought this summer has resulted in one of the smallest outputs in many years, suggesting a return of less than $1.50 an acre.

There were also indications today of further large imports of rye from Canada, although the amount imported already from that country is in excess of the total South Dakota yield, 880,000 bushels.

Corn and oats showed decided relative weakness as compared with wheat. Rural sales of corn to arrive here were the largest in some time, and Eastern demand for corn was less active. Provisions were pulled down by selling in conection with official announcements in regard to processing taxes.

Trade Failures Gain Slightly During Week

New York, Oct. 19.—Business failures for the first week of the month are a little above the number for the two preceding weeks, but there is still a marked decline from the total for the early days of September and August. The reduction from the corresponding weeks of last year and two years ago continues very large. Reports to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., show 263 business defaults in the United States for the week ended October 5 against 251 and 259, respectively, for the two preceding weeks, and 496 in the corresponding week of last year.

The increase this week over last week is entirely in the East and the West, while for the South and the Pacific Coast States another reduction was shown. Compared with the high figures a year ago, the improvement continues most noteworthy in the South. Further than this, failures still are considerably reduced in number against a year ago in the East, the West and for the Pacific Coast States. Of the past week's failures in the United States, 155 had liabilities of $5,000 or more in each instance, against 173 and 156, respectively, in the two weeks preceding, and 309 similar defaults a year ago.

Canadian failures numbered 54, against 47 in the week preceding. Last year for the corresponding period, 60 failures occurred.

Britain Regains Financial Goal, Experts Say

Cheap Money Called Aid to Industry; Budget Surplus Seen.

London, Oct. 19 (AP).—Experts are convinced that Great Britain steadily is regaining its financial and economic strength and that confidence slowly but surely is spreading to industry.

More insured workers are in employment today than when the country went off the gold standard more than two years ago. In fact, the number working at present is greater than at any time since June, 1930.

Production is increasing, railway traffic receipts are up and savings are improving.

Industry, as recent industrial conversions have shown, is beginning to feel the benefits of the policy of cheap money.

New capital issues amounted to £71,500,000 (approximately $357,500,000 at par) in the period January-July, 1933, compared with £89,000,000 (approximately $445,000,000) for the whole of 1931.

United Kingdom industrial issues amounted to £45,000,000 (approximately $225,000,000) in the January-July period of this year, compared with only £33,000,000 (approximately $165,000,000) for the whole of 1931.

Building of Homes.

Significance is attached in financial quarters to the fact that, despite the drop in prices, the estimated cost of dwelling houses, for which plans had been approved amounted to £36,000,000 (approximately $180,000,000) in the January period of this year.

This compares with totals ranging from £40,000,000 (approximately $200,000,000) to £46,000,000 (approximately $230,000,000) a year from 1926 to 1931.

It is estimated that more than £1,000,000 (approximately $5,000,000) was spent by householders during the summer this year in the repair and decoration of their houses.

Budget Position Sound.

The bugetary position, now regarded as thoroughly sound, encourages the hope of a surplus and a reduction of taxation next April. Revenue shows an increase, although Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain reckoned on a decrease, and expenditure is being kept within the reduced estimates. Tariffs are having the desired effect in reducing the adverse trade balance, the government believes.

The danger of wholesale withdrawals of foreign money from London, such as occurred just before Great Britain went off gold, does not exist now, especially since Parliament has provided an exchange equalization fund of £350,000,000 (approximately $1,750,000,000) to even out variations of the exchange.

The fact, too, that the Bank of England has been able to increase its gold holding to more than £190,000,000 (approximately $950,000,000), while maintaining what in difficult circumstances is a comparatively stable exchange, is regarded here as a firm indication of the returning strength of Great Britain.

Output of Gold In Colombia Rises Steadily

Production of gold in the Republic of Colombia has risen steadily in the past five years, according to a report to the Commerce Department from its office in Bogota.

In 1929, the report shows, total output amounted to 136,576 troy ounces, valued at 2,900,650 pesos, while for the first eight months of 1933 production amounted to 224,112 troy ounces, valued at 4,760,138 pesos.

It is expected locally that production for the first nine months of 1933 will equal or probably exceed production for the entire year 1932, which amounted to 248,000 ounces valued at 5,272,900 pesos.

July was the record month for gold production in Colombia, the report states. In that month, approximately 39,000 troy ounces of gold were taken from the republic's mines, approximately two-thirds of which came from the department of Antioquia.

Colombia mining activities, it is pointed out, have been stimulated during the last two months by increased premium on gold bars paid by the Banco de la Republica. The increase which took place in the latter part of September is expected to stimulate even further gold-mining operations.

Production of Soft Coal Cut 1,188,000 Net Tons

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car-loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended October 14 as approximately 6,700,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1932, 7,888,000 tons; 1931, 8,234,000 tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,876,000 tons for the week ended September 30, and 5,630,000 for the week ended October 7, 1933.

Rice Imports to Japan Stopped.

An imperial ordinance of the Japanese government, effective October 20, 1933, prohibits the importation of rice for an indefinite period, except under government license to be obtained by the importer, according to a cablegram received in the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Frank S. Williams, Tokyo.

Twentieth Century Seeks to Purchase United Artists Studio, Reviving Rumors

Fairbanks and Mary Pickford Deny Divorce

Studio Owners Spike Yarn; Foreign Films Coming; About Showshops.

Joseph M. Schenck, head of the recently organized Twentieth Century Pictures, Inc., whose first release is "The Bowery," current at Loew's Palace, is reported by wire to be negotiating on behalf of that company for the purchase of a controlling interest in the United Artists Studio Corporation, which is owned by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Samuel Goldwyn, Mr. Schenck himself, and others.

The transaction is said to involve approximately $750,000.

Fairbanks and Miss Pickford own the property, improvements and equipment of the United Artists Studio, and lease them to the studio company.

Those involved in the negotiations insist—or so goes the report—that the proposed deal in no way is connected with the drawing of a property settlement between Miss Pickford and Fairbanks, whose separation is no longer any secret.

Both Deny Reports.

Miss Pickford recently denied rumors that a property settlement was being effected, and said she had not taken any steps toward a divorce.

Under the same date line as all the above comes a dispatch from Rabat, which is in Morocco, stating that those stories about an impending divorce between Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford are pure invention as far as Mr. Fairbanks, who is whiling away a few Moroccan hours, is concerned. That was all the American screen star would say about the rumors whisking across the seas from Hollywood.

So a perhaps natural inference would be, in the light of the way such things have been known to eventuate in the motion picture colony, that Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks are engaged in arranging a property settlement and will soon be divorced!

Physicians yesterday declared that Fredric March, noted stage and screen actor, who suffered a relapse following an attack on influenza two days ago, was "well on the road to recovery" —which, after all, as doctors' reports go, is distinctly bromidic. Twenty-four hours earlier he had been declared in a serious condition and denied all callers except his doctors and nurses. His physicians and wife, Florence Eldridge, now happily declare that March successfully passed the crisis of his illness during the night.

The Children's Theater.

A small, low-voiced Englishwoman stood before the curtain at the National Theater one Saturday morning last March and spoke to the capacity audience of boys and girls about the beginnings of the Children's Theater, of which she is founder and director. It was Clare Tree Major, and the occasion was the first appearance of Mrs. Roosevelt at a Washington matinee.

From her box, Mrs. Roosevelt heard a story with which she was already familiar, as a member of Mrs. Major's advisory board and one of the first to interest herself in the idea of a prosessional theater for children.

It was 10 years ago in New York that Clare Tree Major first started to present her own dramatizations of favorite juvenile stories, but the idea of a true theater for children was an old one with her. As she says herself, "There is an important place for a children's theater, because the child needs the mental stimulus of stage presentations, and yet the plays written for adults upset his mental attitude. Small boys and girls have no experience of life, so they are unable to tell what to accept, what to reject, of that which is set before them."

Writes Own Dramatizations.

From the plays written and directed by Mrs. Major and acted by her students, with guest professionals in the leading roles, finally developed the Saturday morning plays for children in New York. Now, however, every actress and actor of the Children's Theater is a specially trained professional. Instead of one, Mrs. Major has three companies, which tour annually in 11 States and Canada during the season.

The Washington season is to open this year at the National tomorrow morning, October 21, with Margaret Sidney's "Five Little Peppers."

Six plays will be presented here under the auspices of the Women's International League, the others being, "Curdie, the Princess, and the Goblins," "Cinderella," "An Old-Fashioned Girl," "Rip Van Winkle" and "The King of the Golden River."

To each of these plays Clare Tree Major has devoted weeks of careful, personal attention, as she always does. It is her spirit and guidance which is responsible for that unique professional—dramatic institution—The Children's Theater.

Brings Back Children's Theater

Clare Tree Major, creator of the Children's Theater of New York, tomorrow morning in the National Theater will inaugurate her season of six Saturday morning plays, enacted by adult, professional players for the entertainment of juvenile audiences. The first bill will be "The Five Little Peppers."

Gracie Barrie's appearance with Dick Powell in a song number in "Footlight Parade," to open with a midnight preview at the Metropolitan Theater on Thursday night, November 2, was as much of a surprise to her as it is a pleasure to her friends who applaud the finesse with which she executes her brief chore. Gracie was on the West Coast appearing with Abe Lyman and his band, when she was called for this bit and rushed onto the set without benefit of screen test. She had to be sure, appeared in a short-reel or two in the East, but this was her first appearance on the "big time" of filmdom. The charm with which she puts over her bit with Powell ought to be good for a contract on any man's lot.

About Mr. Anderson.

A new play by Maxwell Anderson, winner of last year's Pulitzer prize with "Both Your Houses," will have its world premiere in the National Theater next Monday night, with Helen Hayes in the principal role, suppored by Philip Merivale and Helen Menken. It is called "Mary of Scotland." Much already has leaked out about this play, but not so much about the man who wrote it.

Mr. Anderson admits, if pressed, that he just recently turned 40, as the saying goes, and that, the evidence of "What Price Glory" to the contrary notwithstanding, he knows little of the vocabulary of expletives in which that robust play abounded but is the son of a Baptist minister. After snatching his schooling where he could find it in the little red school houses that dotted his daddy's path as an itinerant clergyman, he managed in 1911 to graduate from the University of North Dakota.

Newspaperman Himself!

After two years of teaching school he became a member of the faculty of Stanford University. This work irked him no little, so he went in for the magnificent career of journalism, utilizing the daily press of San Francisco as his stepping stones.

Arriving in the East, he sought and found employment on divers and sundry honorable rags, many of which have since gone out of existence. His first play came along in 1923 and bore the name of "White Desert." Then came the aforementioned "What Price Glory," in collaboration with Laurence Stallings.

From that time on, his career as a playwright has been pretty much in the public ken, including, as it does, such notable works as "Saturday's Children," "Gods of the Lightning," "Elizabeth, the Queen," and, of course, "Both Your Houses."

Old Col. Jimmie Lake, the Chesterfieldian impresario of the Gayety Theater, is making a direct and potent appeal to the tastes of veteran burlesque fans by announcing Billy "Sliding" Watson as the star of the "Girls of Happyland" company, opening in the Ninth street Temple of Revelations on Sabbath afternoon. Master Watson, by this time, must be well out of his teens!

Foreign Films.

Sunday afternoon and evening, the performances being continuous, the Foreign Cinema League will make its bow in the National Capital by presenting Rene Clair's production of "Le Million" in the Masonic Temple Auditorium, New York avenue at Thirteenth street, beginning at 2 p. m.

"Le Million" is entirely in French, although it is announced that a clever device has been hit upon to make its developments wholly intelligible to those who do not know the language.

As an added attraction the inaugural bill offered by the Foreign Cinema League, which plans a season of foreign screen importations, will include Eisenstein's noteworthy production of "Romance Sentimentale," recently shown with great success in Baltimore.

New Roles.

Two new roles have been added to the cast of the repeat performances of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," which will be presented in tabloid form by the Community Center Department in the auditorium of Central High School tonight and tomorrow afternoon. These are the famous Cheshire cat and the hookah-smoking Caterpillar.

The Cat will be played by Gerald P. Flood; the Caterpillar by a newcomer to local theatrical circles who will appear under the name of David Russell. Mr. Russell has had extensive experience in the Little Theater movement in and around New York. Mr. Flood made his first local appearance five years ago when he appeared in the Drama Guild's production of "The Dover Road."

Something a little out of the ordinary is being introduced in the Shoreham floor show this week. The major attraction is known as the Cosmopolitan Trio and is composed of the Messrs. Tommasini, of the Chicago Opera Co., and Guarini, of the Metropolitan, with Miss Violet Anderson, of the New York Civic Opera Co., adding the soprano voice. Along with the touch of grand opera, comes Black Tom, the comedy cat, as introduced by Belassi and Skaren. Jose and Adele, who in all probability would be dancers, also are on the bill.

Convalescence.

While Tallulah Bankhead regains her strength after her seven weeks' serious illness in the hospital, the cast engaged to support her in Owen Davis' "Jezebel" is variously engaged in passing its enforced holiday.

Guthrie McClintic, the producer, is deep in preparations for the repertory Katharine Cornell will act this winter.

Nagged Till 4 A. M., Film Man Is Divorced

Los Angeles, Oct. 19 (AP).—Asserting his wife, Mrs. Josephine Paine Seymour, nagged him and kept him awake until 4 a. m., James W. D. Seymour, film producer, was granted a divorce in superior court today.

Seymour agreed to pay his wife $400 a month for three years and give her two bank accounts, totaling $2,000, and the furnishings of their home.

Stage Romance Ends in Wedding

Florence Lake Is Married to Jack Good.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—Florence Lake, screen and radio comedienne, and Jack Good, dancer, were married today, climaxing a romance started several years ago when both were in vaudeville.

Ten friends witnessed the ceremony in the Fourth Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Fred Waring, last week's bride of the band leader, and Arthur Lake, screen comedian and brother of the bride, attended the couple. They plan a honeymoon in Columbus, Ohio, Good's home.

Lake Cities Urge Seaway Canal Pact

Convention Asks Senate to Ratify Treaty.

Detroit, Oct. 19 (AP).—Demands for prompt ratification of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway Treaty by the Senate were voiced today by the Great Lakes Harbors Association convention, at which many lake cities are represented.

A telegram from Secretary of War George H. Dern was read, saying: "I hope that the seaway convention in Detroit will be successful in promoting sentiment in favor of the St. Lawrence Treaty."

Ditch Fatality Given Coroner's Jury Today

A coroner's jury today will decide whether Fred M. Amberger, 40, of 5315 Conduit road northwest, a contractor, was at fault in the death Wednesday afternoon of a colored man trapped in a ditch cave-in.

The dead man, Daniel Hamilton, 30, employed by Amberger, was working at the bottom of a 10-foot ditch at Forty-sixth and Brandywine streets northwest, when the sides of the excavation fell. Amberger was held for the coroner at the Eighth Precinct Station and later released in custody of an attorney.

Drys Denounce Doomed Man's Liquor Permit

Washington Wet Leader Sees No Harm in Governor's Act.

Washington dry leaders, clergymen and a prison official last night denounced the action of Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California, in giving liquor to a condemned murderer as Dallas Egan, 38, prepared for his execution this morning in San Quentin Prison.

On the other hand, from the wet side only one comment was forthcoming. Rufus Lusk, executive secretary of the Washington Crusaders, tersely remarked, "Why not?"

"It's satanic," commented Mrs. W. Hiram Wadleigh, president of District Chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. "Not satisfied with ruining his body, they want to ruin his soul, too. How can he make his peace with God in such condition?"

Calls Rolph Sensationalist.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, remarked caustically, "Gov. Rolph is a sensationalist, but I can't admire his taste."

"When a man goes to meet his Maker, he'd better be sober," Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, warned.

Capt. M. M. Barnard, District penal superintendent, called the California governor's act "childish" and "silly." Such generosity cheats the purpose of the execution, he said.

Warden Praises Act.

The United Press quoted Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton as suggesting that "a few hours with the prison chaplain" would do more good than "all the bourbon whisky in the world."

Warden Matt Penrose, of the Nevada State prison, commended Gov. Rolph, adding that the convicted man "might as well go to the gallows happy."

Will Dull Senses.

The W. C. T. U., at Evanston, Ill., issued a statement saying that Gov. Rolph's action would "give Egan a false sense of happiness and dull his senses."

The Rev. Christian Reisner, of New York's Broadway tabernacle, said: "Christian consolation rather than intoxicating liquor should be administered to Egan."

From New York City the Men's League of Mercy of the United States, headed by the Rev. Frank Kingdon, sent the following telegram to Egan: "Face legal murder bravely. Die trusting God. Ruth Snyder did."

Employment Gain Forecast.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—V. Gilmore Iden, of New York, today predicted the billion-dollar public works program will increase employment by 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 persons by next spring.

Half Pint of Liquor Satisfies Man Going to Gallows Today

California Slayer Says He Doesn't Want to "Go Out Swacked."

San Quentin Prison, Calif., Oct. 19 (U.P.).—Declaring he doesn't want to "go out swacked," Dallas Egan, 38, due to meet death on the gallows tomorrow, today drank good Bourbon whisky, provided for him under edict of Gov. James Rolph, jr.

Though Gov. Rolph ordered that Egan should have all the whisky he desires before he walks to the noose, the prisoner was satisfied today with a half pint, delivered to him by Dr. L. L. Stanley, acting warden of the prison.

"There's more it you think you need it," Dr. Stanley said.

Egan first offered the acting warden a drink and when Dr. Stanley declined, took two drinks himself, both straight. With the second he lifted his glass, smiled, and gave the toast: "To the governor!"

"Give him my thanks, Warden," he told Dr. Stanley. "This is good whisky." He shoved the bottle through the bars of his cell to a guard.

"Take good care of it," he cautioned. "I'll tell you when I want another drink."

"But I think this'll be enough whisky," he said. "I don't want to go out swacked, you know."

The doomed man has a long criminal record. He was sentenced to die for the killing of William Kirkpatrick, wealthy Michigan man, shot during a jewelry store holdup in Los Angeles. Egan confessed the murder and tried to shoulder blame for another, for which a fellow prisoner is serving life.

Egan also declined to appeal for clemency.

So far as could be learned, he is the first man since prohibition to receive whisky prior to execution, and the grant by Gov. Rolph brought a storm of protests.

Expense Budget Cut In Chest Campaign

Economies Permit Slash, Director Explains.

Reduction of the campaign budget at least 5 per cent for this year's Community Chest campaign, to be held November 20-29, was announced at a meeting of the general campaign committee, held last night at the home of the campaign chairman, Frank J. Hogan.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, said economies will insure this reduction in the cost of raising Washington's welfare fund.

Corcoran Thom, chairman of the Special Gifts unit, reported Frederick P. H. Siddons will be his active assistant and that the ten captains for his unit have been obtained. A report from Eugene Meyer, chairman of the National Corporations unit, stated his organization is ready to start work in 48 hours.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, chairman of the Women's Crusade, announced her organization is planning for the mass meeting for women, to be held in Constitution Hall the afternoon of November 9, with Mrs. Roosevelt as principal speaker.

Chicago Exposition To Celebrate Repeal

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Century of Progress will observe "Personal Responsibility Day" November 8, officials announced today in anticipation that repeal will have been voted by enough States.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly suggested that the day be set aside as "Personal Liberty Day," and that free beer and barbecue be served to all comers. Fair officials agreed, but stipulated that the beverage and food be supplied by some one ele.

Policeman's Alleged Attacker Bound Over

Thomas Rooks, colored, 44, who gave his address as 54 H street northwest, was bound over to the grand jury on $1,000 bond in Police Court yesterday, charged with assault with a deadly weapon on Policeman G. N. Nicholson.

Nicholson, whose badge was shattered by a bullet, testified Rooks shot at him when he placed Rooks under arrest on a disturbance charge Tuesday night. Rooks pleaded not guilty.

Police Asked to Seek Missing Ex-Soldier

Representative Homer C. Parker, of Georgia, yesterday asked police to search for Thomas A. Knight, 28, former service man, missing since his discharge from Walter Reed Hospital July 24.

Representative Parker said the man's parents communicated with him from Macon, Ga. Knight was formerly a private in Company A, Twenty-ninth Engineers.

Archers Will Compete In Tournament Here

Archers from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond and Washington will compete in the tournament to be held Sunday at the polo field in West Potomac Park. The contest will be under the auspices of the Potomac Archers. It will last from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

G. R. DeBruler, 3541 Sedgwick street northwest, president of the Potomac Archers, will be in charge.

New Mark Set By Land Banks

442 Farm Loans Closed in Day Totaling $1,250,000.

A new high on one day's loans by the Farm Credit Administration was revealed yesterday when Herbert E. Gaston, deputy governor, announced Federal land banks disbursed $1,250,000 last Tuesday.

Setting a record since the administration was organized in May, the banks closed 442 loans to farmers. The first million-dollar day was September 27. This mark has been equaled or surpassed seven times since.

"These loans comprise both land bank and land bank commissioner's loans," said Gaston, "but they are handled by the 12 banks.

The commissioner's loan is limited to $5,000 per individual and must not exceed three-fourths of the appraised value of the property.

When the emergency farm mortgage act was passed last May, Federal land banks were operating at a capacity of $27,000,000 annually and had only 212 appraisers, according to Gaston. Now there are 3,400 appraisers active and 2,000 more in training.

Retiring Envoy Mum On Spanish Policies

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Irwin B. Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, retiring American Ambassador to Spain, returned on the liner Washington today and said he'd like to say what he actually thought about the expropriation of American property in Spain.

"But I won't," he added.

U. S. Inquiry Of Lindbergh Case Renewed

See Solution of Crime as Greatest Blow to Gangland.

Department of Justice agents soon will be thrown again into an active search for the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby as part of the Government crusade against crime.

Officials feel that solution of this sensational case would be the most effective thrust possible at this time to instill fear in the underworld.

At the request of President Roosevelt Treasury records on the tragedy, which former President Hoover described as the "never-to-be-forgotten "crime," have been turned over to the Department of Justice, Attorney General Cummings said yesterday.

"This does not mean," he said, "that the Lindbergh case will be handled separately. In connection with our efforts to stamp out lawlessness, the Lindbergh matter will be one of the routine cases that will always be worked upon until we reach a solution or the kidnapers are dead."

Pleased With Results.

Gratified by the rapidity with which the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice solved the Urschel kidnaping and other "snatch" cases since passage of the Lindbergh kidnaping law, Government officials are anxious to add the Lindbergh case to their list of successes.

This move resulted in the withdrawal from the investigation of Frank Wilson, of the Internal Revenue Bureau's Intelligence Unit, the lone Federal operative in the Sourland Mountain mystery.

Attorney General Cummings said the action was taken because it was logical to have all kidnaping cases concentrated under the Division of Investigation. All Federal agencies entered the case shortly after the kidnaping. The Justice Department withdrew many months ago.

Explain Withdrawal.

Government officials emphasized that Wilson's withdrawal was no reflection on his work. He is needed in connection with income tax inquiries.

The possibility that the Lindbergh case is connected with some of the later kidnapings has been frequently suggested. However, there has never been a thorough comparison made of the data gathered in the Lindbergh case with that of the recent cases.

The Lindbergh case did not violate any Federal laws and it was an unprecedented move of former President Hoover when he ordered all Federal units to aid in the hunt.

Little use of their services was made by the New Jersey State police and they were subsequently withdrawn.

Interest Has Held.

Meantime, Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Government's drive against kidnapers and racketeers, said the Justice Department had retained its interest throughout in the Lindbergh kidnaping investigation.

"We have never closed the case," he said. "It always has been considered open by us and we have examined new clews as they developed. I know of no recent developments."

Two States Aid Hunt.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Cooperating with the Department of Justice, which today announced a coordinated drive to solve the Lindbergh kidnaping, will be the forces of the New Jersey State Police and the New York City Police underworld squad.

These two agencies never have relaxed in their efforts to track down the Lindbergh baby's slayers.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the State police, and Inspector John J. Lyons, of New York's undercover squad, have been the directing heads of the search by those agencies.

In New York, Lyons directs 20 detectives who have worked on the case since the baby was kidnaped on March 1, 1932. Lyons, a student of criminology, is convinced the case will be solved.

A reward of $25,000 still awaits the person or persons who bring the slayers to justice.

Workhouse Prisoner Escapes.

Gems Safe

Thieves Fail on Strong Boxes, Abandon Tools.

Frustrated in an attempt to open two safes containing thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry, thieves early yesterday abandoned their safe-cracking tools in the store of the Blustein Jewelry Co., discarded their working clothing and left in what must have been a state of great disgust.

They first tried to break open the safe of the Progressive Jewelry Co. over the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, 817 G street northwest, and later transferred their activities to the Blustein Co.

Drills, crowbars, hammers, overalls and working gloves were left in the Blustein office.

Postal Savings Plan to Stay, Workers Told

Deposit Insurance Will Not Conflict, Officials Declare.

Postal savings clerks need have no fear of losing their jobs because of a new conflicting Federal agency, Postoffice Department officials declared yesterday.

The assurances followed a recent statement by J. F. T. O'Connor, currency comptroller, that he expected the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to nullify postal savings deposits.

Postal officials, however, said the popularity of postal savings had been built up over a period of years. They added no falling off in such deposits was anticipated regardless of the insurance of bank deposits.

A statement by O'Connor that the 2 per cent interest rate paid on postal savings would prove less alluring because of higher rates to be paid by the insurance corporation was met at the Postoffice with predictions that the public was guided more by security than interest and knew the postal deposits were safe.

Curtailment Is Forecast.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—A group of Texas and Oklahoma bankers cheered today when J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of Currency, told them that if the National bank deposit insurance fund proves successful, Congress would be justified in abandoning or curtailing the postal savings system.

Predicting the success of the insurance feature of the 1933 banking act, O'Connor pointed out that abandonment of the postal savings system would mean addition of $1,187,183,000 to deposit figures of the country's banks.

Squad Saves D. C. Man, Unconscious From Gas

Found unconscious beside the open gas jets of a kitchen stove, Philip A. Atwater, 49, of 2301 Cathedral avenue northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital by the Fire Rescue Squad yesterday.

Atwater was found by his wife, Mrs. Adele Atwater, and a brother-in-law, Thomas Hadely. He was given first-aid treatment and sent home. His condition is not serious.

Police Seek Missing Man.

Police were asked last night to aid in the search for F. K. Kidler, 52, of Tipton, Ind., World War veteran, missing from the Portland Hotel since September 29.

Welfare Workers Assist Young and Old; Teach Care of Health.

The meager furnishings of the dingy, cluttered room—once gay with life and laughter—were as worn and spent as themselves. Piece by piece the furniture of their home had been sacrificed for food, medicine and food.

The knocks continued, loud, insistant. In a feeble voice, the woman said: "You might as well see who it is, Joe. If it's the agent and he wants what is left he might as well take it."

Nurse Pays Visit.

The old man opened the door.

"She says she's a nurse, Mary," he said dully.

"Well, tell her we don't need any nurse."

"Oh, all right," his wife answered, "but we won't go to that Home, if that's what she wants."

"No, we won't go to that Home," the man reiterated. "I can take care of my leg like I've been doing, and there's nothing can be done for Mary's heart, it's just worn out. We'll manage somehow."

Invited to Return.

The nurse, one of the 74 sent out daily by the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, came in, and ministered to the aged couple. When she left, they called "You can stop back tomorrow if you want to."

And the nurse "stopped back tomorrow" and many tomorrows.

Daily the nurses attend young and old—infants and aged. During this critical era, infant and maternity cases are especially numerous. Overcrowded conditions in homes, also, have added to the nurses' work. Contagious diseases, especially, are hard to combat when there are many persons, including infants, living in crowded quarters.

A private, nonsecetarian community health organization, this staff is available for bedside nursing and the teaching of sanitation and hygiene in any home in the District. The organization serves without regard to race, creed or color.

Instructions in Health.

The nurses instruct families in health care and sanitation. It's the purpose of the organization to prevent as well as cure disease, to preserve health as well as improve it.

Twice daily the nurses report to their headquarters, either at the main office in the Albee Building, or one of the district offices—at Georgetown, Brightwood, Southeast and Anacostia, where they receive their assigned cases. Acute cases are given immediate attention. Chronic cases are on regular schedule.

Gertrude H. Bowling is director of the society; Mrs. Whitman Cross, president; Mrs. Dwight Clark, secretary, and Joshua Evans, jr., treasurer.

District NRA Board to Rule On Penalties

Headquarters Will Inflict Punishment; 2 Groups May Recommend It.

Whether local violators of NRA codes will be subject to fines and prison terms under President Roosevelt's edict will be left to the District Recovery Board, it was learned yesterday.

The local Compliance Board, it was explained, has no power to impose the penalty, but can only recommend it. Such recommendations will be made to the Recovery Board. The latter, in turn, would recommend punishment to NRA headquarters.

Maj. Raymond J. Walter, liaison officer of the Compliance Board, declared that no "snooping" tactics will be used to apprehend violators. "We will depend on public opinion to help us find the culprits," he said.

So far only two local employers have been named for removal of Blue Eagles. Their cases are now before the Recovery Board, and action will be taken Tuesday.

Ben L. Price, chairman of the Recovery Board, announced that employers will be given an opportunity to plead their cases at hearings on Tuesday.

Recovery officials disclosed that some merchants from whom Blue Eagles have been taken are asking for another chance, and this may be given when there is assurance that they will comply with terms.

Relief Chief Turns Down Pay Increase

Halbert Points to Need of Idle as Cause of Refusal.

U. S. Approves Salary Scale for Workers Aiding Destitute.

Leroy A. Halbert, District emergency relief director, yesterday refused to accept $800 increase in pay voted him by the District Commissioners because, he said, he wanted attention centered on the desperate need of unemployed persons.

Announcement of his action was made by C. M. Bookman, assistant director of Federal relief. With the disputed increase for the director eliminated, Bookman approved the general pay schedules of local relief workers, which range several hundred dollars below Government classification salaries.

Approval was given for employment of ten more social workers at once.

Workers "Take Beating."

"These relief workers have taken a terrific beating," Mr. Bookman said. "Social workers have about 250 cases each to attend to and the additional employes are needed, at least as a starter.

"I think this is a very fine thing Mr. Halbert has done. It isn't a matter of relief salaries being too high. He refused the increase because it became a matter of public comment and controversy, and he wanted attention centered on those in distress."

Halbert's present salary is $4,400. Increases also were given at the same time to 97 other relief workers, but these left them below classification salaries, clerks receiving only $928 after getting raises, and social workers only $1,020.

Letter Voices Refusal.

Halbert's refusal to accept the increase was voiced in a letter to George S. Wilson, director of public welfare.

Request for an additional $253,000 from the Federal relief fund was forwarded yesterday by the District Commissioners. Approval of this is regarded more or less as a formality. It represents one-third of the amount the District has expended in the last quarter for relief work.

Amateur Photographers Will Exhibit in Show

Outstanding work of amateur photographers in Washington and vicinity is being selected for the second annual exhibition of the Master Photo Finishers, to be staged next week at the industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

The Department of Agriculture is sponsoring an exhibit in the interest of its campaign for revision of a pure food and drug law.

R. L. Schreiner Loses Appeal for Parole

Raymond L. Schreiner, former president of the Bank of Brightwood, who now is serving a three-year sentence at Lorton Reformatory for embezzlement, was refused parole yesterday by the board of indeterminate sentence and parole.

Schreiner began serving his sentence December 16, 1932, after pleading guilty to embezzling $60,000. His bank was closed in July, 1932. He was eligible for parole after serving one-fifth of his sentence.

Kiwanis Hears Sunday Tell of Baseball Days

Billy Sunday, the evangelist, recalled his professional baseball days yesterday at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Mayflower. He was introduced by John S. Bennett, superintendent of the Central Union Mission.

New Appalachian Trail Map Shows Way to Md. History

39-Mile Route Across State Along South Mountain Is Rich in Tradition.

Maps of the new Appalachian Trail along South Mountain, Maryland, which provides the final link in the 260-mile continuous Blue Ridge Trail, have just been issued by the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club.

The new trail section extends from Pen Mar, on the Penncylvania State line, to the Potomac river at Weverton. The Trail Club has marked the 39 miles of the route with its white direction signs and trail-markers. The continuous path for hikers and mountaineers now extends from the Susquehanna River, in Pennsylvania, to Rockfish Gap, in Virginia.

South Mountain is a continuation of the Virginia Blue Ridge Mountains, but lies about 3 miles eastward. The trail traverses a territory rich in historical interest. The National Pike, started by Congress in 1806 and the first road to cross the mountains, crosses the trail at Turner's Gap. The 200-year-old stone house of Admiral Dahlgren lies in Turner's Gap, and just north are ruins of a circular stone monument said to be the first ever erected to George Washington. The southern passes were the scene of the Civil War battle of South Mountain, when Lee stood off McClellan while waiting for Jackson to come back from the capture of Harper's Ferry. Lee eventually withdrew from the Gaps, but the delay had given Jackson time to come up and turn the tide at Antietam.

By use of accommodations along the trail, the hiker can traverse the State in three days without carrying any camping equipment. Railroads reach both Weverton and Pen Mar.

Two Halloween Queen Candidates

Wanted: Queen For Halloween; Only 5 Apply

She Will Lead Parade in Celebration and Win Silver Cup.

Five candidates have been entered by local organizations in the Halloween queen contest, which is a feature of the third annual Halloween celebration, October 31. Edgar Morris, general committee chairman, has urged all organizations and individuals interested to send in their entries immediately. The judges will select the queen and her festival court next week.

Candidates for queen thus far are: Kathryn K. Hite, 1423 R street northwest, representing the Future Millionaires Club, a Capital City College organization; Mary Estelle Yates, 2343 Ashmead place northwest, and Marion Hunter, 1659 Hobart street northwest, representing the Washingtonians; Engelberta Brandstatter, 1309 P street northwest, representing the Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens' Association, and Lucille Turnage, 811 Flower avenue, Takoma Park, representing the Capital City Esperanto Club.

The most appropriately costumed girl presenting the most attractive appearance will be selected as queen of Halloween. Each candidate is expected to design her own costume.

Entries for the parade are coming in better this year than last, Mr. Morris said. Already more than 100 have been received, including a number of floats.

Man's Suit Stolen; Woman Is Guilty

Was Arrested as Suspect in Confidence Ring.

Mary Honeycutt, 24, of 311 Massachusetts avenue northwest, pleaded guilty to theft of a suit of clothes from James Miller, of the Raleigh Hotel, when arraigned in Police Court yesterday. She was arrested Wednesday for inquiry into an alleged confidence ring.

With her husband, Frank Honeycutt, and a companion, Frank Hubert, Mrs. Honeycutt was arrested in Union Station by headquarters detectives.

Police found clothing in their rooms, which was first identified as belonging to Blain Taylor, son of former Gov. Alfred Taylor of Tennessee, but an investigation showed the clothing belonged to Miller. Judge John P. McMahon took the case under advisement.

Motorists File New Addresses

300 a Day Visit Traffic Department.

At the rate of 300 a day, Washington automobile owners are making haste to notify the Department of Vehicles and Traffic of changed addresses.

Over 3,000 have called at the office since Traffic Director Van Duzer's warning last week that 1934 tags would not be issued to those whose corrected addresses are not in the department files.

In spite of the present rush to the change of address window, Van Duzer believes at least 5,000 more must correct their addresses in his files.

License application blanks will be mailed within 10 days.

Mrs. Wadleigh Heads District W.C.T.U. Again

Election of Officers Ends Annual Convention, Held at Church.

Mrs. W. Hiram Wadleigh was re-elected president of the District of Columbia W. C. T. U. at its closing business session yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Anna Bailey Windle again was chosen first vice president and Mrs. W. H. Ramsey was elected second vice president.

Other officers chosen are Mrs. B. Shank Chaney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edna Proctor, treasurer; Mrs. Josephine E. Peters, recording secretary; Mrs. William A. Snell, assistant recording secretary.

A mass meeting last night closed the fifty-ninth annual convention, held at the Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest.

Declaring the twenty-first amendment must not remain in the Constitution as long as did the eighteenth, George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Antisaloon League of Maryland, called for a campaign to war against habit-forming qualities of alcohol.

Resolutions favoring total abstinence and calling the attention of the District's educational authorities to the law requiring "the teaching of the effects of alcohol on the human system," were adopted. Hasty beer legislation was condemned.

Mrs. Sarah Calder, 83, Found Victim of Gas

Mrs. Sara D. Calder, 83, was found dead in the kitchen of her home at 17 Seaton place northwest, yesterday morning by her husband, Frank Calder.

Missing his wife when he awakened, Calder smelled the odor of gas, he told police. He found her face downward on a gas stove, with four jets open.

School Chief To Be Called In Milk Quiz

Senate Counsel Will Ask if Propaganda Here Favors One Firm.

Chairman King to Get List of Witnesses From Washington Today.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock will be called before the Senate Milk Investigating Committee to explain the method of spreading milk consumption propaganda throug'i District schools.

This was announced last night by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee, who will try to learn whether preference is given affiliates of the National Dairy Products Corporation in educational tours of milk plants.

Dairymen to Testify.

A list of witnesses from Washington will be submitted today to Senator William H. King, chairman of the committee. Included in the list are Henry M. Brawner, jr., and J. W. McCarty, of the Chestnut Farms Dairies; Philip A. Simpson, of Wakefield Dairy; John McGill, secretary of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

P. D. Gibson, of the Model Farms Dairy; R. J. Posson, secretary of the Washington Dairy Council; R. L. Dickson, of the Alderney-Green Meadows-Fairfax Farms Dairies; J. J. Ward, of the Walker-Hill Dairies; Julius Marcey, of the Arlington County Dairy; J. Larmour Oyster, of the Washington Bottle Exchange, and J. L. Poston, a producer.

Sees Antitrust Specialists.

Seal yesterday conferred with antitrust specialists of the Justice Department, laying before them cost and valuation data concerning purchases of subsidiaries of the National Dairy Products Corporation.

Representative Charles Crosby, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, yesterday informed Seal that he will bring action at the next Congress to have the milk inquiry broadened to include the entire country. He believes, he said, that "the same abuses which exist here apply in other centers."

Crosby declared his opposition to the three-price plan, proposed in the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association marketing agreement.

Kin of Slain Man Held in Dry Case

George Jones Arraigned on Liquor Charge.

George Jones, 27, of 700 Third street northwest, brother of Charles Jones, who was slain September 18 in a gang war, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday with three other men charged with prohibition violations.

The three other men, Roland Steiner, 19, Riverdale; William Quirk, 25, of 431 Eleventh street northeast, and John Diabre, 27, of 241 Delaware avenue southwest, were arrested with Jones following a raid on a house at 1236 Qwens place northeast, October 18.

Three men are under indictment for the slaying of Jones' brother in an alley near the Government Printing Office. Quirk is scheduled to appear in the case as a witness.

Child Badly Injured In Fall Down Steps

Frank Allen, 4 years old, is in a serious condition at Providence Hospital after a fall down the steps in his home at 833 Kentucky avenue southeast, yesterday. The child was playing when he tumbled down the cellar steps. He is being treated for possible skull fracture.

C. U. Meets 'Nooga at Griffith Stadium Tonight in Wide Open Battle

Both Seeking 3d Straight Victories

Invaders' Hopes Dealt Heavy Blow by Loss of Haley, End.

ARMED with a potent array of scoring weapons, Chattanooga's gridiron warriors will fight it out with Catholic University at Griffith Stadium tonight, starting at 8 o'clock. It will be the second meeting between the teams, C. U. having won the first game last year by a score of 18-0.

Fresh from its 16-12 stunning upset of Oglethrope, Chattanooga is gunning for its third consecutive victory. Middle Tennessee Teachers were met in the opening skirmish of the season and buried under a 46-0 defeat.

Seeking Third Win.

Catholic seeks its third triumph in what appears to be another winning campaign for the Brooklanders. Holy Cross is the only team to down the Cardinals thus far, a defeat not as ugly as it might be in view of the fact that the Crusaders are ranked with the strongest in the East.

Chattanooga's hopes for victory were dealt a staggering blow yesterday when it was learned that Jim Haley, right end, may not be able to play because of a recurrence of injuries suffered in the Oglethorpe fray. An excellent pass receiver and a vicious tackler, Haley was a tower of strength at the wing.

Lou Ellis Gets Job.

Lou Ellis has been moved to the vacated position, forcing Coach Moore to shift Fred Perry from full back to the left tip of the line. Beurach McCall will go to full back and Howard Smith to left half back.

Although Smith was not originally slated to start, he was certain to have played because of his passing ability. With McCall, he is rated among the best in the State. McCall is not unacquainted with the duties of a full back, having occupied that position before.

Wide open football will feature both teams' attacks. It was McCall's bullet-like passes that swept the 'Noogans to victory over Oglethorpe. The team's plan of battle calls for more of them tonight.

Tommy Finn to Toss.

Tommy Finn, half back, will throw the pigskin for the Cards. Against St. John's he hurled two to George Mulligan that went for touchdowns. Finn throws the ball with the grace and ease of one born to the manner. Harold McGann, whose aggressiveness has earned the regular left wing assignment, and "Red" Fleming will be on the receiving end.

Bargain prices will prevail tonight at Griffith Stadium. With exception of 390 upper grand stand reserved seats, which will sell at $1.65, all grand stand and sideline seats will be $1, plus the tax. Bleacher seats and those in the end zone will be 55 cents.

The line-ups:

Catholic U.	Position.	Chattanooga.
McGann (32)	L.E.	Ellis (30)
Nally (70)	L.T.	Merrick (32)
Conter (75)	L.G.	Anderson (22)

230,000 Expected At Big Ten Games

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—Big Ten football stadium turnstiles, already lubricated by an approximate turnout of 200,000 fans last week, will swing their merriest tune in five long years if the weather is halfway reasonable Saturday.

Lured by five lively battles, two of them important intersectional engagements, and another "natural" between Michigan and Ohio State that may decide the conference championship, upward of 230,000 spectators are expected to watch the Big Ten teams swing into action.

Not since the height of the boom days in 1927, when Michigan played Harvard and Illinois met the Army on one afternoon, has any one day attracted that many football fans for five or even six games.

It is roughly estimated that the gross for the five games will total $325,000.

The estimates of ticket managers tonight point to these crowds:

Ohio State, at Michigan	85,000
Illinois-Army, at Cleveland	40,000
Wisconsin, at Iowa	40,000
Indiana, at Northwestern	28,000
Pittsburgh, at Minnesota	20,000
Purdue, at Chicago	20,000

Terrors Found Worthy Foes For G. U.

Duquesne Lucky to Win Over Western Md., Hilltop Learns.

DISTRESSING news reached the Hilltop yesterday as Georgetown tapered off for its game tomorrow with Western Maryland at Baltimore. The players had made preparations for an easy victory over the Green Terrors to make amends for last year, but it now seems that they will have to fight for every inch of ground.

Western Maryland was beaten by Duquesne, 12-0, and then came back with a 7-0 win over Mount St. Mary's. Now Georgetown hears that the Pittsburgh team had its collective hands full stopping the Terrors. Two long passes, thrown almost in desperation, resulted in the touchdowns.

The small score of the Mount St. Mary's encounter is easily explained. W. M. simply shoved the pigskin over in the first period and then went back into its shell. The presence of Georgetown scouts led the team to keep the best part of its repertoire under cover.

Neither Georgetown nor Western Maryland are in the upper crust of football as compared to a few years ago. When the Terrors first stopped the Hoyas in 1929, by a score of 7-0, football fortunes at these schools were at their zenith. Since then both have drunk deeply of the dregs of defeat.

The clubs are about on par. Harlow has almost the same team that carried W. M.'s colors through a fairly successful 1932 season. Hagerty was not so fortunate in his heritage of material, but has developed an aggressive machine, one that may spring a few surprises before the season ends.

Tilden Whips Barnes At Hot Springs Nets

Hot Springs, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—Big Bill Tilden showed his old form in whipping Bruce Barnes, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3, in an exhibition tennis match here today.

Later in the doubles Tilden and Tobey Hansen, Hot Springs pro, lost to Barnes and Red Rerecha, 6—0, 3—6, 6—3, with Barnes showing marked improvement in his play.

In the singles Tilden was too strong for Barnes. There were frequent long rallies, but Tilden's mixture of cross-court drives and chops were too much for his opponent.

Ruth Finds Honolulu Has Long Right Field

Honolulu, Oct. 19 (AP).—Babe Ruth, who arrived today on the Lurline from Los Angeles, was perturbed when he learned that the right-field fence of the park in which he will play exhibition games is 380 feet from the home plate, 85 feet longer than that of the Yankee Stadium.

"Turn the park around," Babe suggested to Herb Hunter, baseball promoter who arranged his visit.

"Oh, you can knock 'em over," Hunter assured him.

Bausch, Olympic Star, Joins Pro Football Club

Cincinnati, Oct. 19 (AP).—Jim Bausch, winner of the decathlon in the last Olympics, and a former star back in the Missouri Valley Conference, was signed today by the Cincinnati Reds of the National Pro Football League. He is expected to play at left half in Sunday's game here with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Western Faces Eastern in Series

The Records.

Eastern.		Western.
7 Episcopal	6	6 Alexandria	6
7 Alexandria	0	14 Baltimore C.	0
0 Central	0	0 Newport News	24
14		20	30

THE stage is set for an inter-high football series upset today when Western meets Eastern on the Central Stadium field at 3:30 o'clock.

The whole idea seems somewhat remote, but the possibilities are in evidence. And when possibilities are present anything may happen.

The fact that Alexandria High can be used as a basis for comparative analysis of the relative strength of the two clubs makes the game today practically a toss-up. True, Eastern defeated the Virginians, 7 to 0, whereas the best Western could do was work out a 6-to-6 tie.

Players Are Injured.

Eastern emerged from a grueling encounter with Central only last Monday, and in a crippled condition, and its best back is out with a hemstitched leg. All of which boosts Western's chances.

It is Western's debut in the inter-high series.

The Georgetowners have a heavy line, but very little reserve material. The back field, built around Jimmy Corcoran, quarter back, has also a classy ball toter in Hasley, who can smash a fair line to bits, but, like the line, the ball-carrying division is sorely lacking in reserve strength.

Two positions in the Western line-up are in doubt and will remain so until the team takes the field. Either Parkhill or Wynne will start at left wing and Greenwood or Schleicher have been groomed for the starting left guard assignment.

Keegin to Be Shifted.

Due to the several injured among the regular Eastern players, most notable of whom are Tommy Nolan, quarter back, and Al Wiereshem, guard, Chief Guyon will send a jugged line-up onto the field of battle. Joe Keegin, full back, will be moved up to Nolan's spot and Shaw, half back, to full. Richardson is to be inserted into Shaw's regular half berth. Viatta will be at the injured Wiereshem's guard place along the forward wall.

The probable line-ups:

Eastern.	Position.	Western.
Thompson	L.E.	Wynne or Parkhill
Wolfe	L.T.	Krause
Campbell	L.G.	Schleicher or Greenwood
Lewis	Center	Sullivan
Viatta	R.G.	Love
Asher	R.T.	Gamage
Davis	R.E.	Waddell
Keegin	Q.B.	Corcoran
Richardson	L.H.	Schneider
Mills	R.H.	Summerbell
Shaw	F.B.	Hasley

Carnera Eases Training for Uzcudun

Does Light Work for Home Town Admirers as Bout on Sunday Nears.

SEQUALS, Italy, Oct. 19 (AP).—The leading citizen of Sequals, Primo Carnera, world heavyweight champion, eased off a bit today in his training for Sunday's title fight with the "Bounding Basque," Paulino Uzcudun. But he still got in enough work to wear down many a lesser athlete.

Unshaken by a near accident last night when his big American automobile collided with a cart and almost ran off the road as "Da Preem" was returning to Sequals from Udine, he got in ten rounds of easy boxing in addition to a session of road work and rope skipping.

Carnera rose early today, galloped over several easy kilometers of road work, accompanied by his entire training suite, and threw in a little shadow boxing along the way for the benefit of his many home admirers. This was enough to give him an appetite for breakfast which, like all his meals, was prepared under the vigilant eyes of Trainer Defoe and Mama Carnera.

Paulino in Condition.

Meanwhile at Rome, Uzcudun was reported as being in excellent shape after following a similar training routine. The Basque's managers insisted that Paulino not only has a chance to lift the title from Carnera, but that he is ready to wear down the big fellow in the first 10 rounds and finish strongly with a possible knockout in sight.

Clemson Bows, 7-0, To South Carolina

Fumbled Punt Paves Way for Lone Touchdown.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 19 (AP). South Carolina's Gamecockc drove home a scoring thrust in the first five minutes of play to defeat the Clemson Tigers, 7 to 0, today in the annual State Fair football classic.

Before a crowd of 14,000, South Carolina's men scored their eleventh triumph in 31 meetings and the third time they have blanked their Tiger foes in as many years.

Their chance came in the first period when Cathcart, Clemson back, fumbled a punt on his 28-yard line, and Joe Shinn, South Carolina center, grabbed the ball. Six and 10 yard drives by Hal Mauney, steel-muscled quarter back, brought them to the 10-stripe, but they were set back by a 15-yard penalty.

In a beautiful play, Mauney then tossed a short pass to Hambright, half back, who ripped off 20 yards to the goal line, outmaneuvering a block of Clemson defense men.

Auburn Tilt Crucial One For G. W.

Pixlee Highly Hopeful; 20,000 Expected to Witness Battle.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S second flight into the upper strata of national football is scheduled tomorrow afternoon at Griffith Stadium where the Colonials take off against Auburn's Bengals, co-champions with Tennessee of the South last season. It is the first big college game of the year for District consumption and upward of 20,000 fans are expected to look in on the proceedings.

Still one of the South's best examples of a Grade A football team, despite that 16-6 lacing administered by Georgia Tech last Saturday, Auburn undoubtedly will decide an old argument that still rages, is G. W. as good as it is alleged to be? George Washington, and that includes the faculty, students, coaches and director of public relation, thinks it is deserving of all the orchids tossed its way. But the public remains to be convinced.

First Taste Last Year.

The Colonials experienced their first taste of the Southern brand of football last season—a bitter taste, by the way—against Alabama. It did reasonably well, but not well enough to satisfy the patrons. However Mr. Jim Pixlee and his coworkers have given their assurance that the team's demonstration tomorrow will be pleasing in every respect. To whom they neglected to say.

Auburn is bringing one of those remarkable creatures, a good triple-threat man, along for the fray. He is "Firpo" Phipps, whom all Southern sports writers say is the logical successor to Don Zimmerman's all-American berth. Phipps heaves the ball something in the fashion of Carl Hubell—fast and true. He has a habit of winking at one end and passing to the other, a trick calculated to fool the defense.

Ariall May Not Play.

"Gump" Ariall, all-Southern end last season, is another prospective thorn in G. W.'s side—if he gets into the game. Ariall has been accused of loafing in practice by Coach Chet Wynee, a fault no opponents will say he was guilty of against them, and Wynne had virtually decided to supplant him with a more ambitious wingman. A slight leg injury added to Ariall's woes this week and detracted from his chances of appearing in the line-up.

This will be little consolation for G. W., however. If Ariall was all-Southern end he must be good, so the chap who muscles him out of a regular job must be better.

Game Test for G. W.

All things considered, Auburn is bringing one of those fact-finding machines that will determine if George Washington supporters know whereof they speak or are merely exercising their vocal cords.

"Zuzu" Stewart is being touted as all-American guard, and we hear of "Tuffy" Leemans, of whom there is no better. "Nig" McCarver is called the flashiest half back this side of the Mississippi, and G. W. as a team is termed one of the best in the East. With the aid of Auburn, we'll see tomorrow.

Collins Still Seeks Red Sox Manager

Scanning Market for New Pilot With Yawkey.

Boston, Oct. 19 (AP).—Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, still is scanning the market with President Tom Yawkey for the club's 1934 manager.

He was asked today if he was withholding the appointment of Stanley Harris as Marty McManus' successor until after the football season.

"I'll hold back nothing," was his definite response, "because real baseball news, I have learned, can not be bottled up, and the fans have a right to know the real facts.

"We have not selected, even tentatively, the new manager of the Boston Red Sox for 1934. All the stories you hear can be discounted. Tom and I do not know who's going to be the next manager."

Hubbell, at Home, Awaits Reception

Meeker, Okla., Oct. 19. (AP). Carl Hubbell, the Giants' world series ace, slipped quietly into his home town today to winter as just another Oklahoma pecan farmer.

But Saturday Meeker will entertain as many Oklahomans as it can accomodate in a celebration, with a parade, speeches and a baseball game in which Carl is expected to twirl his famous "screw ball" a few times.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbell drove into town without attracting attention, slipped down a side street to say "hello" to Mrs. Hubbell's folks and then went to the Hubbel farm near town.

There Carl said his biggest "kick" in the New York victory came when he struck out the first three men to face him.

4,000 Watch Zaharias Pin Garibaldi

GEORGE ZAHARIAS triumphed in a 52-minute, three-cornered endurance contest between himself, Gino Garibaldi and some 4,000 customers, on the Auditorium wrestling card last night. The contestants, usually two of the better Boo, Boo boys, must have been washed in a certain well-advertised brand of soap flakes prior to the bout, as they wrestled clean, soft and fluffy for the most part.

Garibaldi picked up Zaharias, but couldn't drop him. While he was holding him aloft in one of these moments of suspended animation, Zaharias suddenly let go his right to the brisket—and finis was written to the bout.

Dick Raines was disqualified after 23 minutes of making faces at Paul Boesch. Raines, who swells up like Prof. Picard's balloon ready for an ascent when indignant, which is practically all the time, couldn't blow Boesch down. So he punted with his knee and was disqualified on the 23-minute line.

Swede Olsen and Dick Shikat wrestled 30 minutes to a draw. Vanka Zelesniak, of the ostermoor chin adornment, threw George Hill in 11 minutes and Juan Humberto drew with Casey Berger in the other 30-minute bouts.

"Dizzy" Dean Wants $20,000 Next Year

"The New York Giants offered to give $85,000 for me last year, and the Cards held out for $90,000," he said here today.

"If I'm worth that much to them, then I'm worth $20,000 a year."

Dizzy's salary last year was reported at $10,000.

In support of the $20,000 ambition, Dean said that with himself and his younger brother, Paul, in the line-up the Cardinals were a "cinch" to win the National League pennant.

Ohio State Balks At New Type Ball

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 19 (AP). Michigan's attempts to introduce a new football, supposed to aid forward passing and general handling, into the Michigan-Ohio State game Saturday at Ann Arbor was protested today by Coach Sam Willaman and Athletic Director L. W. St. John, of Ohio State.

The ball has a rough mesh marking stamped on the cover and the surface is treated with a semiadhesive substance. After trying the ball in practice, the Ohio State players and coaches rejected it.

Willaman and St. John, in a letter today to Coach Harry Kipke, said it would be poor sportsmanship to try out the new ball in this important game before its use becomes more general. Kipke had informed the Ohio coaches that he planned to use the new ball.

Marions Schedule Practice.

Marion gridmen will workout tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the Seaman Gunners' field in preparation for Sunday's fray with the Maryland A. C. All players are requested to report in full uniform.

Cornell Drills After Dark For Game

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Cornell wound up most of its preparations for Saturday's renewal of its ancient gridiron rivalry with Syracuse today, leaving only a light workout on Schoelkopf Field, scene of the game, for tomorrow. Coach Gil Dobie ordered an unusually stiff Thursday session, lasting until after dark, stressing blocking in the individual work and passing in the dummy scrimmage. The regulars tested their defense against Syracuse aerials.

Columbia in Brisk Drill.

New York, Oct. 19.—Columbia's regulars had a short but brisk defensive workout against Princeton plays as interpreted by the scrubs and coaches. Most of the time was devoted to pass defense. Owen McDowell, regular end, who has been absent a week because of the illness of his father, worked out with the squad, alternating with Chase. The back field was composed of Chippendale, Montgomery, Brominski and Maniaci.

Passes Trouble Tigers.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 19.—The Princeton varsity ran into trouble breaking up the kind of passes Cliff Montgomery, of Columbia, is expected to toss Saturday as Assistant Coach Earl Martineau was throwing them for the Scrubs. Pudge Rulon-Miller and Chick Kaufman were definitely listed as out of the Columbia game, but Kats Kadlic seems sure to start at quarter back.

32 Colgate Men Off.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Colgate had a final light workout before leaving for Saturday's game with New York University, and 32 players were named for the trip. Unless Bob Samuel is able to start, today's line-up of Anderson and Bodganski, ends; Brooke and Wasicek, tackles; Blum and Pasquale, guards; Peters, center; Soleau, Fritts, Kern and Lyon, backs, is expected to face the Violets.

Howard Team Ready.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19.—Harvard had its shortest workout of the week to wind up preparations for the season's first major test against Holy Cross. Coach Eddie Casey gave a drill on fundamentals before polishing up some new spinner-plays in dummy scrimmage.

Leave for New York.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 19.—After an early and snappy practice, Boston College's only football trip of the

ON the strength of recent evidence, there is being built up a strong circumstantial case against the Notre Dame system. If the records of the past two years are admissible testimony, then it would seem that the Notre Dame system is merely an alias, trespassing on the fair name of the Rockne system.

Notre Dame's football supremacy crashed to earth against the barren waste of a Kansas prairie that May day in 1931 when Knute Rockne's plane came hurtling down out of the skies.

The same material that Rockne had coached through an unbeaten season in 1930, he bequeathed to Hunk Anderson in 1931. That veteran team lost two games under Anderson. Last year, again, with some of the remnants of Rockne's unbeaten combination still available, Notre Dame again suffered two defeats.

Already this season the Irish, under Anderson, have been held to a scoreless tie by Kansas, a team that Rockne would have swamped with his B, C, D, and E elevens in action. Already, Notre Dame alumni are shouting for Anderson's scalp.

The Notre Dame teams of Anderson that are traipsing up and down and across the country no longer strike the terror that Rockne teams meant. Lower admission prices and smaller crowds are not paying off the new stadium bonds in the same gratifying fashion that Rockne's teams paid 'em off.

Rockne set a stiff precedent for Anderson in those "suicidal" schedules that Rockne teams attempted and survived. He set the measure of Notre Dame success when he led his teams through a succession of season's unbeaten and untied. Competing with Rockne is Anderson's unfortunate lot. He is on the spot, like no other coach in the country.

One typical Rockne feat is outstanding in the memory of this department. The big Baltimore Municipal Stadium was the scene, in 1930, with the Navy game the setting.

Notre Dame was hard pressed to beat Navy and the game went into the third quarter tied, at 6-6. Rockne sent Chris Flanagan into the back field. The ball was on Notre Dame's 10-yard line. Six consecutive times, Flanagan rushed the ball. Through tackle and around end, he never gained less than 10 yards.

The ball was on Navy's 3-yard line. The Middies were massed at the goal to stop Flanagan, who had battered his way 70 yards down the field. The ball was snapped. Flanagan hit the line. Navy's line and secondary defense stopped him cold. But Flanagan didn't have the ball. Quarter Back Johnny Niemic was already across the goal line, around Navy's right flank, quite unnoticed.

Mrs. Haynes Defeated by 17-Year-Old Lily Harper in Middle Atlantic Match

Capital Star Is Defeated By 2 Up

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—Playing the same sensational brand of golf that marked her as a tournament threat, 17-year-old Lily Harper, of Portsmouth, advanced to the finals of the Middle Atlantic Golf tournament here today with a 2 up decision over Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Washington, the defending champion.

One down at the turn, the slender school girl squared the match on the eleventh and after a great battle over the homeward route triumphed by winning both the seventeenth and eighteenth. She had a medal score of 87.

More decisive was the 4 and 2 victory of Mrs. Jean S. Jones, of Richmond, who defeated her clubmate, Mrs. Buford Scott, in the other semifinals match.

Nip-and-Tuck Battle.

Most of the gallery followed the Harper-Haynes match which was a nip-and-tuck struggle all the way. After drawing on even turns by winning the eleventh when Mrs. Haynes found trouble in a trap, the Portsmouth contender won the thirteenth to go 1 up. On this hole Mrs. Haynes hit a beautiful second shot which took a bad hop and ran into a trap.

The Washingtonian squared the match on the fifteenth, however, when Miss Harper drove into a ditch. They halved the sixteenth, with the Portsmouth girl making a beautiful recovery after pushing her third shot.

Wins 17th With a Three.

Mrs. Haynes pushed her iron at the seventeenth and was short, while Miss Harper, playing in orthodox fashion, took a three to win. Both were in trouble on the eighteenth and were over par figures, but Miss Harper won the hole by negotiating a partial stymie for a six.

Alexandria Boys Win Opening Ring Match

Alexandria Boys Club boxing team inaugurated its indoor season last night at St. Mary's Lyceum, winning over the Northeast Boys Club and Merrick Boys Club, 3 to 2.

Clifton High Gridman Suffers Fractured Leg

The principal of the school, George A. Watts, rushed the boy to the home of Dr. J. H. Ferguson for emergency treatment before hospitalization.

season began as a squad of 35 entrained for New York to meet Fordham. Three regulars took leg injuries along, but are expected to play. They are Johnny Freitas, quarter back; John O'Lalor, guard, and Louis Musco, center.

Forward Passing Drill.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 19—Dartmouth completed its preparations for the Penn game, first of six successive major tilts, with a long forward passing drill. With the exception of Dave Hedges, veteran full back, who was hurt in the Bates game, the squad was in good condition.

Yale Line-Up Changed.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—An epidemic of minor injuries forced Coach Reg Root to make four changes in the Yale varsity before a light workout, devoted largely to defense against Brown plays. Ed Nichols and Jimmy Deangelis, guards; Clare Curtin, right tackle, and Rankin, end, were on the sidelines.

Fordham Eases Up.

New York, Oct. 19.—Coach Jimmy Crowley eased up on his Fordham squad as the Rams held their last drill on Fordham Field, before the Boston College game. Most of the time was given over to a dummy scrimmage.

Scrimmage with Frosh.

New York, Oct. 19.—New York University had another defensive session in preparation for Colgate, scrimmaging against the freshman team. Coach Howard Cann indicated he planned to use a version of the "punt, pass and prayer" system against the Red Raiders.

15,000 to See Navy and Va. Battle

Midshipmen to Taper Off Today With Brisk Signal Drill.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19 (Spl.).—Navy football players were put through a strenuous session this afternoon as a climax to heavy work in preparation for the game with University of Virginia on Saturday. Defensive work against the enemy's passing game, with the squad B shock troops using Cavalier formations, again featured the program. Tomorrow the players will taper off with a brisk signal drill.

A combination of elements has served to attract keen interest in the coming battle and officials of the Navy Athletic Association anticipate an attendance that will rank with the largest in recent years. It will approximate 15,000, based upon the advance sale of tickets, Lieut. Comdr. Harvey E. Overesch, graduate manager of athletics, said today.

Advices have been received that practically the entire student body of Virginia will be on hand, and there is certain to be a great gathering of the naval and local contingents, besides thousands of others from Washington, Baltimore and other points in the East, primarily because it will be the last appearance of the Middies on home grounds.

Bridgewater Foe Of Gallaudet Club

Gallaudet has a large assignment on its hands tomorrow afternoon at Kendall Green, where the Blues encounter Bridgewater College in their first home game of the season. Bridgewater is bringing one of the best teams to sport its colors in recent years, and is confident of stopping the locals.

Bridgewater's first victory in six years was tallied last Saturday, when the Eagles nosed out American University, 2 to 0. Tomorrow they have visions of making it two in a row.

Gallaudet is in the throes of a losing streak, having dropped successive games to Maryland and Washington College. A dearth of material at the school has handicapped Coach Teddy Hughes in his efforts to mold a winning combination.

Virginia Alumni Hold Smoker Here Tonight

University of Virginia alumni in Washington and nearby communities have been invited to a football smoker at the Racquet Club tonight at 8 o'clock.

Virginia's football coaches, who will take their charges to Annapolis this afternoon for a final practice before meeting the Navy tomorrow, will return to Washington to talk alumni. Both Fred Dawson, Cavalier head coach, and Gus Tebell, his chief of staff, will be on the program.

Prof. Wilbur Nelson, faculty representative on the executive board of Virginia's Athletic Association, and J. Malcolm Luck, alumni secretary, also will speak briefly. Richard E. Shands, president of the Washington chapter of Virginia Alumni, will be in charge.

Washington-Lee Plays Fredericksburg Today

Revenge for a 2-0 defeat last year, the result of a touchback, will be sought by the Washington-Lee High School's "Little Generals," who play Fredericksburg High this afternoon. Coach O. L. Driver reported his squad in good condition for the game which will be played on the Ballston gridiron at 3:30 o'clock.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THINGS happened in the District League last night which tend to tighten up the race considerably—all of the leading teams lost matches to rivals below them in standing. Occidental pulled the big upset of the league, sweeping all three from Arcadia on the latter's home alleys. The winners' high set of 684, and total pinfall of 1,931, established season records. Joe Harrison (Occidental captain), captured individual honors for the night with a high game of 162, and by trying Astor Clarke, his teammate and anchor man with a set of 417. Bernhardt (Arcadia) carried away individual honors with a high game of 153 and set of 386.

Eddie Espie was the big gun in Convention Hall's winning two out of three from King Pin, league leaders, taking high game with 159 and exceeding all other sets with a 405.

The Beacon Sign Co. team, with Bill Clampitt and Irving Billheimer showing the way, upset Temple at the Temple alleys Clampitt's high set of 415 was unsurpassed. Ollie Pacini (Temple), was glorious in his team's defeat, tying Billheimer's 153 game and pounding out a set of 391.

Georgetown at the bottom of the league, suddenly came to life, winning the odd game from the Hyattsville aggregation. Hugh Waldrop (Hayattsville), was the individual star with 150 and 364.

Columbia closed the gap between them and the Lucky Strike team by taking the odd game, banging the maples for a high set of 635 and total pin fall of 1,741. Al Works (Columbia) featured his team's victory with a 376 set, being followed closely by Howard Campbell (Lucky Strike), who rolled 363.

Vivian Burns (Treasury No. 2) with a high game of 136, and Alice McQuinn (Agriculture), with a 323 set, led the list of individual feats in the Ladies Federal League at the Arcadia alleys. Treasury No. 2 captured high set honors, rolling 510.

The newly organized Takoma-Silver Spring League, rolling at the Takoma alleys, started off well last night, high scores featuring. Southern Railway made a clean sweep of its match with the Stewart Bros. Photographers Team, Max Snellings, of the winners, leading his team with a high of 156 game and 411 set. Fritz Billiards won all three from Takoma Tigers. Howard Parson (Fritz Billiards) took individual honors with a 369 set. In the other matches, Kimble Lacey Co. took two from Takoma Sea Food and Sligo won the odd game from Takoma Tailors.

Helen Doyle (Chi Sigma, No. 3) took all individual honors in the Intersorority League at Columbia, rolling 128 and 328, respectively. Chi Sigma No. 3 was high for the night with a total pinfall of 1,395.

Washington Post No. 1 made a clean sweep of all games in the Daylight League at the Convention Hall alleys, toppling the maples for a 577 game and 1,602 set. Tony Suess turned in a 131 for high game and Frank Money (Washington Post No. 1) led with a 351 set.

The Elk Grove team ran away with the honors in the Nation-Wide League at Convention Hall toppling a 518 for high team game and taking high team set with 1429. Henry Shaw (Elk Grove), led in his team's success with 137 and 326.

Kilowatt League at Convention Hall, Belk of Engineering rolled a game of 137. High set went to Bill Price, who topped 355 pins. Accounting No. 1 took team game honors by virture of its 553, while Engineering rolled 1611 for high team set.

Amer's 132 game and Hohman's 375 set were high in the War Department League at Convention Hall. Hydrographic won the team honors with a 570 game and 1635 set.

A trio of season records were shattered in the Department Store League at Lucky Strike. S. Kann's Sons quintet rolled a 1,636 set and 570 game for new team marks. Simon, of the same team, rolled a 404 set for a new individual set mark. His 147 was high for the evening, but several pins short of a record.

Accounts rolled 591 and 1,614 to clinch team game and set laurels in the Agriculture-Internal loop at Lucky Strike. Terwisse's 135 and Kessler's 377 won individual honors.

Diamond Coffee Shoppe located 658 pins for a season record in the Independent League at Lucky Strike. The team finished out its string for a set of 1,793. Shanklin turned in the high game, 151, while Bradford's 386 set was the best of the evening.

Anderson Hints He Will Start Reserves

(Associated Press.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 19.—A squad of 38 Notre Dame players was selected by Coach Hunk Anderson to leave tonight for Pittsburgh, where Carnegie Tech will be met Saturday.

Anderson hinted that he will start his "shock troops" against the Tartans and use other teams during the game. This move is a departure from his past policy.

Every man is in good shape except Tony Mazziotti, who is bothered by a bad knee. Don Elsers will be first-string full back Saturday, but Dan Hanley will start at that position.

Soph Gains Attention.

Minneapolis, Oct. 19.—Minnesota ran through its ground attack in slow motion today to smooth out rough spots for the Pittsburgh game. The regulars took a look at the Panther formations executed by a reserve eleven. The experiment of using Babe Le Voir at full back held principal attention. The young sophomore has been on the bench considerably.

Iowa Ending Practice.

Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 19.—A cardinal jerseyed freshman team imitated Wisconsin plays today as Coach Ossie Solem sent the University of Iowa football squad through last-minute preparations for the Badger game Saturday. Francis Schammel, who has been out with a leg infection, appeared on the field, but Bill Secl was sent home with a bad cold.

Defense Is Stressed.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—The entire practice session at the Wisconsin football camp today was devoted to defense against Iowa plays of both the running and passing variety. The reserves, some of whom are expected to start against Iowa as a result of the showing of the regulars against Illinois, were given much attention.

Chicago Pep Session.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Enthusiasm among the University of Chicago students and alumni for the Maroons "new deal" in football will be displayed by a giant pep session tomorrow. The Maroon workout today consisted of a drill on pass defense and timing of plays.

Illini Leave Today.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 19.—Coach Bob Zuppke, 34 Illinois varsity players and assistant coaches will leave early tomorrow for Cleveland where the Illini meet Army Saturday. The veteran coach plans to send the squad through a light workout at Cleveland. Today he confined the drill to signal passing and kicking. Capt. Herm Walser will be able to play against the Cadets, and Schustek, regular end, may be kept out because of injuries. One thousand students and townspeople are expected to follow the team by auto and train.

Maryland Off To Encounter V. M. I.

HITTING the sawdust trail for the third consecutive weekend, Maryland's stalwarts leave this afternoon for Lexington, Va., where the eleventh renewal of its series with Virginia Military Institute will be enacted tomorrow afternoon. Twenty-eight players will make the trip.

Denied the sweets of victory in its last two games against V. P. I. and Tulane, Maryland has an even chance of breaking into the scoring column at the expense of the Flying Cadets. The Old Liners are a green lot, but so are the Cadets, and a close, bitterly contested game is anticipated.

To Alternate on Punts.

Much of Maryland's hopes for victory lie in the kicking of Buddy Yeager, half back, and Dick Nelson, quarter back. The pair will alternate on punts. The plan of battle drawn up includes frequent kicking by which Maryland hopes to keep V. M. I. in its own backyard throughout the afternoon.

The Terrapins devoted all of the past week in bolstering their offense which was noticeably weak against Tulane. One change in the back field expected to add power to the attack resulted in Bucky Buscher's installation at full back in place of Sachs. Buscher showed to advantage against Tulane, bumping the line for several good gains. Earl Widmyer at half back will complete the quartet.

St. Alban's and G. U. Prep to Play Today

ONE of the best prep school battles of the season is listed for Garrett Park this afternoon, when Georgetown Prep, 1932 District Prep School champion, clashes with St. Alban's. The kick-off is slated for 3 o'clock.

To date the Saints have trimmed Dunham, of Baltimore, 12 to 6, and Shenandoah Valley Academy, 13 to 0, and boast of one of the classiest prep outfits in the District. The Little Hoyas have played but one game this season, shellacking Calvert Hall, 20 to 0.

A. R. Middleton, coach of the Saints, has a veteratn back field brigade, featuring John McGee, Martin Henderson and Page Cornwell. However, the line is practically green, with the exception of Dick Foulois, a very fine tackle, and Perry Lippit, end.

Mercury Eleven Drills.

All members of the Mercury unlimited football team are requested to report for practice tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the field at Four-and-a half street and Maine avenue southwest. Sunday the team plays the Fraters.

Entry Deadline Today in Post Golf Play

ENTRIES for the match play with handicap golf tournament for The Washington Post Trophy will close at noon today, coincident with the staging of practice rounds at the Columbia course.

The tournament will begin Monday morning with an 18-hole medal play with handicap qualifying round to determine the 32 low net scorers who will compete in match play rounds with stroke allowance, beginning Tuesday.

Ten more entries were rounded up yesterday by Mrs. W. F. Holtzman, of the tournament committee, swelling the field to 82. The pairings and starting times will be announced in Sunday's papers. Entries, with $1 entry fee, will be accepted by Mrs. Holtzman at the Broadmoor Apartments.

No one will be allowed to tee off after 11:30 in today's practice rounds.

Additional Entries.

Entries received yesterday included the following: Mrs. A. A. McEntee, club champion, Mrs. Harvey Cooper, both of Kenwood; Mrs. H. King Cornwell, of Columbia; Mrs. R. H. Lee and Mrs. Noah Brinson, of Army and Navy; Mrs. J. J. McCarthy, of Congressional; Mrs. F. A. Smith, Mrs. J. E. Nell, Mrs. E. C. Scott and Mrs. T. N. Beavers, all of Manor.

Reeve Lewis, jr., a 5 handicap player, defeated W. Beverly Mason, jr., 2 handicap player, 1 up yesterday in the finals of the Liberty Cup tournament at Chevy Chase. They were all even at the turn.

The Optimist Club will stage its annual golf tournament at Indian Spring Country Club today. About 30 will compete.

Passers Battle Giant Stars Next Week

ALL-AMERICANS will be a dime a dozen, figuratively, at Griffith Stadium when the New York Giants stack up against the Washington Passers, local pro grid club, under the lights next Wednesday night.

These former super college grid stars are Harry Newman, Michigan quarter back of last season; Ken Strong, New York University half back of a few years ago; Bo Molenda, Michigan powerhouse full back; Mel Hein, Washington State center, and Jack McBride, graat Syracuse back of six years ago.

The Passers, enthused by their great victory over the strong Bridgeport Trojans, who, incidentally, battled the Brooklyn Dodgers to a scoreless tie recently, returned to heavy practice yesterday afternoon with the idea that they are going to take the invading Gotham Greenbacks.

The acquisition of "a brother act," the Berners, B. and F., from the Cincinnati Reds, has aided the Capital pros, no end, in the back field. The brothers saw a bit of service against Bridgeport Wednesday night, and during the short while they were on the field showed local fandom that they knew their business.

Perron Coaches Mercury.

Joe Perron last night was appointed coach of the Mercury A. C., and will meet the players at a practice tonight at 8 o'clock at Four and a half Main avenue, southwest. Mercury will play the Fraters Sunday.

Miss Claytor, Mrs. Amick Are Stars

Share Spotlight in Golf "Field Day" of Second Team Members.

MISS LOUISE CLAYTOR, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. E. M. Amick, of Columbia, shared the spotlight yesterday at Kenwood Golf and Country Club in the "field day" in honor of members of second teams that competed in the District golf matches this year.

Miss Claytor shot a 94 to capture low-gross honors, while Mrs. Amick posted 107—27—80 to win first low-net prize.

Mrs. N. J. Waldron, of Beaver Dam, had tied Mrs. Amick for the net leadership with her 102—22—80, but the committee elected to honor the former with a special prize for scoring the only birdie of the day—a 4 on the 461-yard fifth.

A field of more than 90 women participated.

Mrs. Teal Is Second.

Mrs. C. S. Teal, of the host club, had 95—14—81, to take second low net, and Mrs. C. B. Des Jardines and Mrs. J. J. McCarthy, both of Congressional, tied for third with nets of 82 each.

On the varied program was a number of contests for members of the executive committee of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association, who were among the guests of honor. Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, unattached, carded a 43—45—88 to win low gross—incidentally the lowest medal of the day. Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, of Chevy Chase, former association president, turned in a 98—15—83 to capture low net.

The "field day" was climaxed by a banquet in the clubhouse. Mrs. Elizabeth C. Harris, of Kenwood, association president, awarded the prizes.

Results:

Low gross—Miss Louise Claytor (Chevy Chase), 94. First low net—Mrs. E. M. Amick (Columbia), 107—27—80; second, Mrs. C. S. Teal (Kenwood), 81; third, Mrs. C. B. DesJardines (Congressional) and Mrs. J. J. McCarthy (Congressional), 82 each.

Least number of putts—First nine, Mrs. H. B. Hird (Manor); second nine, Mrs. J. H. Bullock (Indian Spring), 13. Least putts for 18 holes—Mrs. T. N. Beavers (Beaver Dam), 32. Most putts on 18—Mrs. R. D. White (Indian Spring) and Mrs. R. N. Trexlse (Beaver Dam), 42 each.

Best score on four par 3 holes (sixth, eighth, tenth, seventeenth)—Mrs. J. W Harvey, jr. (Manor), 13.

Best score on first, second, third—Mrs. E. A. Dedicke (Army and Navy), 17. Largest score on any one hole—Mrs. R. N. Brown (Beaver Dam) and Mrs. C. B. Amorous (Congressional), 12 each.

Best score, selected holes (twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth)—Mrs. P. D. Leita (Congressional) and Mrs. C. F. Medley (Indian Spring), 17 each.

Executive committee prizes—Low gross, Mrs. Alma Von Steiner (Congressional), 88; low net, Mrs. Frank R. Keefer (Chevy Chase), 98—15—83.

150-Pound Grid Teams Will Gather Tonight

A meeting of the 150-pound division of the National Capital Football League will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Atlas Sport Shop. All team managers are requested to attend.

In the 135-pound division Sunday, the Apaches will meet the Georgetown Boys Club at 12:30 o'clock on Gonzaga Field. At the same hour Brookland Coal Co. will tackle the Palace Preps at Silver Spring.

A double-header is listed for Monument Grounds Field No. 2, Northeast Boys Club stacking up against the Mercury A. C. at 1 p. m. and Cleveland A. C. meeting the Centennials at 3 p. m.

Foxx Broke Foot Bone In Post-Season Game

Federalsburg, Md., Oct. 19 (AP).—Jimmy Foxx, big league home-run king, who paid no attention to the close of the regular 1933 baseball season, finally wound up the campaign, so far as he was concerned, by breaking a bone in his left foot.

The injury was suffered in Baltimore in an exhibition game shortly after the world series wrote official "finis" to the season, but Jimmy, chosen most valuable player of the American League, didn't realize it until yesterday, when he was scheduled to play in another game here.

Greenwood Hunter Trials on Tomorrow

The fifth annual hunter trials of the Albemarle County Hunt will be held at Greenwood, Va., tomorrow. The course runs between Greenwood and Batesville and the events are scheduled to start at 9 a. m.

Yale Caddies on Strike.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19 (AP).—About 50 caddies at the Yale golf course went on strike today for higher pay. The caddies, who said they would picket the course, demanded $1 for eighteen holes. They have been receiving 75 cents.

Pegler Cites

Farley's Deeds; Wonders If Patronage Friends Will "Bleed" Him.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Up to this time I have seen no summary in the papers of the extent to which Mr. Shamus Farley, the old prize-fight commissioner, has taken care of his friends since he became Postmaster General last coronation day. Mr. Farley is a very square shooter, with a keen sense of gratitude, and when it comes to taking care of his friends there is nothing too good for them. Being a politician, naturally, he can not be expected to take care of his friends at his own expense, as this would be not only impossible but contrary to the patronage system of government. I might not be surprised some time to see where Mr. Farley had achieved the impossible, as he is a man of remarkable ability, but I do not expect to see the day when he would violate the patronage system.

My colleagues on the Washington run told me the last time I was there that the Recovery Administration, which was going to curtail Government expenses by reducing the number of job holders and the pay of the survivors, had actually added many head to the public pay rolls.

Sky More Cheery.

Not since the war days, I was told, had there been so many Government employes in Washington as there have been during the last few months and the local sky was distinctly more cheery than its was in March, when the New Deal began with a threat to disemploy great numbers of jobholders in the interests of economy and revival. But the disemployment apparently applied only to Republicans, after all.

It would be unkind to criticise Mr. Farley for taking care of people with Government jobs who have been helpful to him and his man Frank, and I would not like to be understood as objecting to such humane conduct.

Upward Reduction.

I would ask that merely as information because I never have been very good at figures, and I would sincerely like to know what kind of mathematics they use when they reduce a quantity upward.

I make this suggestion because I think Mr. Farley in some cases might be more grateful than careful and might reward with Government positions certain friends who would later cause the blush of embarrassment to mantle his honest cheek. And I advance this idea because I remember some incidents during his career as the chairman of the prize-fight commission in which trusted friends of Shamus Farley took a rather unfair and selfish advantage of his friendship and protection.

Stood by Johnston.

Mr. Farley insisted, for example, that Fainting Philip Scott, the English heavyweight, who belonged to his friend James J. Johnston, be regarded as the logical contender for the heavyweight championship of the world. The prize fight profession and the customers did not so regard Fainting Philip, but Mr. Farley achieved his purpose by arbitrary award, which conferred the logical contendership on the horizontal gladiator from London.

Fainting Philip eventually met Jack Sharkey in Miami and swooned picturesquely from the effect of a savage slap on the right hip, but this did not upset Mr. Farley. He stood by his friend.

Knew It All Along.

Afterward Mr. Johnston, in speaking of Fainting Phil, was guilty of very cynical remarks. He said Fainting Philip was a terrible diver and that he had known it all the time. Yet when Mr. Farley was insisting upon preferred treatment for Philip, Mr. Johnston did not have the candor to say he regarded Philip as a terrible diver, but let Mr. Farley crawl away out on a limb for him.

There were other shocking examples of Mr. Farley's steadfast loyalty to his friends during his career as chairman of the Prize Fight Commission which, if duplicated in the affairs of the U. S. Government, and especially in matters of money, contracts and privileges might cost him and his administration much distress and the tax payers large sums of money.

Hastipast Beats Ladino in Thrilling Finish After Meade Falls in Laurel Feature

Gilbert, Hurt, May Be Out For Weeks

Little Corporal Winner of Fourth; In Clover Takes Opener.

Chat Eagle Victorious; Hacky H. Triumphs, Paying $51.20.

A STICKY, treacherous track that Mother Nature and a lone harrow were doing their best to improve, played havoc with the form players as tumbling horses tossed two of the Nation's leading riders among flying hoofs at Laurel yesterday afternoon. Don Meade escaped injury when he was unseated, but Johnny Gilbert suffered a leg injury that may keep him out of the saddle for weeks.

From a public standpoint, the fall of Meade was the big tumble of the afternoon, for it marked the end of competition for Acautaw, the even-money favorite, in the fifth race, a sprint for the better class of claimers and looked upon as the day's feature. In fact, the field was only two hops away from the barrier when Acautaw appeared to step into a hole and Meade went over the colt's head.

Finish Is Close.

With Acautaw tickets thus made eligible for the scrap heap, Hastipast became the important wager. Renick hustled his mount out five lengths ahead of Longford and Ladino. Until the turn into the stretch, there was little or no change in the position of the leaders. However, Ladino cut the corner and began to wear down the now tiring Hastipast. Tipton rushed Ladino up like a shot and the finish was the closest of the meeting.

The judge ruled Hastipast first and Ladino second, the chartmakers called it a nose, and Ladino backers called it something else.

Meade proved that he was none the worse for his mishap by riding Red Badge to an easy victory in the sixth race.

Leg Badly Bruised.

Gilbert was riding the tiring, pace-setting Race Street in the fourth race when he was thrown toward the rail. There was a large field behind him and horsemen considered it miraculous that he was not seriously hurt. One hoof struck his shank, badly bruising his leg.

Little Corporal, which had been running second, took the lead and bounced to the finish four lengths in front of Silver Slipper. The latter might have won had not the riderless Race Street carried the colt to the outside fence at the stretch turn.

In Clover Winner.

In Clover, half of the Labrot entry, ran right into the big money in the opener, leading a field of ten juveniles to the wire. Closest at the finish were Dangerous Game and Cantersine. L. Balaski rode the winner and Labrot entry tickets were worth $14.60 down under the stands.

The Brookmeade Stable's Political graduated into the win column in the second race, defeating the favored Union over the mile and 70 yards course. Post Brigade was third. Union was much the best horse but was carried to the outside fence at the clubhouse turn and the hard work attached to getting back to a racing position affected the finish.

Chat Eagle flew home in the third race. The son of Chatterton took the lead when ready and was never seriously threatened thereafter. Zembla and Last Bid were the others in the money. R. Fischer was in the pilot house on the winner which rewarded with a $6 mutuel.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The famous composer Franz Liszt was a Hungarian by birth, but in his early youth he left his native State to study and write abroad. He spent much of his time in other lands and seems to have gained only a very little, if any, knowledge of his own country's language. His works were composed in German or French. By his own admission he did not know Hungarian. In a letter to a friend he once said, "From the cradle to the grave I feel a Hungarian, though to my greatest regret ignorant of the language."

Track history of the past few decades records that the "greatest mile"—a mile faster than any man ever ran it before—has been run six times since 1895, when T. P. Conneff ran it in 4:15.6. Eighteen years later J. P. Jones clipped more than a second off Conneff's record; N. S. Taber lowered it again in 1915, and the great Paavo Nurmi set another world record for the mile in 1923, when he finished in 4:10.4. J. Ladoumergue, French runner, ran the "greatest mile" in 1931 with 4:09.2, while Jack Lovelock established the record time of 4:07.6 a few months ago.

The Devil's Horns plant has a seed pod, illustrated above, which has sharp curved spines that readily hook into the noses of grazing animals. The animal so attacked by the plant often drives itself to exhaustion attempting to free the sharp spines from its nose—and quite often dies as a result of this small non-poisonous seed pod.

All-Star Card Scheduled at Portner's

A TRIPLE-ACTION all-star boxing card featured by three eight-rounders will be the attraction at Portner's Arena Tuesday. Bouts between Jimmy Mack and Le Roy Dougan, featherweights; Stumpy Jacobs and Maxie Koshover, lightweights, and Carey Wright and Tommy Bashara, welterweights, will comprise the stellar trio.

Jimmy Mack, the Philadelphian, has participated in some of the best fights ever presented locally. His first encounter here with Eddie Burl has become a classic. Dougan has worked steadily in top spots for the last year. His efforts have met with varying success, but have usually been marked by plenty of action of one sort or another.

In Stumpy Jacobs, Maxie Koshover will be facing a type calculated to upset all his well-laid boxing plans. Koshover is a master boxer who depends on footwork to pull him out of tight corners. Jacobs is the type to keep right on top, firing stiff punches to the brisket, which may not prove altogether pleasant to Koshover.

Wright and Bahsara promise a punching duel tempered with very little skill and science. The regular preliminaries will round out the card.

Laurel Race Track, Oct. 20.

Dear Al:

The favorite players lost the "nut" yesterday. In up-to-the-minute gambling slang it means the bank roll is no more. Six times the heavy-money boys loaded the mutuel plant with the brand of paper that chases the depression. Six times they tossed in enough of it to create an even-money or odds-on favorite. And six times they watched their cash slide onto the muddy, sticky track and then fade from sight. True, a favorite won, but Chat Eagle, at virtually 2½ to 1, was not one of the so-called "locks" that draws what the veterans call "important" money. It looks as if we will have to discard the speed books until the track improves. And it looks as if the sun and the wind will have to do it, if you know what I mean.

BILL.

First race—Wrack Ace is cheap, but ran a fair race the last time. Will like the drying out course and may get home. Sturdy Oak is believed to be a good one. Might run his best race here. Some Good, for the show.

Second race—Trevallion, stable mate of Winooka, showed a lot of speed in his outing here. Takes off weight for this test and is the one to beat. Portden appears to be regaining best form. Bright Bird, the disappointing one, again gets his dyring-out track.

Third race—Louis d'Or, Outlaw and Escapade, appears the order in the jumping race, although they are not far apart. The top one has been jumping well and is in tip-top shape.

Fourth race—Loughport seems well suited by this sprint, which includes little class. Marion T is my long shot to place. Gets in light and has worked well. Clear Knight for the show.

Fifth race—Chatterdoo will have his race track and is going to be there or thereabouts at the finish. I prefer to play him there. Zipalong and Laurel Miss to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Keep Out might have been fooling some of the people and may kid us again here inasmuch as there are stakes ahead. However, I'm inclined to put him on top. Good Goods and Rose Bearer can have the rest.

Seventh race—Flamborough is still unbeaten on this course and will like the going. Needs only a ride. Surety is the one to beat. Pompoleon for the show.

Eighth race—Fervid could take this purse. Has been played often and today may be the right one. Fluffy Lee will be suited by conditions. Could be second ahead of Everfair.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IN CLOVER (entry), $14.60, $6.40, $3.00; DANGEROUS GAME, $5.80, $2.80; CANTERSINE, $2.20.

IN CLOVER, rushed into command at once, shook off CANTERSINE when reaching the turn, came out into the firmer footing entering the home stretch and held DANGEROUS GAME safe under punishment. Latter moved up strongly when leaving the back stretch, but was not good enough during the final drive. CANTERSINE was hard ridden and had no excuses. LEONIE was never able to threaten the leaders. SANDY BELLE was held safe. BING CROSBY was done early. The others did not favor the footing.

SECOND RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:05. Off at 2:10. Winner, Brookmeade Stable's br. g. (5), by Coventry—Affable. Trained by R. A. Smith. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25, 0:51 2-5, 1:17 3-5, 1:45 2-5, 1:51 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLITICAL, $15.40, $3.40, $3.40; UNION, $2.40, $2.20; POST BRIGADE, $3.80.

POLITICAL, saving much ground when the leaders swung wide at the first turn, remained on the inside when straightened on the back stretch, disposed of PARK at the stretch turn and held UNION safe in the final drive. Latter, forced very wide at the first turn, had his way up gradually when in his stride, but had to be ridden under punishment during the final drive. POST BRIGADE could not gain during the last half mile. PARK weakened after being rushed to the front midway of the back stretch. POSTPONEMENT was done early. PHARA stopped badly after carrying her field out at the first turn.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:40. Off at 2:41. Winner, H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED BADGE, $8.40, $4.40, $4.20; FLIGHT, $7.80, $6.20 BLONDINO, $7.00.

RED BADGE outran her field to the first turn, moved into a safe lead when reaching the final turn, and was never menaced thereafter. FLIGHT, closest to the winner at all stages, was under vigorous pressure to stall off BLONDINO. Latter, slower than usual to get going, secured racing room on the inside when settled on the back stretch, but could not better his position when reaching the leaders. CABOCHON worked his way up readily, but was held safe in the final drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 5:00. Winner J. G. Cremen's br. g. (6), by Leonardo II—Edna Stack. Trained by J. Y. Christmas. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:51 2-5, 1:18, 1:45, 1:52 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HACKY H, $31.20, $10.40, $7.00; THE DOCTOR, $8.40, $5.80; FLYING CHEROKEE, $3.80.

HACKY H drew clear after reaching the back stretch, responded strongly when challenged, and came away smartly in the final drive. THE DOCTOR, forwardly placed, finished gamely after making a strong effort at the stretch turn. FLYING CHEROKEE came willingly under severe punishment. JIMMY D could not threaten the leaders in the last half mile.

Death of 28 Race Dogs Brings $34,050 Suit

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP). Aftermath of the death of 28 prize racing greyhounds en route here from Seattle by sea, L. W. Thomas, of New York, and Butler Brooks, of Miami, Fla., today filed suit in Federal court for $34,050 damages against the Pacific Steamship Lines.

The owners charged that steamship employes pulled tarpaulins so tightly over the cages that the dogs suffocated.

Rowe Anniversary Mass To Be Sung Tomorrow

A solemn requiem mass will be sung tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest, in commemoration of the death of James G. Rowe. The Rev. John K. Cartwright will celebrate the mass, which prominent turfmen and associates will attend.

Jimmy Rowe was a prominent figure in the racing world until his death two years ago. He was trainer for Mrs. Payne Whitney's stables and among the numerous thoroughbreds in his care was Twenty Grand.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Fluorine in Drinking Water.

The acceptance of the theory that too much fluorine in the drinking water is the cause of mottled teeth is now almost universal. About the first observation of this tooth disorder was made at Colorado Springs a little more than thirty years ago. For nearly twenty years it was thought that mottled teeth was not found outside a few places in the Rocky mountain region. A report by Dr. H. Trendley Dean of an investigation to determine how widespread the disorder is in America disclosed two hundred locations where it was reported. Its presence in five of these areas Dr. Dean regarded as more than doubtful, and in more than seventy others he does not regard the case proved.

Based on his investigations, he has made a mottled enamel map of the United States. This map shows the condition to be widely scattered over the country. There seems to be more of it in Arizona than in any other State.

That drinking water was responsible for the tooth trouble was suspected almost from the beginning. As early as 1925 Dr. F. S. McKay persuaded a community to change its water supply in order to prevent this tooth trouble, with results that confirmed the theory that it was caused by something in the water. However, it was not until 1931 that proof was found that too much fluorine in the water was the cause of the disorder.

Since that paper there has been a fairly general effort to test water supplies for their content of fluorine, and we now have water maps based on these analyses. They are far from complete, but they prove that much has been accomplished in less than three years.

Fluorine is one of the most widely distributed chemicals, being found in soil, water, vegetable matter, and almost everywhere. When very much diluted with water it is inactive, but when concentrated the story is different. If a water supply contains less than two parts per million it is harmless. But if the proportion goes much above that the teeth register the effects.

There is no agreement as to the harm done the teeth by mottling aside from the change in their appearance. Some think mottled teeth decay readily and others that they resist decay well. It may be that both are right. In certain circumstances the teeth crumble. In others they are hard and resistant.

The question is now being raised as to the possibility of getting harmful amounts of fluorine in ways other than by drinking water that contains too much of it. It is in the soil and plants, and even animals may pick it up and assimilate it into their tissues.

Of far more importance is the possibility of getting too much of it through eating foods that have been sprayed with insecticides that contain fluorine.

Myocarditis.

E. L. M. writes: 1. What is myocarditis?

2. What are its symptoms?

3. Is there a cure for it?

4. How serious is it?

5. What should be done for the patient?

REPLY.

1. Theoretically it is an inflammation of the muscle of the heart wall. The term is used to cover most forms of weakness of the heart muscle.

2. Dizziness on standing, tendency to faint, dyspnoa or angina on exertion, rapid pulse, low blood pressure are some of the symptoms.

3. Yes, in a certain sense.

4. In many cases it is very serious.

5. He should be under good medical care and be should obey directions. Some cases need to belong to heart classes. Some need to stay in bed.

Walt Mason Himself

Night and Morning.

When the long sad night is dragging, as we lie awake in pain, and the leaden hours are lagging like a cripple in the rain, when the striking clock gives warning there are more black hours ahead, "There will never be a morning," we exclaim, in grief and dread. "There will never be a glimmer of the sunlight we adore, it will never dance and shimmer on the flowers any more; and the midnight clouds will never float away from sullen skies, darkness will abide forever, and the sun will never rise." And we look out from the casement, hoping for a sign of dawn, but the night sees no effacement, and our budding hope is gone. Then from fitful slumber waking we look eastward and behold that at last the day is breaking and the skies are stained with gold. Then we dance around and frolic in a spasm of delight, and forget the pangs of colic which annoyed us in the night. All the world seems bright and glowing, which but lately seemed all wrong, with the ghosts and specters going to the shades where they belong. Now at last we are emerging from a long, sad night of gloom and believe that with some urging we can start another boom. And we form a gay procession, shooting fireworks as we go, for from out the black depression we've advanced three feet or so.

The Gumps — Some Day I'll Wander Back Again

BIM'S MEMORY HAS RETURNED AT LAST— THE NAME OF TOWNSEND ZANDER FINALLY BROUGHT BACK HIS WANDERING MIND— HE HAS TOLD OLD GRANDPA AND LITTLE NELL HIS WHOLE STORY— DOUBTFUL AT FIRST THAT HE WAS IN HIS RIGHT MIND— THEY HAVE AT LAST BECOME CONVINCED— ALTHOUGH THESE SIMPLE FISHER FOLK DO NOT YET REALIZE WHO BENJAMIN GUMP REALLY IS— 10-20
OH, UNCLE BIM, DON'T LEAVE US EVER, PLEASE—
YOU AND YOUR GRANDPA HAVE BEEN VERY KIND TO ME, NELL— MORE KINDNESS THAN I CAN EVER REPAY—
WHAT AN ATTRACTION HAS SPRUNG UP BETWEEN THESE TWO— BIM HAS TAUGHT LITTLE NELL TO CALL HIM "UNCLE BIM"
OH, DON'T GO AWAY, PLEASE— IF YOU GO AWAY I'M GOING TO CRY EVERY MINUTE YOU'RE GONE— WE LOVE YOU SO— WE WANT YOU TO STAY HERE AND LIVE WITH US FOREVER—
BUT I MUST GO LITTLE NELL— YOU ARE A DEAR LITTLE GIRL AND I SHALL NEVER FORGET YOU—
A QUEER SORT—
OH, GRANPA— HOW WE'LL MISS HIM—
AND SO BIM HOBBLES BACK TOWARD TOWN— TO RETURN TO HIS HOME— AND TO THE WORLD AGAIN— IT SEEMS LIKE AGES THAT HE HAS BEEN GONE—

Renovized House Sold at Public Auction

Best Specimen Of Renovizing Brings $1,750

The renovized house at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest was sold at auction for $1,750 yesterday afternoon to Daniel C. Shade, a night club musician.

Shade said he would have the house moved to a lot on Cedar avenue in Takoma Park. His wife said she had been looking for an apartment for the past week. "But Dan," she smiled, "has solved our home-hunting problem now."

Bidding, under supervision of Vernon G. Owen, started at $300. The little house, of colonial design, was the chief exhibit of the Board of Trade's renovize campaign. Furnishings, provided by local merchants for the display, were not included in the sale, except a refrigerator and kitchen equipment.

The cost of moving the house is estimated at more than $300.

Mt. Vernon Association Ends 3-Day Meeting

A special committee of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association ended a three-day meeting yesterday. Mrs. Alice H. Richards, regent, presided.

Among gifts and loans of Washingtonians was an original portrait of Lawrence Washington, who bequeathed Mount Vernon to his half-brother, George. It was lent by Mrs. Lawrence Washington, of Washington, who also lent the commission of Lawrence Washington when he served as captain in the Virginia forces under Admiral Vernon in the Cartagena campaign.

Drug 'Cures' Seen By Mrs. Roosevelt

Tugwell Tells of Poisons in Cosmetics, Medicine.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday visited the "Chamber of Horrors" exhibit at the Department of Agriculture.

R. G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary, and author of a proposal for revising the pure food and drugs act, explained to her and her daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, numerous examples of what the Food and Drug Administration describes as false representation of the curative powers of certain patented medical preparations. He also described poisons contained in certain cosmetics and food preparations.

Cuba Radicals Desert Regime

President Grau Believed Facing New Crisis in ABC Move.

Havana, Oct. 19 (AP).—The militant and numerically strong ABC radical secret society, one of the chief supporting factions of the Grau San Martin government when it took control of Cuban affairs, tonight announced it was withdrawing its support from the present leaders.

Armand Rodas, leader of the society, said its members are continuing to cooperate with Col. Fulgencio Batista's army, but reliable reports from other sources said a break was imminent.

"The ABC is disgusted with the government's proceedings," Rodas said. "It lent its support disinterestedly, and got nothing from the participation. Now it is withdrawing."

Dry Chief Charges Coercion of States

East Liverpool, Ohio, Oct. 19 (AP). Charges that the administration was coercing States to vote on prohibition repeal were repeated by Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, in a speech here tonight.

Addressing a convention of the Steubenville Presbyterian Missionary Society, Dr. McBride repeated a statement he made in Philadelphia last night that a dry governor "between here and San Francisco" told him he "had been forced to call a repeal convention by Roosevelt and Farley." He declined to name the governor.

Homer Norton Receives Naval Burial Today

Survey Ship Commander Rites Will Be Held at Arlington.

Funeral services with full military honors will be held at Arlington Cemetery at 2:30 p. m. today for Commander Homer H. Norton, commander of the U. S. S. Nokomis, naval survey ship, who died Wednesday aboard the vessel at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Capt. Sydney K. Evans, chaplain, will officiate.

Born in Cleveland, December 3, 1887, Commander Norton was appointed to the Naval Academy from Ohio in 1903. He played quarterback on the Academy football team.

He was awarded a special letter of commendation by the Navy Department for his service in the World War. Serving on the U. S. S. Maryland from 1924 to 1926, he was appointed aide on the staff of the commander of Destroyer Squadrons, Scouting Fleet, in 1927.

Commander Norton attended the Naval War College in 1929 and 1930. In 1932 he commanded the U. S. S. Sacremento and later the U. S. S. Rochester. He assumed command of the U. S. S. Nokomis in May, 1933.

His widow, Mrs. Mary Montgomery, 11 Hesketh street, Chevy Chase, Md., survives him.

Honorary pallbearers, all naval officers, will be Rear Admiral Frank H. Clark, Capt. C. C. Soule, Commander E. A. Lofquist, Commander H. C. Gearing, Commander Jonas Ingram, Commander C. C. Ross.

Jury Convicts Florist In Sweetheart's Death

Los Angeles, Oct. 19 (AP).—Harold Wolcott, 34, Pasadena florist, was convicted today by a jury on a charge of manslaughter in the penthouse death of his sweetheart, Helen Bendowski, last August.

The jury deliberated 3 hours and 45 minutes. The penalty is from one to ten years imprisonment.

C. C. Clements Dies; Specialist On Land Law

Funeral services will be held Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Warren Mitchell, 3812 Jocelyn street. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Clements practiced land law in Washington from 1880 until he retired a few years ago. He prosecuted many Spanish War and Indian claims. From the close of the Civil War until 1868 he was acting receiver of the U. S. Land Office in Utah, and later was registrar of the Land Office. From 1869 to 1874 he was U. S. surveyor general of Utah.

Mr. Clements was born in Indiana in 1843 and entered the Naval Academy in 1860. He was a classmate and friend of many prominent naval figures in the Spanish War, including Rear Admirals Joseph B. Coghlan and Charles E. Clark. After serving as midshipman during the Civil War, he went to Denver by stage coach and became owner of "Clements' Division," which included most of the heart of the present-day Denver.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Almira Grose Clements; three daughters, Mrs. John E. Watkins, of Ardmore; Mrs. Albert C. Leith, of Rye, N. Y., and Mrs. Mitchell, and four grandchildren, Warren C., Kathryn and Corinne Mitchell, of Washington, and Albert C. Leitch, jr., of Ruston, La.

London, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Duke of York suffered a slight chill today, and doctors advised him to remain indoors.

Normally he enjoys the best of health, and is one of the fittest members of the royal family.

Former Senator, Returning From Moscow, Urges Recognition,

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—William Allen White and former Senator Henry J. Allen—the celebrated Kansas duo of "Henry and Me"—came back from Russia together today. They met in Moscow.

"Europe has not yet struck bottom politically," Allen said, "though it certainly has economically. There is a final struggle due soon between Communism and Fascism. Conditions in Europe are not as good as they were in the United States six months ago."

Allen said Russia was building up reserves against the possibility of war with Japan.

Favors Soviet Recognition.

"The revolution is being succeeded in Russia by evolution," he added.

He expressed belief that the United States should recognize the Soviet Union and said the Russian rapprochement with France is a significant development in European affairs.

The French, Allen said, are replacing German experts in Russia and France is offering aid in training the Soviet army and aviation corps.

He declared Russia believes if she gets through the winter without war there is a good chance of avoiding it.

Russia Fears War.

"The Soviet fears war with Japan—and it is doing its best to rid itself of the fear," he said. "Russia has about 400,000 soldiers strategically placed in Asia."

A Japanese-Russian war, he said, would involve France on the side of Russia and Germany would back Japan.

Thieves Craving Art Steal Rug, Tapestries

Thieves, apparently with an eye for the artistic, yesterday forced entrance to the second floor apartment of Mrs. Mattie Hiller, 1915 Eighteenth street northwest, and escaped with a persian rug and several tapestries.

Mrs. Hiller valued the rug at $100, and the tapestries at $17. The intruders entered while she was away.

W. McFarland To Head I. C. C. Practitioners

Chicago Man to Be Named Today by Convention of Association.

Walter McFarland, of Chicago, was nominated for president and two Washington men were selected for secretary and treasurer by a committee of the Association of Practitioners before the Interstate Commerce Commission, which opened its convention yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel.

John E. Benton was the choice for secretary and Clarence A. Miller for treasurer. Only one nomination was made for each office and election today is sure. Other nominees are: Chairman of the executive committee, W. H. Chandler, of New York City; vice presidents, Milton P. Bauman, of Jersey City; J. E. Tilford, of Atlanta, and Charles E. Blaine, of Phoenix, Ariz.

The association voted to hold its next convention at some other city than Washington, but no selection was made. Patrick J. Farrell, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, delivered the address of welcome to the 400 delegates.

The first day of the convention closed last night with a dinner, at which Railroad Coordinator Eastman was parodied in a humorous skit. Albert A. Mattson took the part of Mr. Eastman, while former I. C. C. Commissioners John J. Esch, Charles C. McChord, Johnstone B. Campbell and Ernest I. Lewis played various railroad presidents. R. Aubrey Bogley, of Washington, directed a blackface minstrel show.

'Billy' Sunday Pays Visit to Roosevelt

Each Wonders Why They Never Met Before.

President Roosevelt and the Rev. "Billy" Sunday met for the first time yesterday at the White House. Each said he wondered why it never happened before.

Accompanied by Mrs. Sunday and Supt. and Mrs. John S. Bennett, of the Central Union Mission, the evangelist chatted a few minutes with the President and departed. Mr. Roosevelt reminded "Ma" Sunday of the time during the Presidential campaign last fall when her husband had given him the use of his hall in Cincinnati, when there wasn't another suitable hall in the city.

Sunday has more or less slipped from the limelight these days, but he can still pack a church. Another record crowd awaited him last night at the National City Christian Church, which was filled as usual an hour before the meeting. Tonight Sunday will deliver his famous sermon on "The Second Coming of Christ" to wind up his four-day revival in Washington.

Duncan Back to Virginia—and Prison

Jean Is Petite—80 Pounds, But Police Find She Fights

She was registered at her hotel as "Jean O'Connor, Cicero street, Chicago." Police said they found letters in her effects addressed to "Geraldine O'Connor," "Phyllis Walker" and "Jean L. Thompson," all at 18 East Preston street, Baltimore."

United Scandinavia Front Plan Revived

Danish-German Frontier Problem to Be Talked.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 19 (AP). Premier Stauning said today he will discuss the Danish-German frontier problem next week with Premier Hansson of Sweden.

Former Clerk Of Arlington Goes to Prison

Delay of Year by Appeal Ends for Duncan; Misused Funds.

William H. Duncan, former Arlington County clerk, will be taken to the Virginia State Penitentiary today by Sheriff Howard B. Fields, to begin his three-year sentence. He was arrested in a Washington apartment house early yesterday and waived extradition.

Duncan, having been county clerk for more than 12 years, was convicted in Arlington County Circuit Court in August, 1932, on charges of misuse of public funds amounting to $7,815. A jury gave him a sentence of three years. In October, 1932, Judge Walter T. McCarthy passed sentence upon him.

Duncan failed to obtain a new trial when the State Court of Appeals in June of this year denied the writ. His counsel, Amos C. Crouse, of Arlington County, and Leo P. Harlow, of Washington nad Alexandria, planned a writ of certiorari from the United States Supreme Court. At the opening of the October term of court on Monday Judge McCarthy, learning that the time had expired to file the action in the Supreme Court, issued a capias for Duncan's arrest.

Duncan was arrested in Washington by Detective Sergt. A. D. Mansfield. He told officers he would fight extradition, but changed his decision when taken to Police Court. Sheriff Howard Fields, of Arlington County, returned Duncan to Arlington. He was visited last night by his wife and a host of friends.

Khaki Shirt Head Will Protest Raids

Says His Men Still Plan to March on Washington.

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—New honors for Art Smith today failed to appease his anger, aroused by the recent police raids on three stations of his Khaki Shirt "army" in Philadelphia.

While displaying a telegram informing him he was indorsed for the post of supreme commander of the Duce Fascist Alliance, Smith announced he is going to Washington to protest against the raids, in which numerous weapons were seized and several "generals" and "colonels" arrested.

Asserting the Khaki Shirts, of which he is commander in chief, will go ahead with plans for their march on Washington to install President Roosevelt as "dictator," Smith said there would be prosecutions for destruction of office equipment and records in the Philadelphia raids.
